It shouldn't be necessary at this FOR SALE _ACRE LOT AND late day, after the matter has been d scussed publicly in all its bearings over and over again for nearly two years, to point out the dissimilarity surdity of regarding them in the same need stating once more. To begin with, international law does not forbid one belligerer, to blockade another with a view of starving out the enemy. The United GENUINE PROGRESSIVE EVER-States itself established the classic precedent for such action by its blockade of the Confederacy in our civil war. The allies' blockade of Germany and Austria is modeled af-

We have denied the legality of the present British blockade on technical grounds, simply because it is not complete, because it fails to seal up all the German ports. If the blockade could be made 100 per cent effective, we could not complain so long as Greak Titain obeyed the 'aw of "search and seizure."

Th's latter obligation is more important by far than the question of complete effectiveness.
