AMUSEMENTS

SPECIAL AT HUB TODAY

Don't forget to see Clara Kimball Young at the Hub today in "The Savage Instinct." This is one of her best pictures.

SPECIAL AT PASTIME TODAY

The special attraction at the Pastime this afternoon and tonight is "The Greatest Power" a five part Metro wonderplay featuring Ethel Barrymore. The following is the story. A thrilling romance of high explosives, ambition and love is the latest picture starring Miss Barrymore. She is engaged in a chemist's laboratory, together with a young man, in finding a commercial solution for extracting exonite, a new explosive. Naturally, since the chemical is the most deadly ever discovered, and the girl wishes to give it to the United States, foreign powers seek to gain possession of its formula. What follows is filled with action and suspense, with many surprising twists in fortune. The feature has been produced lavishly, with a supporting cast including William B. Davidson, Harry S. Northrup and Frank Carter. It is a fitting picture to follow Miss Barrymore's previous Metro successes.

AIDING HOOVER BY CONSERVING FOODS FROM LOSS BY FIRE

GREATEST CO-OPERATION IS PROMISED BY WAREHOUSES, COTTON GINS, GRAIN ELEVATORS, ETC.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters has recently received its first report covering the first three months of the association's campaign toward the prevention of fire which is a part of the conservation campaign in aid of the war under the general direction of Herbert C. Hoover, President Wilson's food supply director. The report cites the fact that President R. M. Bissell, of Hartford, Conn., President of the National Board to start the work wrote letters to the governors of the cotton producing and grain growing states urging their co-operation with the National Board and its affiliated organizations for the safeguarding of warehouses, cotton gins, compresses and grain elevators, all manner of mills storage properties and such works. The strongest co-operation has been received, the report says, from all these sources.

The advisory committee of insurance officials were appointed in different sections of the country to work with state officials on inspections and safeguards. Meetings have been held in almost every state and property owners as well as state officials and insurance men attended. Great interest and hard work have resulted and the special agents of companies in every field have been mobilized for conservation work. The inspectors on this work have been given special authority in the form of a letter or identification card carrying the photograph and signature of the bearer with the proper authorization attached. Inspections have been educational and owners have been very quick to follow suggestions for improvements.

The National Board Committee has been in close contact with the activities of the conservation board under the administration of Mr. Hoover and has prepared a thorough list of elevators with their grading and specifications for fire dangers. In addition to the conservation service the National Board has furnished valuable information to the Council of National Defense in classified lists of factories capable of manufacturing munitions and other war materials.
