The circus still makes its appeal to the old and young—especially the young, judging by the number of children in the tent yesterday afternoon.

There are a good many public speaking that should be held in the proposed municipal auditorium. Congressman Ellsworth of Minnesota will speak tonight on the public square and Mr. Walter Murphy of Salisbury will speak tomorrow night.

SHOULD GET FACTS

Partisans are quite apt to place wrong interpretations on anything political, and the safe thing for honest men and women to do is to study issues as they are presented by men and women who ask for nothing and want nothing.

On the greatest of all issues, therefore, Catawba county people, if they are interested, should read the expressions of independent thinkers and be guided by them.

COLLIER'S AND THE LEAGUE

Under the caption of "The Personal Equation," Collier's Weekly for September 25 tells of the effort President Wilson made in Paris to have the peace treaty made more moderate and to obtain the adoption of the league of nations.

Collier's relates discussion of the terms of the peace treaty between Andrew Bonar Law, British leader in parliament, and George Barnes, minister without portfolio. They agreed that the financial terms were so severe that they would mean another war.

Clemenceau agreed with President Wilson, Lloyd George and Bonar Law, but he declared he could not get the treaty ratified by the French parliament if the terms were any less severe. Building a league of nations, Collier's points out, was a herculean task, and it wonders "whether Senator Harding had any conception of the size of the task when he proposed in August to build another league of nations to supplant the one thrown into the senate cockpit by the president a year ago."

"Has Senator Harding any good reason to believe the nations will march out of one ark of the covenant and into the other without hesitation and without debate?" asks Collier's. "We know that this question has arisen in the minds of many Republicans. We hope before this copy of Collier's has reached Senator Harding he will have erased the ominous interrogation point now upraised in the minds of Republicans who want an enduring peace. It will be hard for a lot of Republicans to vote until they can answer this question satisfactorily."

Mr. D. E. Whitener is doing some very fine work as director of the agricultural building for the fair and he is hustling every day. Farmers who have entries to be placed should notify him promptly.

Catawba cotton planters will meet in the court house at Newton Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the purpose of taking action on the question of holding for better prices. This crop was made with high priced else and the farmers are offered labor and high priced everything about 15 cents less a pound for it than they got for last year's production.

Mrs. Ada Lattimore has returned to her home in Maiden, after visiting her sister, Mrs. Alice Harbin and Brother, Mr. D. M. Boyd.

Mr. J. A. Jenkins of Chester, S. C. who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Davis, left today. He was accompanied by his niece, Miss Modelle Davis.

THINK FOR YOURSELF

The following is a paragraph from Informal Paragraphs in Lutheran Survey, W. H. Greever:
These times, call for a special kind of reading. It has never been possible, and certainly is not possible now for a man to be a good citizen if he depends chiefly for his information upon newspaper headlines.

They may do for him what is their legitimate service, viz., to direct his attention to the most important events. What follows them may give him tentative information which he can take for nothing else than a basis for investigation and verification. Next he should go to the editorial pages of the newspapers. There he finds an interpretation which, at best, is suggestive and tentative. From the editorial pages of the newspapers he should go to journals of thought—weeklies and monthlies—and from them to books—current and standard—and on every subject of importance he should pursue his study to the encyclopedias and histories, coming finally to his judgment of principles involved through the application of the teachings of the Bible. If anyone objects that a man who has much work to do has no time for such thorough study, he should be reminded that "haste makes waste," and that if his time is limited, it only makes it all the more necessary that he should discriminate and choose a few of the most vital subjects to which he will give his attention. If any man is too busy to give such thorough study to a limited number of the most vital questions of the day, he is selfishly busy, and instead of justifying himself for his failure to discharge this duty, he only offers the ground for his own condemnation. It sometimes seems to be almost a waste of breath to speak along this line but anyone who is acquainted with the current and the course of events and the general state of the public mind, knows that there is nothing in our present life more vitally essential.
