CRIME AND PLAY DISCUSSED BY SHUFORD

outbreak of crime to the wrong of leisure that I consider it my duty not only to strain every energy to suppress it by the means at my command, but to see if something more cannot be done in a constructive way to prevent it. The work of your organization has been effective in certain districts. Can't it be extended?"

The Community Service people responded on the instant. They were ready with the goods—these "goods" being the simple record of work done by the neighborhoods themselves in the Visitation Valley, Bayview club and Ocean side districts.

A recent statement made by Henry D. Chamberlain, Operating Director of the Chicago Crime Commission, to Eugene T. Lies of Community Service, contains the following:

"In retracing the tortuous path of the youthful criminal it is seldom found that the trial leads back to the playground, the diamond, the athletic field or the community center. In investigating crime, with especial reference to the work conducted by the Chicago Crime Commission, I have been impressed with the fact that a very large percentage of those apprehended have been strangers to the influences exerted by such activities as those mentioned. The young delinquent has, in the majority of instances, grown up in the atmosphere of the saloon, the poolroom and similar hang-outs."

The Presiding Justice of the Children's Court of New York, Franklin Chase Hoyt, said in a recent letter to Mr. Lee that "the national character of the activities of the playground and recreation association of America promises a comprehensive advance that will, in time, I am certain, bear and approve the work your association is doing to help the children of the United States."

Joseph Lee is perhaps the least vigorous fruit. Knowing the value of carefully organized and protected play, I can thoroughly recommend written about man in America today, the least in the public eye. Yet his vision, his hope and his handiwork are reaching just numbers of people, hundreds of cities, towns and industrial communities through the medium of the two organizations. Joseph Lee's ideals, rightfully interpreted, are the hope of the world today. This builder of Community service and the playground and recreation association of America has spent over forty years of his life in unaided public service.

He is Massachusetts born and bred. When he inherited money from his father, Henry Lee, senior partner of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson and Co. Boston (which had been originally established by his great uncle, John Lee, Joseph Lee regarded that money as a public trust fund to be spent not so much on himself and his family, but in behalf of public good when a student at Harvard in the early '80s. He led more than one campaign for civic and municipal improvement in those days, and after he graduated from the Harvard Law school he used his legal equipment solely as a tool to further his program of social work.

That Community Service should come to be a strong national asset just as the Playground and Recreation Association of America is, one of the goals toward which Mr. Lee is working.

Will it point the way for all cities to just such results as the Chief of Police of San Francisco discerned?

TAXIMETER IN MEXICO CITY CUT CAB FARES

Mexico City, Oct. 16.—The rainbow is well represented in the veritable flood of taxicabs that has descended on the capital during the past few weeks.

Displacing the small cars which hitherto have been the only means of motor transportation, one may now ride in a taxi of almost any hue—yellow, blue, white, brown, green and variegated. The original colored taxicabs were operated by organized companies, but their competition became too great and several chauffeurs met it by painting their cars. The new taxicabs have fare meters, something new in Mexico, and the result has been a general decrease in cab fares.

DR. LITTLE'S HOG

Newton, Nov. 1.—"I have always wanted enough sausage," said Dr. Charley Little of Catawba, "and I never had enough till now. I've got 150 pounds, all from one hog." Way he pronounced it was "haw."

Newton friends from the Catawban man was talking of the dressed incredulity. They wanted evidence. "Well," said Dr. Little, "he was a big-boned Poland China, and two years old. I got the stock from Tennessee. He dressed 840 pounds and was seven feet long. I suppose gross he weighed 1,000 pounds. People at the county fair in Hickory told me there was no hog on exhibition there anything like as big as mine. The hams weighed 96 pounds and are fine. We got around 200 pounds of lard out of him. His tracks are like cow tracks. But I couldn't get him to eat as I wished to. The best I could do was to bring him up to 75 ears of corn a day, with the usual slop."

"Your phone's ringing," somebody bawled to Dr. George Shipp, and he left out, glad to get away. The rest scattered and left Dr. Charley Little most ungraciously alone, he being, as it were, a guest of the town, which is famed for its hospitality to visitors.

