

Doctor Says Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate People 200 Per Cent in Ten Days

In many instances—Persons have suffered untold agony for years doctoring for nervous weakness, stomach, liver or kidney disease or some other ailment when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood—How to tell.

New York, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a Specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe said: If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissues and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin, another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinnier and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what anyone tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how the old forms of inorganic iron like far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. It with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated iron for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100,000 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Hickory Drug Co., and all other druggists.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SELF

Funeral Service for Mrs. Martha Caroline Self, who died late Monday night at the age of 69 years, was held from the residence on West Ninth avenue today at 11 o'clock by Rev. W. E. Murray, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran church, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. Interment was in Oakwood cemetery. There were many and varied floral offerings. The pall-bearers were Messrs. J. A. Moretz, W. H. Wilfong, W. W. Burns, S. P. Bisnar and A. L. Moser.

MEDICAL STUDENT HELD FOR ROBBERY

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 17.—H. Grady Webb, a medical student, is under arrest, charged by federal authorities with having been a member of the gang which held up and robbed a Baltimore and Ohio train at Dodridge county, W. Va., of approximately $10,000 of unsigned currency in October, 1915. Webb was identified by a fellow student who recalls that the picture on a poster issued by the government depicting the fugitive looked exceedingly like Webb. One thousand dollars reward was offered for the fugitive's capture. Federal officials say that about $1,000 of the money was found in Webb's possession.

Webb, who told the authorities he is 33 years of age, said he came to Kansas City from Louisville, Ky., three months ago and became a student at the medical university. Postoffice inspectors say he has confessed to his part in the robbery. Three other men previously had been arrested in the investigation of the robbery.

CHOIR OF VERDUN

(By Associated Press.) Paris, Jan. 17.—Among the war relics at the Petit Palais are remains of the choir of the cathedral of Verdun which the sub-prefect Grillon of Verdun is endeavoring to reconstruct. Some of the panels have been split, others caved in, by explosions and shell fragments, and pieces of projectiles are seen imbedded in the copies. The high Louis XV chairs saved by Grillon during the bombardments are nearly all intact. Along with the cathedral relics is the statue of the Virgin that was found undamaged among the ruins of the Chapel of Sainte Fie before the Germans left the village. Verdun when the French drove the Germans out of the village. Saint Fie marked the extreme point of the German advance toward the citadel.

HUST HAD REASONED WELL

Couldn't Afford to Sacrifice Reputation for Veracity by Backing Up His Guest's "Tall" Story.

A well-known diplomat told at a dinner in Washington a significant parable. "They who expect the men in authority to do a great deal for them—they who expect the impossible—should remember the grizzly-bear story."

"A famous grizzly-bear hunter gave a dinner, and one of the guests told of a bear hunt that he had once shared in with his host. It had been a remarkable hunt. The bear had been killed under almost incredible difficulties. Although his auditors looked skeptical, the narrator did not spare them any of those difficulties. He counted on the host, you see, for corroboration."

"Then, when he had finished his strange but perfectly true tale, he said: 'There, that's the story, and, gentlemen, our host will corroborate every word I say.'"

"No, George," he said, "I don't remember anything of this sort at all. 'Tableau!'"

"Maddened by this tableau, the guest, at the end of the dinner, took his host aside and hissed: 'Why didn't you back me up in that bear story? You know every word of it was true.'"

"Yes," said the famous hunter; "yes, it was all true, but I saw that every word round the table thought you were lying. If, then, I had supported you, the only result would have been they would have set me down for a liar, too."

WARNED OF "DARK HORSE"

Phrase That Has Become Famous Had Its Origin in a Race Meet in Tennessee Town.

The first use of the phrase, "a dark horse," has been traced to a turf oracle named Jugg McMinamee. A man named Sam Flynn owned a black stallion called Dusky Pete. He was not a "likely horse" in appearance, but he could travel at a rate that put most of the animals pitted against him to scorn.

