NEED OF TARIFF BOARD

There came to the Record's desk yesterday a pamphlet, "Take the Tariff Out of Politics," published by the preliminary organization committee for an American non-partisan scientific tariff, which ought to receive careful consideration from those who are interested in the prosperity of the United States.

In the pamphlet, which is edited by Julius Rorstman, a manufacturer of Passaic, N. J., are these two patent facts:

(a) That the tariff on which the social and economic structure and the entire future prosperity of the country are absolutely dependent, is a matter of constant political dispute; and that the tariff theory on which the nation's economic stability must be based, varies according to the political party in power.

(b) That whatever measure is finally adopted by either party is passed under the pressure of political expediency and of special interests. Definite and expert data on material and production and conversion costs that are the fundamentals on which any equitable tariff must rest are neither properly collected nor presented.

European governments which levy tariffs have a commission which studies the question and is not influenced by politics. It is said that in France, where there are more political upheavals than in any other well governed country, the tariff is never an issue. The tariff could be eliminated from politics in the United States to great advantage to all classes.

Theodore Tiller, for the past four years Washington correspondent of the Greensboro News, has severed his connection with the Greensboro paper and W. A. Hildebrand, former North Carolina newspaper publisher and Washington correspondent, will take up his old duties as news dispenser from the capital.

Arthur Coleman, captain of the British schooner, Message of Peace, which came into North Carolina waters last winter with a message of liquor, has drawn six months in Judge Henry Groves Connor's court at New Bern. Coleman has appealed and his bond was expected to be furnished today.

Score one for Billy Sunday. It was a Hickory boy fallen from the teachings of good parents who heard the noted evangelist in Spartanburg, was convicted of his sins and has returned to the path of rectitude. Many friends of the young man never knew of his misfortune until he voluntarily told them of it, at the same time bringing a message that cheered.

Mrs. N. W. Draughan, aged 40, and Miss Janie Anderson, aged 32, were instantly killed and J. J. Bell, driver of the car, escaped death by a narrow margin when a cased machine in which they were riding hit a Southern passenger train at High Point last evening.

There are a good many reasons why former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana should be nominated on the Republican ticket over Harry S. New, for the United States senate, but Beveridge is a progressive, would refuse to stand hitched and would not be as acceptable to the old guard as New.

The United States will not recognize Russia until the soviets put their house in order, says an announcement from Washington. That ought to be a fair enough proposition.

Fayetteville among other things has outlawed hogpens. That has been done here, but there is a suggestion every now and then that the hogpens have not stayed outlawed.

B. H. Hedgecock, cashier of a High Point Bank, is reported short $40,000 in his accounts. Apparently he made a number of bad loans and in other instances there is no record of the funds. It probably was a case of high living. The bank, however, is in no danger, as the depositors were amply protected.

It speaks a great deal for the self-control of the members of Highland Baptist church that they were able to sit silently while five robed klansmen marched down the aisle and stood in front of the altar. It is not denied that eyes popped, but nobody hollered.

And don't forget the auction sale of thoroughbred Jerseys here Thursday at the fair grounds.

Worry Destroys Working Power

Worry and fear are life destroyers. You cannot get fat, rich or be happy while worry preys on your mind and takes all the joy out of life.

Nine times out of ten lack of money or something money could help to secure is the cause of worry.

A little reserve in the First National Bank will remove one and usually the chief causes of worry.

And it will be safe from burglars and robbers.

Why There Should Be An Electric Range in Every Kitchen

Here is another prize winning letter in the Southern Public Utilities Electric Range Word Contest. The writer is the possessor of an Electric Range and speaks with authority.

There are many reasons why there should be an Electric Range in every kitchen, and the first and foremost reasons are, after having been the happy possessor of an Electric Range for the past eighteen months is the fact, that it conserves and protects a woman's health, cuts the kitchen work down more than half. No heat, smoke, soot, or dirt of any kind, something that cannot be truthfully claimed for any other cooking range, not even the gas range, which does smoke under certain conditions, over which the owner and user has no control. The oven of the Electric range holds and maintains an even heat at all times, assuring the cook that one side of the cake, biscuit or pie, will not burn, while the opposite remains uncooked, as often happens in using any other kind of cooking stove or range.

Owners of Electric Ranges, especially those who cook or supervise their cooking know that I speak truthfully when I say that an Electric range is without one single exception the greatest asset to any home, in its furnishings, that it comes nearer solving the servant problem than any other convenience that is within reach of practically every house wife.

Another very commendable feature of the Electric Range that we never cease to praise is the fact that instead of consuming an hour's time in preparing breakfast, as is always the case when cooking on other stoves and ranges, fifteen or twenty minutes is all the time that is necessary when using an Electric range. Hence the Electric range is one of the greatest time and labor savers of the twentieth century.

An Electric Range will inspire any one to want to learn to cook, especially those who desire to appear neatly dressed at all times, and without a servant, be able to serve the most tempting meals. And to those who would like to have time and strength to engage in other worthwhile things and enjoy life, the Electric Range is the logical answer.

After you have owned and used an Electric Range, you will wonder how you have lived through all the heat, dust and drudgery of the past, sometimes without a servant, but you will not wonder why your daughters, so capable and efficient in other home duties, just were not interested in learning to cook.

Then one of the last but not the least reasons why there should be an Electric Range in every kitchen is the fact, that it is just as economical as wood or coal, or any other fuel, minus the smoke, soot and dust incident to other methods of cooking.

All the good points that can and will be mentioned in this contest will not be sufficient to express the real value to the housewife of the most perfect and wonderful cooking range, the 'Electric'.

Respectfully submitted, MRS. W. L. LONG.
