

WATCH YOUR LABEL
Record subscribers should renew at least five days before their subscriptions expire.

HICKORY DAILY RECORD

ESTABLISHED SEPTEMBER 11, 1915

HICKORY, N. C.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 4, 1922

WEATHER
Rain (light)
Tuesday, warmer than Cold in Wednesday.

TO DIVIDE STATE KIWANIS URGE INTO INCOME DISTRICTS CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

(By MAN SCHERETH)

Raleigh, Jan. 4.—Commissioner of Revenue A. D. Watts will today divide the state into 16 tax districts so that his deputy commissioners may begin work at once on the collection of the 1921 income inheritance and schedule D taxes levied by the state division of the state to be made at once by the commissioners. He announces, so there will be no delay in putting the division deputies in the field, nine collections having been named yesterday. Others will be appointed soon and they will come to Raleigh for instructions. Under the plan mapped out by Commissioner Watts each deputy will be allotted a population of approximately 1,000,000 and this indicates that the appointments just made will require lots of work.

The state is going to collect its taxes with the sixteen deputies which is less than one-sixth the number of field men the Federal government detailed in North Carolina for the collection of federal taxes. General deputies will be at R. C. Cole, of Franklin county, in the east and C. H. Hayes, of Surry county in the west. Those men will direct the work of the division deputies under the commission of revenue. Mr. Coffie and Mr. Haynes will draw salaries of $2,000 and the division deputies $2,500 yearly. A. S. Ogle of Alleghany county has been appointed chief of the revenue department and the following are the division deputies named yesterday:

R. F. Tuttle, Chowan County; John C. Thomas, Jr., Craven County; George H. Bellamy, New Hanover County; W. C. Hammond, Randolph County; J. M. Cunningham, Guilford County; N. L. Crawford, Forsyth County; John Morrison, Richmond County; G. E. Gardner, Yancey County; M. L. Reed, Madison County.

RALEIGH MURDER MYSTERY AIRED

STATE WILL SELL SOME MORE BONDS

Raleigh, Jan. 4.—The council of state meets Thursday at the office of Senator R. B. Lucy to consider the bill to raise $467,000 the two additional million bonds.

One of the 16th subcommittee was asked if the amount of the 20th million was off or there were more members who put in their 15 per cent.

Treasurer Enzy has not decided what recommendations he will make to the council but he thinks that the entire issue ought to be voted for four and three-quarters or even less, or more, instead of two or three different figures. All of the American Trust company of Charlotte for the entire amount which was thought would be required last week when the bill was formally opened has not yet voted.

BUDGET REDUCED BY COMMITTEE OF HOUSE

By the Associated Press.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Despite the urgent request of administration officials for proper consideration of the budget bill the treasury department's appropriation bill reported today by the house appropriations committee disclosed a cut of approximately 9 per cent. The measure is the first of the regular supply provided in the new system of cutting money.

Enforcement of prohibition $9,200,000 is recommended—$750,000 less than was required—but more than was available last year.

The appropriation chairman Madson said would provide for approximately 75 per cent less persons than the number requested.

For repairs at four hospitals housing veterans, the appropriations committee included Osgood N. C., $14,000.

REHEARSALS UNDER WAY

The rehearsals for the Rotary minstrel which will be given this month are well under way and last night the circle and band men went through one of the best practices yet had. The minstrel promises to be a splendid drawing card and one of the best entertainments of the season.

The rehearsal scheduled for Thursday night has been postponed until Friday night. All those who are to take part are urged to bear the change of date in mind.

WILEY CANDY COMPANY HAS FIRE

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 4.—Fire of undetermined origin practically destroyed the three story brick building early this morning. The Wiley Candy Company early this morning found Hogan and his wife and other children escaped.

TWO GIRLS KILLED BY STILL EXPLOSION

By the Associated Press.

Cairo, Ill., Jan. 4.—Marie Hogan, 17 years old, and Gladys Hogan, nine, sisters were burned to death in a fire today which police attributed to Dennis E. Hogan, father of the girls, was destroyed. The still and three jugs of moonshine liquor were no longer. The man killed, he said, was an Italian from New York. Hogan declared to the best of his

SOLDIERS WERE HANGED WITH NOOSSES ON NECKS

Witness at Tom Watson's Hearing Declares He Found Three Black Caps Over Faces of Bodies He Took Up—Only One Clash During Long Session Today

By the Associated Press.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Rufus H. Hubbard of New York, employed by the American graves registration service, told a Senate committee today that on three bodies disinterred when Emmett Cochran of Savannah, Ga., was asked by the chairman what he was doing here.