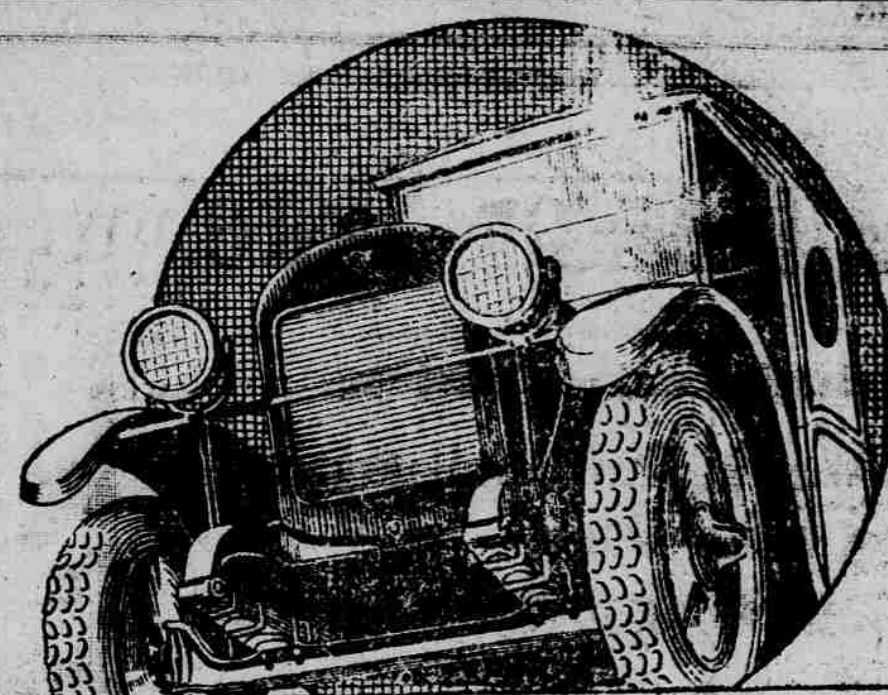

Still, there's no doubt that the doctor had a big butchering at his house this fall. Why, he said the hog's head by itself weighed 83 pounds, and anybody knows that a hog's head is a fair standard to go by. It is always approximately one-tenth the weight of the whole hog, dressed.

"Gee!" exclaimed a fellow on the outside of the little conversational ring; "what wouldn't that haw a-dome if he'd had a chance at still slop."

SPEED WAGON

More than 70,000 Now in Use

Capacity, 500 to 2500 pounds

What One Factor Contributes Most Towards Speed Wagon Suitability?

ECONOMY, says the merchant. "With the Speed Wagon I can deliver 25 pounds or 2500—quicker and cheaper than by any other method."

VERSATILITY, asserts the manufacturer. "For ten-block deliveries or hundred-mile hauls I find the Speed Wagon equally adaptable."

RUGGEDNESS, answers the farmer. "A lighter vehicle couldn't last long on my roads; a heavier truck wouldn't get through."

SPEED, exclaims the interurban bus operator. "For patrons demand a fast running time, especially when I compete or cooperate with railroads."

DEPENDABILITY, vouches the city bus owner. "For Speed Wagon operation enables me to run on strict schedules; delays would kill my profit."

SAFETY, emphasizes the school-wagon driver. "The low-hung power units and sensible distribution of weight over the wheels make it hold the road."

EASY RIDING QUALITIES, remarks the ambulance owner. "It's long springs and pneumatic cord tires give the Speed Wagon passenger-car riding smoothness."

STANDARDIZATION, says the fleet-owner. "Interchangeability of Speed Wagon parts is truly remarkable."

Chassis price $1185 f. o. b. Lansing, plus Federal tax.

Twelve standard bodies to select from.

Today the Speed Wagon is used in 263 different lines of business.

SETZER & RUSSELL

Aint the First Awful!

Jimmy Jones Westinghouse says the first of the month certainly is awful. All the people are busy paying their bills, dodging bill collectors and contracting other bills.

"But you owe me nothing," says Jimmy, "except a few minutes of your time when you are down town paying the other fellows."

Guess my birthday before Saturday as Saturday will be the last day you will have the opportunity of participating in the winning of the electric heater.

My vacation will be over Saturday and then I am going back to my home at the Southern Public Utilities Company and start working again.

Today I'll be at the Hickory Drug Company and tomorrow I'll go down to Setzer and Russells and have some fun with Claude Setzer.

Yours truly,

Jimmy Jones Westinghouse
