WATCH THE DEMAGOGUE

The short address that General Pershing delivered from the rear of his private car when his train stopped in Hickory a few weeks ago ought to recur every now and then to those who heard it.

His message should be considered from now until the second day of November, because the demagogue will be abroad in the land and he will howl and bawl in an effort to win votes.

These men who run for office, however, should make an honest effort to instruct the people. They should discuss the questions of government, outline their party's position, give a fair presentation of the other side's position, and argue from these premises.

The demagogue on general principles, should receive no consideration at the hands of sensible folk.

SECOND PHASE WORSE

The loosening of the general strike in Germany by the Ebert government in an effort to paralyze the military party may after all prove more harmful to the country than a monarchist dictatorship could have done.

Probably the allies can do little to improve the situation, for the side they take will inevitably be the unpopular side, but it may become necessary to join forces with the moderates and reactionaries-- who also might reunite in face of great danger--and put down the counter-revolt.

We might score conditions in Germany as a victory for those who have opposed ratification of the peace treaty, because had the treaty been put into effect ten months ago the moderating influence of America and England would have been felt in the councils of the allies and the Germans would have begun to know that they were to be accepted as members of civilized society.

But we shall probably see several thousand lives lost by reason of failure of the American senate to act. We can hope that the liberals in Germany will get the upper hand, but the chances do not appear very favorable.

Black and tan Republicans in Virginia threaten to do the harm that this element has attempted to do in other southern states--where, happily, it failed--and the worse feature is that the Republican national convention might offer comfort to the rump delegates, if a state convention should be held, as planned.

The national Republican convention would make a bold stroke in nominating Judge Pritchard for vice-president. He would come very near swinging the presidential electors to the Republican column, a power that no other Republican has.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts is prompt to disclaim any intention of running for president. It is the silliest talk we have ever heard senator.

CAPT. A. E. BURNS DEAD AT HIS ASHBORO HOME

High Point, March 19.--News of the death at Ashboro Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock of Capt. A. E. Burns was received in the city yesterday.

Several weeks ago he was taken ill with influenza, the disease effecting an already weak heart. The end is said to have come rather suddenly, as the conductor was preparing to start on his run to High Point.

Captain Burns was known by a majority of those who travel over the Ashboro branch. He at all times displayed remarkable fidelity to duty and not only held the confidence of railroad officials, but was held in high esteem by the traveling public.

In addition to his widow, Captain Burns is survived by three children, James, Alexander and Katherine Burns three brothers, Robert and George Burns of High Point and B. E. Burns of Guilford county; and three sisters, Mrs. J. O. Hull and Mrs. J. W. Elliott of Hickory.

"LOVE IS INSANITY," IS DECLARATION OF COURT

New York, March 17.--The budding romance of Charles Eifert, reputed to be a wealthy fish dealer, was frost bitten in Magistrate Sweetzer's court yesterday after Miss Ethel Cozzens, blonde and comely, recited the persistence with which she has been wooed through the medium of an unromantic dummy waiter.

Every morning, with unbroken regularity, she told the court, her unwelcome suitor took advantage of the lulls in visits of ice man and milk man, to shower her with love missives of no mean length.

Eifert blushing admitted he was "madly in love" with the young woman from the first moment he saw her in the street. He was startled when the magistrate gave orders to summon an ambulance to take him to Bellevue hospital's observation ward.