"Nothing. I am here to answer charges by Senator Watson," he said.

"Senator Watson has made no charges," the Georgia senator retorted. "It looks like witness should confine himself to evidence."

Cochran was finally permitted to read a letter from Major Hayward in which his transfer to another unit was explained.

Cochran testified that he had been tried by court martial and acquitted of shooting a negro soldier.

Explaining the circumstances Cochran, a lieutenant, said he had been ordered to a town where disturbances were in progress.

A negro in his command, he said, rushed up and seized his hand. Ordered to let go, he said, the negro jerked out his pistol, but the officer shot him first. Cochran was tried by court martial and unanimously acquitted, it being shown that the killing was unavoidable.

Describing his work in the field as assistant embalmer, Hubbard went into great detail while Chairman Branchedeau sought to obtain what he knew.

"You have written a long letter, saying real men in your own way want you know about it," Chairman Branchedeau asked.

"While at a cemetery in France helping to get the bodies ready for shipment home," the witness said, "I saw three bodies with black caps over their faces. I think two were negroes and one a white man. I think it was a disgrace that the bodies went to the parents without the black caps being removed."

The witness gave the names of two others who were at the cemetery with him.

"There was too much hurry in the registration," he said, "and many mistakes were made."

"There were no tags on the bodies," Senator Overman asked.

"I did not see any."

"Were bodies not properly identified before being sent home?" Senator Branchedeau asked.

"They were," Hubbard replied.

Many women in the crowded committee room who lost sons overseas leaned forward and listened attentively to Hubbard's recital some in tears.

"Do you know that those three men were executed in accordance with law?" he was asked.

"I do not."

"Have you any evidence that men were executed without trial?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know anything of cruelty of your own personal knowledge?"

"It developed that what he wanted to tell was hearsay."

"Strike it out, then," said the chairman.

Don L. Jacobson, formerly of New Haven, Conn., was called next. He testified he knew nothing of alleged illegal hangings, and then told how he had put the noose around the neck of a negro court-martialed. After the hanging he said the noose was left around the neck.

It was customary to bury a man hanged with the rope and black cap in place, he said.

Pols Golden, a young farmer of Nunn, Ariz., who was living in Georgia when drafted and sent overseas was questioned regarding a letter he sent to Senator Watson regarding the shooting of a man by his officer.

Some men, he said were ordered to remain under cover and one man, disobeying the orders was shot. There was a battle going on and it was necessary to conceal the location of the force.

Golden then testified he saw an officer shoot a private in the Arizona hills. The man killed, he said, was an Italian from New York. Golden declared to the best of his knowledge the officer killed the man because he was the last of the platoon and failed to report.

The first stage of the day started when Emmett Cochran of Savannah, Ga., was asked by the chairman what he was doing here.

"Nothing. I am here to answer charges by Senator Watson," he said.

"Senator Watson has made no charges," the Georgia senator retorted.

"It looks like witness should confine himself to evidence."

Cochran was finally permitted to read a letter from Major Hayward in which his transfer to another unit was explained.

Cochran testified that he had been tried by court martial and acquitted of shooting a negro soldier.

Explaining the circumstances Cochran, a lieutenant, said he had been ordered to a town where disturbances were in progress.

A negro in his command, he said, rushed up and seized his hand. Ordered to let go, he said, the negro jerked out his pistol, but the officer shot him first. Cochran was tried by court martial and unanimously acquitted, it being shown that the killing was unavoidable.

Describing his work in the field as assistant embalmer, Hubbard went into great detail while Chairman Branchedeau sought to obtain what he knew.

"You have written a long letter, saying real men in your own way want you know about it," Chairman Branchedeau asked.

"While at a cemetery in France helping to get the bodies ready for shipment home," the witness said, "I saw three bodies with black caps over their faces. I think two were negroes and one a white man. I think it was a disgrace that the bodies went to the parents without the black caps being removed."

The witness gave the names of two others who were at the cemetery with him.

"There was too much hurry in the registration," he said, "and many mistakes were made."

"There were no tags on the bodies," Senator Overman asked.

"I did not see any."

"Were bodies not properly identified before being sent home?" Senator Branchedeau asked.

"They were," Hubbard replied.

Many women in the crowded committee room who lost sons overseas leaned forward and listened attentively to Hubbard's recital some in tears.

