HICKORY PEOPLE HEAR SPEECH MRS. SHARP

Mrs. Mary Sharp of Greensboro, prominent woman in the Republican party, spoke in the interest of politics and the woman's place in politics at the auditorium last night before a fair sized audience, the intense rain which fell during the early part of the evening cutting her audience down to less than one half.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. R. H. Shuford, Republican candidate for congress from the Ninth district, who had previously been introduced by Mr. W. H. Barkley, chairman of the Republican committee of Hickory township.

Mrs. Sharp is a brilliant woman, an excellent speaker and is well known here, having spoken in Hickory several years ago while a candidate for a public office. Mr. Shuford introduced her as a woman who has made her own place in the Republican party in North Carolina.

The first of Mrs. Settle's speech was devoted mainly to the women's place in politics and she urged the men to bring the women out to the public speaking, now that they have a hand in the vote.

Politics is a fine thing, asserted Mrs. Sharp, and means a great thing although it has sometimes kept bad company. Her main plea was to the Republican party, for the men and women to go to the polls and vote for the men whom they had nominated for office, men in whom they had every reason to believe would uphold the law and order and stand for the things their party stood for.

Mrs. Settle believed that the women's vote would stop all corruption in politics and she urged her hearers not to be a failure in their party, let the Democrats do it. She asked the women to be more vigorous in their city and county government. The county nominees were praised by the speaker and she spoke of the war records of these men and asked the voters to stand squarely behind them. We made great promise to the boys when they went to war and it is now up to the people to uphold their promise. She spoke of candidate Shuford as a man who will stand by his state and by congress. The Republican congress that is now in office was highly praised, especially for their ability to stand the handwriting on the wall when we were about to enter the league of nations. If the United States had entered into the league we would be having just the same wars as the only difference we would be there. She designated the difference among the nations in Europe as quarrelsome neighbors. Should the United States take a hand in the league, it would be the same as a mother leaving her own children to danger while she snatched a neighbor's child from out the streets.

It is not that we do not have an interest in our fellow beings but she did not think we should sacrifice our own for others.

Asking what was going to be one of the outstanding issues in the coming campaign the speaker named tariff, said it sounded like the beating of the drum as the Democrats sent out wailing notes to their voters. She defined the present tariff and laid the blame of the high cost of articles on the importer and merchant and gave figures and statistics to bear out her theory. She gave the cost of high prices following the war as lack of protection of home industries. Our factories had to close for lack of attention and she laid the blame on the fall of prices on agricultural articles to the other party. The Republican party has been the greatest friend the farmer ever had and mentioned the farm loan especially. She also gave the Democratic record during the vote on tariff and declared the senators voted in the interest of their own particular sections and asked where North Carolina Senators Overman and Simmons were when the vote was taken. The Republicans have been saving us for years and years she added.

The tariff is for the dear importer, the dealer and merchant, not the consumer, Mrs. Sharpe declared. Democratic interests are being urged on by the importers. The farmer must be protected. She soared grandly to the defense of tariff, quoted facts and asked the audience not to take her word for it specifically but to look up the records.

America for America and America for the world without crippling her own, said Mrs. Sharpe. Never has an administration fulfilled its promise as has the present one fulfilled all its promises made to its party. You can take your choice she said. She could show the platform and side by side with it she could show that all promises had been fulfilled.

When the present congress came into power, they inherited the messiest mess ever put before any set of people. When the people talk about the republican congress having done nothing said Mrs. Sharpe, just tell them that they are untangling the snarls the previous Democratic congress made. It must be untangled before they can set to work and accomplish anything. Nobody stood stronger behind the government, not the president, during the war than did the Republicans, they fought beside the Democrats and it was not either party alone that won the war but both of them. The speaker drew a good laugh when she said we would have been in war anyway even if President Wilson had kept us out of it.

The educational affairs of the state came in for a good scoring. The Democratic party has had the leadership for about 60 years. The Republicans advocated free texts books and a like advantage to city and country children in schools.

In closing Mrs. Sharpe appealed to her hearers to vote for the Republican party which offers every advantage any government had to offer. It stands on its record of the past. That it has done what it promised to do. In this party is the hope of a future for your children.

Following her address the audience was invited to meet Mrs. Sharpe and she was presented with a corsage of pretty flowers by some of the ladies present.

Horatio, Ark.—"I had nervous spells and awful bad feelings. My right side and my back hurt me all the time and I had been going down in health for six or seven years. For three years I had not been able to do my work without help. I weighed only 95 pounds when my husband's mother persuaded me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I heartily recommend it to all suffering women; as I have gained weight and health. I can do all my work, anything I want to do."—Mrs. JIM REARICK, Horatio, Arkansas.

"OVER THE HILLS"
PASTIME THURSDAY
"Over the Hill," the wonder picture of Broadway, that easily outdistanced every other screen presentation in the matter of a continuous run in New York and is now arousing enthusiasm throughout the country, will be seen here at the Pastime theatre Thursday and Friday this week.

"Over the Hill" is an extraordinary picture. It does not depend upon the eternal triangle for its sustained interest. Nor require mob scenes to bolster up shortcomings in plot. There is something so sweet and wholesome and interesting in the story that the base New Yorker, so particular and discriminating in his choice of theatrical entertainment, saw fit to give it his steady patronage and unqualified enthusiasm for a solid year of its initial run.

Paul H. Sloane adapted the story from Will Carleton's "Farm Ballads" and Harry Millard directed it. William Fox, its producer, has supplied a corps of singularly competent players, headed by Mary Carr, whose portrayal of the Mother has made her famous.

Special music at the evening performance by Mrs. Hatcher.