It was Flynn's custom to ride this horse into a town where a race meeting was being held, and enter him in a race. Dusky Pete didn't look particularly good, and Flynn could not get a goodly number of bets down at excellent odds. Seldom did Pete fail to romp home far ahead of the local favorites to the enrichment of his owner.

One day Judge McMinamee was appointed judge at a race meet, and among the entries he observed Dusky Pete. "Gentlemen," he said, "there's a dark horse in this race that will make you sick." After that it became a saying to "Look out for the dark horse."

The vicar's wife was tireless in discouraging the use of tobacco. According to the good lady, it was the weed which made a veritable wilderness of the rose-garden of life. "Well, Annie," she remarked to one of the village lassies about to get married, "I hope your chosen is one of the non-chimney variety—does not smoke." "He ain't what you'd call a slave to the habit, ma'am," replied the girl, "but he ain't exactly a stranger to it. I don't feel called on to put a stop to it, neither. You see, I want him to be happy and comfortable about the house when we're married." "Surely he would be just as happy without that dreadful tobacco?" advanced the lady. "Praps he would, ma'am, and praps he wouldn't," came the answer; "anyhow, I wouldn't like him to keep on findin' jobs out o' sight every few minutes, then come in eatin' corfy berries, like the poor vicar."—London Tit-Bits.

Man Who Knew Everything.

Thiers, the French statesman, was a victim of many whimsies. None had stronger hold on him, says Mgr. Gabriel Hanotaux in Contemporary France, than his desire to get everybody to recognize his universal competency.

Of an applicant for the post of director at the Sevres manufactory Thiers said:

"He is no more made for that part than for—" and then he stopped.

"Ah, oh! M. Thiers," said his interlocutor, "you find it hard to say what you could not do."

"That's the truth!" That's the truth!" cried the statesman gleefully. One day Thiers said, speaking of a man who had been raised to a high function:

"He is no more suited for that office than I am to be a druggist. And yet," he added, catching himself up, "I do know chemistry!"

Freedom's True Friend.

The true friend of freedom does not wish to be insulted by the supposition that he believes each human individual an erring man, and that nevertheless the united clamor of erring men has a character of divinity about it; nor does he desire to be told that the voice of the people, though legitimate and institutionally proclaimed and justly commanding respect and obedience, is divine on that account. He knows that the majority may err, and that he has the right and often the duty to use his whole energy to convince them of their error, and lawfully to bring about a different set of laws. The true and staunch Republican wants liberty, but no deflection either of himself or others.—Emerson.

What a Man Never Forgets

The first time he ever kissed a girl.
The first time he chewed a piece of tobacco.
The first time he asked a girl to marry him.
What his wife said the first time he stayed out all night.
How he felt when the nurse stepped out into the hall and said, "It's a girl!"

MADE "BOOKIES" LOOK SILLY

Visitor From Dublin Turned Neat Trick on London Sharks Who Had Boasted Too Loudly.

A Dublin man, being on a vacation in London recently, patronized a hotel resorted to by two English bookies and, being continually and unmercifully twitted by them, decided on revenge. In the smokeroom one evening the trio were discussing the dexterity of pickpockets, when our friend, who had audaciously introduced the subject, declared that there was nothing wonderful about their work at all. Any ordinarily smart man could do what they do.

"I could easily lift any man, if I so wished," he declared, "no matter who or how alert he might be."

"Bet you fifty to a tanner you don't lift that tuff over there, Mr. Mick or Pat, or whatever your name is," snapped one of the bookies, at the same time indicating the only other occupant of the room—a gentleman standing at a distant window.

"Done," said our friend, and the money was taken. He approached the gentleman and spoke to him, at the same time relieving him of his watch and chain, tie pin and pocketbook. The gentleman didn't apparently notice anything wrong, but the bookies could distinctly see the operation. Our friend won his bet and the bookie lost his temper next day on discovering that our friend and the gentleman whom he had lifted were bosom companions who had arranged the little matter between them.—London Mail.