"Do you know that those three men were executed in accordance with law?" he was asked.

"I do not."

"Have you any evidence that men were executed without trial?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know anything of cruelty of your own personal knowledge?"

"It developed that what he wanted to tell was hearsay."

"Strike it out, then," said the chairman.

Don L. Jacobson, formerly of New Haven, Conn., was called next. He testified he knew nothing of alleged illegal hangings, and then told how he had put the noose around the neck of a negro court-martialed. After the hanging he said the noose was left around the neck.

It was customary to bury a man hanged with the rope and black cap in place, he said.

Pols Golden, a young farmer of Nunn, Ariz., who was living in Georgia when drafted and sent overseas was questioned regarding a letter he sent to Senator Watson regarding the shooting of a man by his officer.

Some men, he said were ordered to remain under cover and one man, disobeying the orders was shot. There was a battle going on and it was necessary to conceal the location of the force.

Golden then testified he saw an officer shoot a private in the Arizona hills. The man killed, he said, was an Italian from New York. Golden declared to the best of his knowledge the officer killed the man because he was the last of the platoon and failed to report.

The first stage of the day started when Emmett Cochran of Savannah, Ga., was asked by the chairman what he was doing here.

"Nothing. I am here to answer charges by Senator Watson," he said.

"Senator Watson has made no charges," the Georgia senator retorted.

"It looks like witness should confine himself to evidence."

Cochran was finally permitted to read a letter from Major Hayward in which his transfer to another unit was explained.

Describing his work in the field as assistant embalmer, Hubbard went into great detail while Chairman Branchedeau sought to obtain what he knew.

"You have written a long letter, saying real men in your own way want you know about it," Chairman Branchedeau asked.

"While at a cemetery in France helping to get the bodies ready for shipment home," the witness said, "I saw three bodies with black caps over their faces. I think two were negroes and one a white man. I think it was a disgrace that the bodies went to the parents without the black caps being removed."

The witness gave the names of two others who were at the cemetery with him.

"There was too much hurry in the registration," he said, "and many mistakes were made."

"There were no tags on the bodies," Senator Overman asked.

"I did not see any."

"Were bodies not properly identified before being sent home?" Senator Branchedeau asked.

"They were," Hubbard replied.

Many women in the crowded committee room who lost sons overseas leaned forward and listened attentively to Hubbard's recital some in tears.

"Do you know that those three men were executed in accordance with law?" he was asked.

"I do not."

"Have you any evidence that men were executed without trial?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know anything of cruelty of your own personal knowledge?"

"It developed that what he wanted to tell was hearsay."

"Strike it out, then," said the chairman.

Don L. Jacobson, formerly of New Haven, Conn., was called next. He testified he knew nothing of alleged illegal hangings, and then told how he had put the noose around the neck of a negro court-martialed. After the hanging he said the noose was left around the neck.

It was customary to bury a man hanged with the rope and black cap in place, he said.

Pols Golden, a young farmer of Nunn, Ariz., who was living in Georgia when drafted and sent overseas was questioned regarding a letter he sent to Senator Watson regarding the shooting of a man by his officer.

Some men, he said were ordered to remain under cover and one man, disobeying the orders was shot. There was a battle going on and it was necessary to conceal the location of the force.

Golden then testified he saw an officer shoot a private in the Arizona hills. The man killed, he said, was an Italian from New York. Golden declared to the best of his knowledge the officer killed the man because he was the last of the platoon and failed to report.

The first stage of the day started when Emmett Cochran of Savannah, Ga., was asked by the chairman what he was doing here.

"Nothing. I am here to answer charges by Senator Watson," he said.

"Senator Watson has made no charges," the Georgia senator retorted.

"It looks like witness should confine himself to evidence."

Cochran was finally permitted to read a letter from Major Hayward in which his transfer to another unit was explained.

Describing his work in the field as assistant embalmer, Hubbard went into great detail while Chairman Branchedeau sought to obtain what he knew.

"You have written a long letter, saying real men in your own way want you know about it," Chairman Branchedeau asked.

"While at a cemetery in France helping to get the bodies ready for shipment home," the witness said, "I saw three bodies with black caps over their faces. I think two were negroes and one a white man. I think it was a disgrace that the bodies went to the parents without the black caps being removed."

The witness gave the names of two others who were at the cemetery with him.

"There was too much hurry in the registration," he said, "and many mistakes were made."