The sudden death of Edward F. Gottschalk, a painter who had been a resident of this city for something like a year, came as quite a shock to those few of our people who knew him. Last Thursday afternoon he returned from work and went to his room, at Mr. H. L. Moore's where he was boarding. It does not seem that anyone suspected that he was in worse health than usual when soon thereafter he was found dead in his bed. His death came as a direct result of a sudden hemorrhage of the lungs. The deceased was about 37 years of age.

Mr. L. G. Hay tells us that there came near being a serious fire in the Maiden Cotton mills, at Maiden last week. While Mr. Carpenter, the proprietor, and the engineer were overhauling the engine, in some way a lighted lantern was turned over which ignited the oil around the engine, making a very large blaze. The hydrants and automatic sprinklers were turned on which soon outened it and kept it out of the main room. The only damage done was to the belting, etc., which is estimated to be about $100. Mr. Hay, having charge of the insurance on the factory, went down last Monday to investigate.

Her funeral was held on Monday from the Reformed church, of which she was a devoted member, and conducted by her pastor Rev. Murphy assisted by the Rev. COMPANY I, FORTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

The Sixth Annual Reunion at Catawba—The History of the Company.

CATAWBA, April 2.—Notwithstanding the threatening conditions of the atmosphere, clouds and cold wind, the sixth annual reunion of Company I, Fort-ninth Regiment of North Carolina Troops, surviving veterans, took place here yesterday, with a good attendance of the veterans, their families and friends, and all enjoyed a sumptuous basket dinner.

Addresses were made by C. L. Turner Esq., of Monbo, and Col. J. G. Hall, of Hickory. There was a tone of sadness in the voice of the acting orderly sergeant, as he called the original roll of the company, composed of 83 members, only 18 of whom were understood to respond, but these and other veterans who met with them, were not wanting in that welcome to each other known only to those who for 32 years have cherished something of the fraternity of veterans, now growing lightly as they did 35 years ago, and all stronger, as their numbers grow less.

This veteran company is yet commanded by Capt. C. F. Connor, who was originally its second lieutenant. Mr. W. A. Day, a faithful, true and gallant soldier in war, and since then equally faithful, true and reliable as a citizen, now secretary of the company, is probably the spirit of its inspiration to day, having four years ago published in book form the history of his company, and keeping himself in touch with each member, and recording in turn the passing away of each.

This company left Catawba on April 1st, 1862, and was assigned to the Fort-ninth Regiment at its organization, on April 14th, 1862. Of the 82 original 30 are living and 52 have passed away. The entire enrollment of the company during the war was 140. Of this number 62 yet live, and 78 are gone. It participated in 18 battles and skirmishes, and was nine months in the trenches around Petersburg. Its casualties in battle were 19 killed or died of wounds, and 27 wounded, who again went into battle. At its annual reunion, six years ago, 36 answered the roll call and only 18 yesterday, one having died during the past year. It will continue its reunions long as any of its members live and are able to attend.

The clouds of the day brought no shadows to the hearts or dimness to the eyes, most of them stepping as lightly as they did 35 years ago, and all enjoyed the dinner, with memories of the scanty fare and of many a trial of the years that are gone.—Charlotte Observer.
