It is one of life's little paradoxes that "the unspeakable Turk" is today causing more talk than anybody in the world.

STATE CAMPAIGN WILL COMBAT THE WEEVIL

Closer Co. Ordination of County Home and Farm Demonstration Work Planned.

Raleigh, Dec. 11.—A closer co-ordination of county home and farm demonstration work in the county, a "definite county-wide program" of work and an intensive drive against the boll weevil in the cotton growing section in North Carolina are three things resulting from the conference of agents now in session at the State college, according to F. H. Jeter, of the institution and the department of agriculture.

"Added to this is the fact that the agents are getting new ideas about improved agriculture, and thought about how to co-operate with the specialists of the experiment station and extension service and a clearer perception of the different lines of work being done by agricultural authorities at headquarters here," he said.

"This has been one of the most important gatherings of county men and women agents in all the twenty years of this particular work in the state according to B. W. Kilgore, of the agricultural extension service. Mr. Kilgore states that he is pleased with the results of the meeting and feels sure that great good will come from it. The agents have threshed out many perplexing questions and have cleared up a number of matters giving them some concern.

"Throughout the entire meeting and conference, however, there has been a harmony of effort, a spirit of service to the farmers of North Carolina and a feeling that the agents can go back to their respective counties with the hearty support of all the agricultural authorities, according to Director Kilgore. Marketing, hog feeding, poultry, gardening, fairs, nutrition studies, club work, boll weevil control, routine office duties have all received attention during the past week and definite ideas worked out as to the best methods of handling them," he said.

Seventy farm demonstration agents and 60 home agents are attending the conference.

CANNOT FURNISH BAIL AND REPRESENT CLIENTS

Durham, Dec. 9.—Lawyers who represented a defendant in a criminal case, were prevented from appearing in superior court, according to a ruling laid down this afternoon by Judge George W. Connor, presiding over the December criminal term of superior court in this county. Judge Connor authorized the clerk to make an entry in his book to this effect and stated that it will apply to cases pending after January 1.

CLEVELAND COUNTY GINS 35,000 BALES OF COTTON

Cleveland county's cotton crop is running far beyond the expectations of the most conservative estimates. There were 25,019 bales ginned in Cleveland from the crop of 1922 prior to December 1st as compared with 24,946 bales ginned prior to the same date last year. These are the official ginning figures gathered by Miles H. Ware special agent of the government. It is the largest crop the county has ever produced and stands the county third in the list among the cotton producing counties in North Carolina. The crop of course is practically gathered, but the next gin report will probably show several hundred bales more. The largest crop the county has produced prior to this time was about 31,770 bales—Cleveland Star.

A TIRELESS LETTER WRITER

Your home paper is really a tireless letter writer, if nothing more. Week after week we prepare this printed letter for those living here and for those who have moved away to some other locality, telling of marriages, births, deaths, the coming and going of people of business, accidents, crops, improvements, meetings and so on. In fact everything of importance and interest. If you should undertake to write a letter to an absent friend every week telling all the news, you should get a faint idea of the task of preparing a newspaper. Some of our townspeople recognize this and take pleasure in giving items of news and also by sending the paper regularly to absent relatives and friends. It helps us and is appreciated.