DIDN'T QUITE GET THE IDEA

Library Patron Evidently Was Not Strictly Up to Date in Knowledge of Modern Literature.

A student assistant, engaged in reading the shelves at the public library, was accosted by a primly dressed, middle-aged woman, who said that she had finished reading the last of Laura Jean Libbey's writings, and that she should like something just as good.

The young assistant, unable for the moment to think of Laura Jean Libbey's equal, hastily scanned the shelf on which she was working, and, choosing a book, offered it to the applicant, saying, "Perhaps you would like this, 'A Kentucky Cardinal.'"

"No," was the reply; "I don't care for theological works."

"But," replied the kindly assistant, with suppressed enthusiasm, "this cardinal was a bird."

"That would not recommend him to me," said the woman, as she moved away in search of a librarian who should be a better judge of character as well as of Laura Jean Libbey's peers.—Harper's Magazine.

Tools Egyptians Used.

Stone Implements and household tools, estimated to be 40,000 years old, forming part of a collection owned by Ramesses, son and successor to Ramesses the Great, 1,500 years before Christ, have been unearthed in the prehistoric monarch's palace at Memphis, ancient capital of Egypt.

Advices telling of these important discoveries have reached the university museum in Philadelphia from Dr. Clarence S. Fisher, leader of the E. C. B. Cox, Jr., expedition to Egypt.

In a full report, Doctor Fisher describes wandering through the spacious halls of the great palace that for centuries lay buried in ancient Memphis. Gold ornaments, scarabs, vessels of various kinds and vases were found intact, just as they must have been when the lords of those days departed.

Many of the relics found, says Doctor Fisher, date back to the stone age. Traces of a fire that must have ravished the palace are found on every side, according to the archeologist.—Exchange.

Odd Numbers.

A hen is always given an odd number of eggs to be hatched. Why? There is no reason at all except superstition.

Salutes from warships, forts, etc., are always given in odd numbers, yet no valid reason can be adduced. It is a remnant of the old "odd numbers are lucky" superstition.

Virgil records all sorts of charms and spells practiced round odd numbers—never even ones. Seven is the favorite biblical number, and old divines taught that it held a mystical perfection. It is an odd number.

Falstaff, in the "Merry Wives," is entrapped for the third time. He himself said: "They say there is a divinity in odd numbers," because of the old belief in odd numbers.

Physicians of other days always insisted that "bleedings" should be in odd numbers—one, three, five, etc., and never an even one.—London Mail.

Sound Thoughts—Sound Body.

You may have a well body, but you must begin to build it with your word. Instead of laying up weak and sick word in your body, begin now to speak the word of strength and health—and keep it up. Don't look at what has been. Lot's wife tried that, and she never got beyond the past. Clear out of your mind all this rubbish about uric acid, gallstone, etc., and you will find that none of them has judgment in your body. The thought makes the body and determines the condition it lives in. Thoughts of health are living, eternal things, and they work with their irresistible power of almightiness to tone up the organism to their own high key of harmony and capability.—Unity.

TO GO TO RALEIGH

Envoys Thomas Lloyd and Mrs. Lloyd, who have been here for several weeks, will leave for Raleigh in a few days to take up work there for the Volunteers of America. Envoy Lloyd will devote much time to prison work and it is expected by his friends that he will make a good impression in Raleigh. He is energetic and tireless and does not mind work.

RUNNING SHERMAN

Mr. Geo. S. Watson has received a letter from Mr. J. P. Flack of Union Mills, and in a postscript Mr. Flack, who is 79 years old, says the effects of the War Between the States are still being felt. And then he humorously remarks that he was the man that ran Sherman through Georgia—"I ran and he was after me."

"Free Drinks" read a placard displayed in a shop window in a little town in Illinois during a recent drywet campaign. In smaller type the "free drink" was explained as cool, pure, sparkling, artesian water. Every one was interested in this clever ad, and many entered to drink and stayed to buy.—Advertising World.
