BRYAN AND DANIELS

Judging from the special Washington dispatch in the Raleigh News and Observer—which we were unable to disassociate from Secretary Daniels—we had about reached the conclusion that the secretary of the navy was looking for ground on which he could stand in opposition to Homer S. Cummings, Democratic national chairman. Those dispatches said that southern Democrats were none too well pleased with the recognition they had received in the plans for the San Francisco convention next June. Only Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, had received any consideration, it appeared, and there were indications of a rumbling that was bound to increase in volume as the time for the national convention drew near.

And following this came the Associated Press with the rather sensational announcement that Secretary Daniels had taken a stand against Mr. Bryan in the controversy with Chairman Cummings over his presence at a dinner given Governor Edwards of New Jersey. As the Record pointed out yesterday, Mr. Cummings could not have declined this invitation without giving offense and probably losing thousands of votes for the party he represents. He did not have to endorse the New Jersey governor any more than he would have to endorse Secretary McAdoo or Mr. Hoover—and we perked up again when Mr. Daniels mentioned this last name.

There are a great many sincere men in the United States who do not believe in prohibition. There used to be thousands of them in North Carolina who did not believe in it, and the way to treat these people is to show them that the outlawing of liquor is best for the country. Every thinking man has been shown in North Carolina. We may expect some dissatisfaction for some time to come. Even the best of us, including Mr. Bryan, have our faults.

The Republican party will have the same troubles as those confronting the Democrats, but the rank and file must insist that only men who will stand for law and order are named as candidates for president and other offices.

But we have digressed. Politics grows interesting when Mr. Daniels takes issue with his closest political friend. The breach that must have been made when Mr. Bryan retired from the cabinet has widened, and these old cronies are parting.

And Mr. Daniels mentions Herbert Hoover, who is a man of the people and not of the parties.

Allen Swaim, a 16-year-old student at Buies Creek Academy, went into the kitchen of Mrs. G. S. Ferrell at Buies Creek, picked up a pistol that Mrs. Ferrell had near-by for protection, snapped it a few times and then inserted some cartridges. Lillian Ferrell, 12 years old, entered the room about that time and also picked up the pistol and snapped it at the young man. She did not know it was loaded. The remains of the young fellow were carried to Winston-Salem for burial. The father of the girl drove a big automobile into a car in which students of the school were accompanying the remains of the dead lad to Raleigh. Fortunately none of the occupants were seriously injured.

We readily conclude that the benefits of invention and discovery should be universal, but insist that a nation must give the world nothing to promote its peace.

THEY CAN HAVE HELP

The same questions that are interesting the Hickory Post of the American Legion concern the Newton post—the matter of a place where the former service men may hold forth during their leisure hours to the enjoyment and profit of themselves. This is a question, the Record is sure, that concerns every citizen of both places. The two needs are linked together, for it is just as important that the Post at Newton have good quarters of a permanent nature as for the Hickory post. The citizens of both cities are interested.

According to the plans discussed here, the club room to be fitted up would be open to men outside the organization, who of course would be glad to pay higher dues than the members. The object is to furnish an assembly place where members and their friends can enjoy and improve—a down-town home, if you please.

With that idea the Record is in complete accord. Each post might be able to finance the whole thing, but the people generally will not want the young men to be required to do that. Good citizens want to help. If we can assist in any way to aid these young men, all they need to do is to submit their proposition. As citizens proud of them, we will join hands and put it across.

Old-fashioned winters are gone, we learn indirectly from the New York Times through the Raleigh Times. If that be so, then glory be. It was an old-fashioned winter we had in 1917-18 and it was the longest we ever knew. It does seem, however, as if the old-fashioned winters had disappeared, but again who remembers anything but the high spots, dark spots or white spots of the past? It is easy to recall the winter of '93—though it will be a hard job for Os Coffin—and it is not hard for us to recall some winters when we, trying to run a morning newspaper, used to chase along the trolley lines in an attempt to find the break in the snow-covered wire that furnished the juice for turning the press. The weather hasn't changed much. It is no trouble in recognizing an old-fashioned summer, and when another cycle blows around the corner, we'll have a series of winters that will recall the sleigh-bells and bring them out again.

Governor Edwards also takes a rap at Mr. Bryan and hits as hard as the commoner. Edwards declares that Bryan was driven to silence during the war by the menacing attitude of the country's manly god. We had preferred to think that Mr. Bryan was silent from better motives.

Automobiles took toll of 106 people in North Carolina last year, according to the state board of health. In 1918 the number of deaths was 105. Persyth led in the number of victims last year with 12, Mecklenburg followed with 10 and Wake was third with seven.

The Spanish-American war, a tiny affair, had its lessons, but they were not many compared to this last. The lesson, one would think, is to be prepared to get out with reputation lost.

The senators, as Mr. Taft observed, will have to work out a compromise on the peace treaty. That is their job and the public must see that they do it.

Great is the wireless. Another snip in which North Carolina was peculiarly interested has made port because of Marconi.

"A SPLENDID TONIC"
Says Hixson Lady Who, On Doctor's Advice, Took Cardui And Is Now Well.
Hixson, Tenn.—"About 10 years ago I was..." says Mrs. J. B. Gadd, of this place. "I suffered with a pain in my left side, could not sleep at night with this pain, always in the left side..."
My doctor told me to use Cardui. I took one bottle, which helped me and after my baby came, I was stronger and better, but the pain was still there.
I at first let it go, but began to get weak and in a run-down condition, so I decided to try some more Cardui, which I did.
This last Cardui which I took made me much better, in fact, cured me. I have been a number of years, still have no return of this trouble.
I feel it was Cardui that cured me, and I recommend it as a splendid female tonic."
Don't allow yourself to become weak and run-down from womanly troubles. Take Cardui. It should surely help you, as it has so many thousands of other women in the past 47 years. Headache, backache, sideache, nervousness, sleeplessness, tired-out feeling, are all signs of womanly trouble. Other women get relief by taking Cardui. Why not you? All druggists.

Upholding Cotton
In the past eleven years the cotton crops of the South sold for $13,236,000,000.
They should have brought $25,000,000,000!
If the cotton growers had banded together eleven years ago—as they have now in the America Cotton Association—they would have driven out the poverty, the privations that have been forced upon them by low prices and the domination of speculators who have profited at their expense.
But, thanks to the American Cotton Association, cotton is at it for years.
Today the South is a unit—farmers, merchants, bankers—last free from economic and speculative slavery that has been—in upholding cotton for the good of all.
This bank is for the cotton grower first, last and all the time. Whatever it can do to boost the prosperity of the cotton grower it will do. And it believes that economic freedom for the South is coming through the American Cotton Association.
This Bank will be glad to furnish money to any of our farmers who wish to hold cotton or other farm products, on Warehouse Receipts or personal endorsement.
