

Do You Have Headache?

If you do, very likely it comes from your eyes and can be relieved with properly fitted glasses. Eye strains, headache and nervous troubles, the result of optical defects can be relieved. My examinations are made by the most modern methods and greatest care exercised in the selection of the proper formula for the lenses in every instance.

17 for 1917 and Registered Optometrist

Wear glasses. Life is too short not to have the correct vision. If you lose your eyes it will be a slow go. My glasses are fitted and adjusted scientifically, when that is done you are improved on one should always go to a registered optometrist. Other services I guess work and might do harm. If you are sick, would you send for an unregistered doctor. You would want all the experience and skill possible. Those who are deceived by my suggestions in buying glasses get the best of me. I am far the senior in this section, having had twenty years experience. If experience don't count what do you come in and have your eyes tested and get a pair of glasses fitted and relieve that eye strain. The word "glasses" for all that is best in glasses, and the best is none at all. I also fill all kinds of prescriptions and dispense complicated lens for the pieces.

With the Optical Cabinet and electric lights I can fit the glasses of night. This will be good news to the working man who can't come in the day. I guarantee my service to be the best and exact the rest. One does not have to buy glasses and they see it to their eyes to get the best quality.

PATRICK MacGILL'S POEM

On a Church in France as the Germans Left It

From a Review in the Christian Work

When one takes up a new book by the author of "The Children of the Dead End," "The Rat-pit" and "The Great Push," he knows pretty well what to expect. He expects, for instance, to find much stern realism, and a fine exhibition of art of depicting scenes of sordid existence in such a way as renders them at least tolerably bearable, while still being made to retain much of their pristine horror. These qualities abound in "Soldier Songs." Mr. Macgill does not mince matters. With rough, unvarnished strokes, he gives his readers a stirring insight into life in the trenches. Of the whole 43 numbers in the book our preference is for "A Soldier's Prayer." It is not so rugged as the rest, perhaps, and strikes a note which haunts and lingers. Here it is:

Givency village lies a wreck. Givency Church is bare. No more the peasant maidens come to say their vespers there, The altar's rails are wrenched apart, with rubble littered o'er. The sacred, broken sanctuary lamp lies smashed upon the floor; And mute upon the crucifix He looks upon it all.

The great white Christ, the snarrel-scourged—upon the cast-iron wall.

And when at night on sentry-go, with danger keeping tryst, I see upon the crucifix the blood stained form of Christ Defiled and maimed, the merciful on vigil all the time. Pitying His children's wrath, their passion and their crime. Mute, mute He hangs upon His Cross, the symbols of His pain, And as men scourged Him long ago, they scourge Him once again— There in the lonely war-lit night to Christ the Lord I call. "Forgive the ones who work Thee harm! O Lord, forgive us all."

NEW TEACHER OF VOICE AND EXPRESSION LENOIR COLLEGE

Miss Thelma Vesta Grover, reader and soprano soloist, of Auburn, Ind., will be head teacher of voice and expression at Lenoir College the coming session. Miss Grover has studied voice under Miss Caswell of the New England Conservatory, Prof. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and other strong teachers. She studied expression under President Fox on the Capitol School of Oratory, Columbus, Ohio, and was graduated from King's College of Oratory, Pittsburgh, Pa., in which college she has done post-graduate work and teaching. Miss Grover has done extensive and very successful platform work as reader and soprano soloist. She also is strong in piano. She has had good teaching experience and comes to Lenoir College highly recommended.

The success of the department is assured under her capable direction.

EIGHT CASES PARALYSIS REPORTED IN AUGUST

Eight cases of poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis in the state were reported last month to the state board of health. Two of the cases were in Rowan county and there was one case in each of the counties of Alexander, Franklin, Granville, Johnston, Pitt and Sampson.

Infantile paralysis is one of the diseases that has been made reportable by the new epidemiology law. The law went into effect August 1, and communicable diseases are now being reported in North Carolina for the first time.

Eight cases of infantile paralysis reported in one month apparently would indicate the approach of an epidemic, particularly in view of the fact that Virginia is just recovering from a more or less serious epidemic of this disease, but no fear is felt, explains the state board of health, for the fact that eight cases is not an unusually large number for a summer month. Last year there were forty deaths from infantile paralysis in the state which meant that there were a hundred or more cases. August is usually the month having the highest case rate.

In view of the fact that nothing definite as to the spread of infantile paralysis has yet been discovered, the board of health advises that every precaution be taken to prevent further spread of this disease at this time. It especially advises careful nursing, and pains-taking as to all mouth and nose secretions. Isolating the patient is also advised as personal contact is still believed to play a part in the spread of the disease.

AMUSEMENTS

FIRST CHAPTER OF "MYSTERY OF THE DOUBLE CROSS" AT PASTIME MONDAY

One of the principal players in "Mystery of the Double Cross," the new Pathé serial, the first episode of which will be shown at the Pastime theatre Monday September 3rd is Leon Bary, formerly Sarah Bernhardt's leading man, who at the outbreak of the European war fought for seven months in the trenches. This serial features as the heroine, Miss Mollie King, one of the youngest screen stars.

Bary plays the part of Peter Hale, the hero, whose inheritance of his father's millions depends upon his marriage to a girl branded with the mark of the Double Cross. This girl comes into his life when, returning from a European vacation, he receives a wireless telling him of the strange provisions of his father's will. That night, returning unexpectedly to his stateroom, he finds a girl reading the message with a keen interest. Later, during a panic on shipboard, he finds that this same girl is branded with the mark of the Double Cross. She eludes him but later Peter thinks he has found her in Philippa Brewster. Don't fail to see it.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY

An Ambition and a Record

The needs of the South are identical with the needs of the Southern Railway: the growth and success of one means the building of the other.

The Southern Railway asks no favors—no special privilege not accorded to others.

The ambition of the Southern Railway Company is to see that the lines that it owns are of cooperation between the public and the railway, to see that the public and the railway are in the management of railroads which involve the confidence of governmental agencies, to realize the liberality of treatment which will enable it to maintain the additional capital needed for the acquisition of better and more facilities incident to the demand for increased and better service.

To take its place in the busy traffic of the South alongside of the great industries, with no more, but with equal liberties, equal rights and equal opportunity.

"The Southern Serves the South."
