The Knights of Pythias will meet tonight for degree work and a full attendance is desired.

Earl Jackson Matherly, 17-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Matherly, died yesterday and the funeral was held today at Houck's chapel.

A fine shower fell this morning and, although it was not enough to soak the ground, it did lots of good to beans and other truck about to make.

Mr. A. E. Bumgarner brought some cabbage to the city today that weighed nearly four pounds to the head. Mrs. H. D. Wagner has cut cabbage from her garden that weighed three pounds.

Mr. Frank F. Allen of Hickory was among the 161 young men and women securing degrees at the University of North Carolina this year, the local collegian receiving one of the highest awards, that of master of arts. He finished at Lenoir College last year and obtained his master's degree at the university in one year. Mr. Allen returned home last night.

FUNERAL THIS MORNING OF REV. D. J. SUTTLEMYRE

Funeral services for Rev. Daniel Jefferson Suttlemyre, who died Tuesday evening, were conducted from St. Andrew's Lutheran church at 10:30 o'clock today by Rev. J. D. Mauney and the burial took place at New Jerusalem church. The pastors of the county ministerial association acted as pall bearers. A large number of friends attended the funeral, attesting the esteem in which the beloved man was held.

EIGHT OF GERMAN MACHINES DRIVEN DOWN

London, June 7.—Eight of the 18 German airplanes that took part in Tuesday's air raid on Essex and Kent were driven down by British airmen. Four of these were to a certainty completely destroyed, while two others are believed to have been put totally out of commission. Of the 18 machines that started in the raid two were brought down near the British coast after having dropped their bombs as reported in the official statement. The remaining 16 were engaged by 10 naval airmen from Dunkirk, who in a great battle over the sea destroyed two more of the Germans and drove down another four, two of which, according to the official report, were completely put out of action. After the lesson of the Folkestone raid the British were ready for yesterday's visit, and from the moment the Germans left the Belgian coast they were engaged, first with patrols over the channel, then with the land forces in England and later, on their return with the squadron of airplanes from Dunkirk.

CHANCE FOR OLDER MEN

Springfield Republican. For the second series of officers' training camps to be held between August 27 and November 26, an effort is to be made to obtain men over 31 years of age, and this field of service should be carefully considered by men who are not indispensable at home and believe that they have the qualifications needed to make a good officer. In some ways the more mature have an advantage, especially if they have been accustomed to handling men. The training of officers ought of course to begin in youth to give time for thorough professional study, but among officers equally green those who have had most experience and have acquired command most confidence and respect—that officers as a rule should be somewhat older than the men they command is no bad thing. It is in doubt whether better service can be done in the army or in civil life, ability to qualify as an officer may turn the scale; leadership is needed in both fields, but the need for good material for officers is likely to be the most pressing. There will be a welcome for alert capable men under 44 years of age who are ready to work hard to qualify for a commission.

EFFECTIVENESS VERSUS HUMAN HAPPINESS

June 5 will go down in history as a national red letter day. Truly we live in deeds, not years. Not one could watch the demonstration of Tuesday night without mingled feelings of tears and pride, as men of both colors who had registered marched past, many of them with a full sense of what the deed meant, perhaps some realizing naught of its significance. Two little stories were in the writer's mind all day. One was an anecdote the late Joseph Choate loved to tell of the Irishman who, wishing to attend the circus and not having the wherewith, applied to the boss of the show for work. The showman told Pat he was sorry but had nothing to offer, except, perhaps, a little job he might not like. The lion had died recently, and as the circus had advertised a lion, they knew the people would be disappointed. The showpeople had skinned the lion, and the boss proposed to Pat that he would give him $2 if he would don the lion's skin and lie in the cage as a substitute for the deceased king of beasts. The Irishman readily agreed, but just as he stepped in the cage he noticed a large Bengal tiger lying over in the corner, and so Pat beat a hasty retreat, saying, "Faith, and I'll not go into that cage with that beast lying there," when suddenly from the tiger came a voice, "Don't be afraid, Pat, I'm an Irishman too."

Many a man is hoping he will find nothing more serious, and is going into the thing with the hope that the whole business is a light affair, and if matters have a threatening look they will turn out as Pat's tiger did.

The other story was that in Pilsgrimage's Progress, where Christian was at Interpreter's house, and was shown a great and lovely palace, on the roof of which were people walking, dressed in garments of gold. Before the palace a body of men stood with swords and armor, to resist the approach of any who would enter. A man sat near with a book and a pen to set down names of applicants. Christian saw a man come up with determined mien, and strong body. He said to the penman, "Set down my name, sir." Then he was given a sword and armor, and he approached the defenders of the door. A terrific battle ensued, and blow met blow, but the single handed combatant overcame the armed men and passed on through, and was crowned with victor and enrobed in garments of gold with those on the roof. Many a man Tuesday came with the same realization and calm purpose and said to the clerk: "Set down my name, sir," knowing there might be blows and deaths, but they looked for the golden rewards of the brave and the true.

We have indeed come upon a new era. The German nation through their leaders have demonstrated what efficiency means, when an oligarchy handles the destinies of millions, who submit to the standardization of human units by ambitious brains. Bernhardit, in his Will to Power, contends for the right of the strong to exploit the weak, and declares it the duty of the weak to serve the strong, and thus to build up a nation of supermen. Then it is the duty of this nation of supermen to override the earth and subdue it, and impart its culture to ignorant hordes. If they will not submit, then there is no alternative but destruction for rebels and incompetents.

Germany proceeded on this platform in beginning this war. The bomb at Sarajevo which killed Ferdinand, the prince of Austria, was simply a signal to begin the program Prussia had laid out for herself, and the unreasonable ultimatums of July, 1914, in contravention of all treaties, were simply throwing off the cloak of hypocrisy to show the mailed form that lay beneath. The German view was that commerce and pleasure had sapped the life of Englishmen and Frenchmen, and they were but decadent nations. A short struggle and the Prussian nation would be victorious. Thank God, while France has almost been bled white, and England has been strained to her utmost, German victory is yet un- sung.

England and America have a different principle from the Germans. They worship at the shrine of human happiness through human liberty. They seek this, not through standardization of mankind, but the free play of personality and individuality. The fight is democracy against oligarchy, the rights of the many against the rights of the few. This is the heritage of mankind that we stand for today, and the mighty protest has gone up that will compel Prussianism to desist. The world is against Germany.

Tuesday was beheld again the scene enacted at Concord bridge when on April 19, 1775, those 450 "embattled farmers stood, and fired the shot heard 'round the world," where Isaac Davis fell the captain who was killed at the first shot, and who had said, "I haven't a man who is afraid to go." America stands today to protect the liberty those patriots died for. If it take us all, we will all go.

Life Was a Misery

Mrs. F. M. Jones, of Palmer, Okla., writes: "From the time I entered into womanhood . . . I looked with dread from one month to the next. I suffered with my back and bearing-down pain, until life to me was a misery. I would think I could not endure the pain any longer, and I gradually got worse. . . Nothing seemed to help me until, one day, . . . I decided to

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"I took four bottles," Mrs. Jones goes on to say, "and was not only greatly relieved, but can truthfully say that I have not a pain. . ."

"It has now been two years since I took Cardui, and I am still in good health. . . I would advise any woman or girl to use Cardui who is a sufferer from any female trouble."

If you suffer pain caused from womanly trouble, or if you feel the need of a good strengthening tonic to build up your run-down system, take the advice of Mrs. Jones. Try Cardui. It helped her. We believe it will help you.
