PRESIDENT TAKES OATH BEFORE IMMENSE CROWD

Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Nebraska; Henry L. Myers, Montana; Key Pittman, Nevada; Allee Pomerene, Ohio; James A. Reed, Missouri; Claude A. Swanson, Virginia; John Sharp Williams, Mississippi.

Republicans Thomas B. Catron, New Mexico; Moses E. Clapp, Minnesota; Clarence D. Clark, Wyoming; Henry A. DuPont, Delaware; Henry F. Lippitt, Rhode Island; George T. Oliver, Pennsylvania; John D. Works, California; George Sutherland, Utah.

While this ceremony was in progress the remainder of the party began moving out of the chamber. All of the party on the senate floor and the guests in the galleries, by pre-arranged directions, moved along through the rotunda in lines which converged at the main entrance and thus out on the platform reached from the central portico.

The ceremony Before a great sea of humanity, official and unofficial, invited and uninvited, President Wilson took his place at the left of the chief justice and at the right of the arrangements committee. Places for former president, secretary of the senate, senators and former senators were arranged along the right. Retiring members of the house and members-elect were next to and behind the senate.

To the right of the president were seated the members of the diplomatic corps, governors of states and territories, members of the cabinet, army and navy officials were at the left.

While the party was assembling the units of the inaugural procession were forming on all sides of the capitol, the music of marching bands as the organizations took place waiting to swing into line behind the president when he started back to the white house, gave the only appearance of a military air in the whole proceeding.

The assembling of the presidential party, its departure and the demonstrations of the crowd were the only spectacular features of the outdoor ceremony. The actual ceremony itself is simplicity and solemnity.

The Oath When the president takes the inaugural oath, the chief justice, bible in hand, steps forward; the man who is about to take office stands beside him with raised hand. Slowly and solemnly the chief justice repeats the oath prescribed by the constitution.

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States." Solemnly the oath is repeated after the Chief Justice and the ceremony is over, but for the delivery of the president's inaugural address.

When that was concluded, the senate returned to its chambers, and the president returned to the white house at the head of the inaugural procession. Mrs. Wilson, following a precedent set by Mrs. Taft, rode with her husband, after having created a precedent herself by riding to the capitol with him earlier in the day.

As the president led the procession up Pennsylvania avenue, and the units of the inaugural parade, civic and military, swung in behind him, a new demonstration began which continued until the procession halted in front of the white house. There the president and his party took places in the official line to view the remainder of the column.

Friends of Mrs. R. W. Stevenson will be glad to know that she is gradually improving following an operation at the Richard Baker hospital.

Rev. J. G. Garth late Saturday received a telegram announcing that the senate had provided $5,000 for the relief of the war widows and that the "war widows" would pass the measure today. Dr. A. A. McGeechy, who has urged enactment of the bill, was on the job.

He said he had been asked at pastors' conferences to solve the question of worldliness appearing in the church, but he could not solve it. He could only urge them to stand under the cross and consecrate themselves to good deeds.

Mr. A. A. Shuford, Jr., returned today from New York, where he spent the past week on business and reading the extras of metropolitan newspapers. New York papers came out with extras about every 15 minutes. Mrs. Shuford will spend a week or so longer with friends. Mr. Shuford said he had never seen quite so many American flags as he observed in New York. Every business house in that great city was decorated and the whole city seemed alive to the importance of protecting American rights.

ROAD TO BROOKFORD IS NEEDED SEVERELY

Mr. John Sharp, who lives five miles from Hickory on the Brookford road, said today that something would have to be done to give the people of his part of the county a way to reach Hickory, the road between here and Brookford being fierce. Mr. Sharp agreed with the majority of the people that a hard surface highway between Hickory and Brookford is necessary to accommodate the heavy traffic. He says he is ready to begin work as a missionary in the interest of roads, and he will not only go out along the highways, but will spend his money for a road.

MR. BRADSHAW AT BAPTIST CHURCH

The Rev. W. R. Bradshaw Sunday delivered his first sermons as pastor of the First Baptist church and fairly large congregations, considering the extremely rainy day, were present to hear him. At the morning service Mr. Bradshaw took for his subject "Glorving in the Cross," and he drew his inspiration from Paul's noble utterance, "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of Christ." Before delivering his sermon the pastor spoke feelingly to his members. He declared that he was in sympathy with every agency of the church, rendered thanks for the magnificent work of the late Rev. W. R. C. Walthey and the Rev. J. D. Harte, who has moved to Oxford, and said he wanted the members to know that he valued their services to the church. Mr. Bradshaw said he wanted the opportunity to serve and he urged the members to meet him half way. Probably Mr. Bradshaw delivered one of his best sermons Sunday evening. Always he is good, but when he speaks of the cross, his words are especially fine. He spoke reverently, feelingly and emphatically, eloquently at times. The choir rendered music especially suited to the occasion and a solo by Mrs. J. H. Shuford added to the effectiveness of an impressive service. Mr. Bradshaw cited a number of reasons for glorving in the cross. He said his prophets and then His only son to expiate the sins of the world. Mothers will sacrifice themselves for loved ones, friends will stand steadfast to each other, and the preacher here told the beautiful story of Damon and Pythias. But in the case of Christ it was the innocent dying for the guilty. He said the cross that all men might be saved, and his act was the supreme climax of friendship and love. He stepped between us and God and drew us together, like the dying warrior draws together members of the family. Surely we will be glad to glory in the cross after what Christ has done for us, Mr. Bradshaw pleaded.
