"THE REAL ISSUE"

It is well understood in political circles that Senator Harding is in no sense a leader—incapable of initiative, and that G. O. P. Senators did not want a real President at Washington.

The average citizen knew the government was spending and lending like water during the war, and that day must come—Death and taxes. This spending was done by business men of all political parties who were called to Washington, and were given powers of management.

Leading bankers were drawn upon for directing expenditures. If anything the Republicans were more constant in their cry for "Preparedness." These extravagant schemes in the war originated and were pushed by prominent men of both parties. They were seeking to win the war, just as above everything. It would be foolish to deny this. The truth is: the war was a national matter and there was little partisan debate in congress during its whole course.

As for the period since the war, the Republican congress did not seek to substitute a better form of income and excess profit taxation. Responsibility is on them if any changes should have been made during two years of peace. President Wilson has not vetoed anything in that line.

The reductions in appropriations of which so much is now made, were made more than the usual pruning down through which appropriations bills always pass. Particularly so in a transition from war to peace, making preliminary figures uncertain. There is absolutely no basis upon which the Republicans can rest the claim of economy or constructive statesmanship during the last two years while in control of the National congress.

The "red herring" furnished by "hate of Wilson" will hardly divert the public from the trail of the Republican senate. For two years there has been a presidential campaign in progress in the United States senate and that too at a time when peace was yet to be won.

Senator Harding after a "good deal of backing and filling" now comes out with a definite statement. It is not, says he, of the league treaty. "Interpretation but rejection that I am presenting." If Cox stood on Harding's present league platform, party Democrats in favor of the league would probably vote for him—but if perfectly honest with themselves, they could not. The partisan Republican favoring the league is now confronting

MR. MORRISON MAKES PUBLIC A STATEMENT

Lincolnton, Oct. 14.—A statement which was included in his speech to the voters of Lincoln county here last afternoon was made by Cameron Morrison Democratic candidate for governor and addressed to the voters of North Carolina touching upon the taxation issue in the present campaign.

Mr. Morrison was moved to make the statement, he said by the continued and "persistent distortions of the facts concerning revaluation being made broadcast by John J. Parker," his Republican opponent. In his statement Mr. Morrison said: "It is true that the Democrats act and that it was executed or administered by Democrats and Republican appraisers acting together in every county in the state. But the important question is the final system to be adopted for the state. The same general assembly which enacted the revaluation bill paved the way for a modern and up to date system of taxation in North Carolina by adopting an amendment to the constitution providing for the levy of an income tax. Mr. Parker is declaring everywhere that he favors the new system aimed at by the Democratic party but very shrewdly denying to the Democratic party credit for having proposed it before he ever advocated the income tax basis and he is seeking to create the impression that I do not stand for a new system based upon the income tax. He tells the people that revaluation is mine and the Democratic party's complete system. I have been urging the adoption of the constitutional amendment upon the subject of income tax everywhere and yet even some of the Democratic papers are unwittingly aiding Mr. Parker in creating the impression that the Democratic party stands only for the revaluation act by representing me as 'speaking for revaluation.' I am defending the revaluation bill as administered by sworn Republicans and Democrats but, at the same time, I most earnestly urge and favor the new system as Mr. Parker claims he does."

DELIGHTFUL BANQUET TENDERED DAUGHTERS

New Bern, Oct. 14.—Following a delightful banquet in the reception rooms of the Centenary Methodist church Tuesday night, tendered by the New Bern chamber of commerce which formally opened the convention "these old days" of the North Carolina division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, got under way this morning with a business session, followed in the afternoon by a historian's conference and an automobile ride about the city and environs.

The session was presided over by Mrs. Felix Harvey, of Kinston, president of the division. A number of important matters, including reports of committees were disposed of following which the delegates were the guests of the Woman's club at a delightful luncheon. The luncheon was in the nature of a love feast, and was informal.

Miss Lewery Shuford, of Gastonia presided at the historian's conference. From 2:30 to 4:30 another business session was held, followed by the trip about the city. Both of the business sessions were routine in character.

The evening was designated as children's evening and a pleasing program was presented at the high school auditorium. This entire program was conducted by the children themselves the Children of the Confederacy taking a prominent part.

A fitting climax of the day, was the reception tendered the Daughters by the members of the Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Josephus Daniels and Mrs. Thomas W. Bickett were the guests of honor.

The delegates expressed themselves as very much pleased with their en-

Winston-Salem, N.C.
Monday

Dear Petey:-

Get you a house and let you'd stay in W-S a month if you ever got to know folks here like I have. Between business and Reynolds factories and a bully time—well, my date book has been bubbling over! And, I'm still running into facts that would stagger even your imagination, old football, with all your kick!

Pete, take it straight from government figures direct to you, that every work day in the week R.D. Reynolds Tobacco Co. buys from our "Uncle Sam" enough revenue stamps to pay for a duplicate of the handsome new Winston-Salem post office building! Ever hear of such a thing?

And, if you want to get an eye-full of an army of more than 15,000 people, be down in the Reynolds factory district when the whistles blow! Never saw such a cigarette firing up time in my life! Looks like more folks than you ever saw at a Princeton-Yale football game!

Pete, every time you light a Camel in the future, call back on what I've slipped you about Camels—absolutely, the greatest cigarette at any price—for quality, for refreshing flavor, for mellow mild body, for freedom from any unpleasant cigarette aftertaste or odor! It's worth the busiest smoker's time to compare Camels with any cigarette in the world! Camels are simply a revelation! You know that!

I'll spell you a lot more just as quick as I get a whack at you across the dinner table!

I'll open my eyes in Atlanta tomorrow! In the meantime here's a wad of best wishes I have in stock!

Yours Shorty.

Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Kutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many dollars. . . . I don't see how any family can hardly go without it. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it."
