Youth, 18, Weds His Grandmother

George Eye, 18-year-old Calais, Me. youth, is still a bachelor although he recently married his own grandmother, Rebecca P. Eye, a widow, of 88. When the officiating minister learned of the relationship he broke up the wedding party by seizing the marriage certificate, annulling the ceremony and returning his fee.

DEVERAUX PLAYERS INSPIRE AUDIENCE

tions and witty lines. In a perfectly balanced cast, equal to every suggestion and shade of expression in the text. William Deveraux, as the "Chocolate soldier," was particularly commendable for his fine individualization of the part and his flawless diction.

At night the company gave an admirable performance of "Romeo and Juliet," showing how much can be done with a world classic even within the limitations of a small stage. The handling of the play was a fine example of the modern method of departing from attempts at crude realism and using instead the far more simple and effective means of symbol against a neutral background. With nothing nearly external or superficial to distract the auditorium can give full attention to incident and word and last night it seemed to some that Shakespeare's well known lines took on new glory. Again full commendation must be given to the whole cast, who even to the minor parts gave evidence of most painstaking and artistic work.

Not to slight any one of the players, it may be said once more of the company's leader, Wm. Deveraux, that his experienced art, to eye, ear and understanding alike, was an unqualified and rare delight.

It is greatly to be wished that towns of high dramatic art would cooperate to encourage the visits of players of this class, for nothing that the "screen does for us in the line of dramatic recreation, much as that can ever take the place educationally or morally of the inspiring forces of living personality and the rightly spoken word.

LOCATED

"Look here!" exclaimed the stranger, as he stumbled into his twentieth puddle. "I thought you said you knew where all the bad places were on this road?"

"Well," replied the native, who had volunteered to guard his through the dark, "we're a-finding them, ain't we?"—Pearson's Weekly (London).

THE FLAW

"There is no particular pleasure in motoring these days."

"Too many cars, eh?"

"No, too few pedestrians."—Kansas City Star.
