For Miss Kirkpatrick.

Miss Adelaide Johnston charmingly entertained last evening with a dinner party in honor of Miss Adele Kirkpatrick, a bride of this week. The house was artistically decorated with roses. The color scheme in the dining room was yellow and white, Maroon roses being used in great profusion. The mantle and buffet were draped in ivy and vases of roses were placed around the room. The light over the table was inclosed in a large yellow wedding bell and yellow streamers brought down from the bell were tied to brass baskets filled with roses, at the four corners of the table. The centerpiece was a huge cut glass basket, filled with roses on a reflection on the handle of the basket was a beautiful bow of yellow tulle. The place cards were little hand painted cupid and slippers with the names of the guests spelled backward. At each place were miniature gold slippers filled with rice. The brides chair was draped in white and covered with roses; with a bridal veil over the back of the chair which fell over the bride when she was seated. This original toast was given by the hostess to the bride and groom: "Here's to Adele and here is to Hugh! And though you may seek the whole wide world through, A handsomer couple you never will find. And in this opinion we are of one mind— In beauty and grace, who so rich as Adele? To know is to love her— as many can tell, Her sweet, gentle nature its influence sends— 6:25— 12:50 To those whose good fortune accounts as her friends. And qualities manly, endowments not few, We find these developed and balanced in Hugh. We could sing by the hour this young couple's praise. And wish for them many, long, bright golden days. Attended by Cupid, since they felt his darts. When he with his arrows pierced both of their hearts. We wish that their journey be balmy as May. With roses and sunshine adorning their way. So here's to the bride and here's to the groom, In all of their beauty and all of their bloom, No handsomer couple, and this we know well. Than the groom-to-be Hugh, and the fair bride Adele."

Other toasts were given by Miss Margaret McComb, Miss Grace Patrick, Mr. Orin Sigmon and Mr. George Kirkpatrick. The hostess presented the guest of honor with a silver jelly spoon. Miss Johnston's guests were Miss Kirkpatrick and Mr. Williams, Miss Cornelia Dye of Kershaw, S. C., and Geo. Blackwelder, Miss Elizabeth McComb and Mr. Robert Martin, Miss Grace Patrick and Mr. Orin Sigmon, Miss Margaret McComb and Mr. Gary Kirkpatrick and Mr. George Kirkpatrick.

TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL IS NOT A MENACE That a tuberculosis hospital or sanatorium is not a menace from a health point of view is the decision of the New Jersey Chancery court in a recent suit brought against Atlantic county by the city of Northfield to prevent the county from erecting a tuberculosis hospital near that city. The state board of health had approved the site, but the city alleged that it would depreciate the value of property in the vicinity of the hospital. But the Jersey court decided that "the evidence submitted does not justify the conclusion that any danger to health exists or can be reasonably apprehended through the operation of this institution, provided it is properly operated."

The court decided further that the claim that the establishment of the hospital near the city would materially reduce the market value of the adjacent real estate "cannot justify the relief here sought." A case similar to this New Jersey case recently arose in New York and Commissioner Emerson ruled that the location of the Tuberculosis Clinic did not endanger public health. "That the value of human lives is given consideration by the courts above that of real estate," says the state board of health, "shows the enlightened attitudes the courts are taking in health matters."

Dr. Jos. L. Murphy, who was in Concord Monday reports a good rain there. It was drizzling Tuesday morning in Statesville and he was positive rain would be falling when he reached Hickory later in the forenoon.

"WHISTLE"

SHAKESPEAREAN CLASS.

See if You Can Fill in the Names Below.

Below are given the rhymes prepared by Mrs. J. A. Martin for the Shakespeare centenary given by the Travellers' club at the residence of Mrs. Geo. N. Hutton last week: Fill the blanks that you find here. And Shakespeare's characters will appear.

Also understand in time. Make the answers with the last word rhyme.

- 1. Who would give his kingdom for a horse? The tale you've often heard.— Who were the star-crossed lovers? Beloved by lovers yet— 2. Who is the fat knight who always make us laugh? 3. Who said "What fools these mortals be"? He laughs at human frailty. His name will rhyme with luck.— Who wrote the name on every tree Of her he loved devotedly? His heart was full of love and woe— 4. The king whose many wives all met a tragic fate? 5. Who beat her lovers on the head And wished to Heaven that she were dead? Her father found her hard to mate— 6. He murdered sleep and breathed defiance with his last breath. This Jew a pound of flesh did claim. It was a dreadful shock. To good Antonio's dear friends. This merciless— 7. This pitiful old man his kingdom gave away. And then in storms and tempests was forced to stray. He lost his mind and last of all He lost his daughter dear— 8. Anne Hathaway till she was wed, And even then, I heard it said Ann had it still. And ever had her own sweet— The program rendered follows: Introduction—Miss Mary Geisner. Trio, "Under the Greenwood Tree", Arne—Lyons—Meadames J. L. Murphy, W. L. Abernethy, J. L. Cilley. Solo, "Hark! Hark the Lark," Schubert—Mrs. J. L. Murphy. Piano, Nocturne from "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn—Mrs. J. L. Cilley. Solo, "Hark, Hark the Lark," Schu—Mrs. E. Chadwick. Reading, Scene from Macbeth—Mrs. E. B. Menzies.
