THE TROUBLE BREEDER

(By Wickes Wimboldt)

Not long ago a New Jersey warden refused to admit to jail a man who had been sentenced because as a previous inmate he had had a very disturbing influence on the other prisoners.

I have heard lots of trouble breeders and while I have thought jail would be a good place to put them, yet it never occurred to me before that this would not be fair to the other prisoners.

We all know trouble breeders. They are to be found among both sexes and they are one of the greatest menaces to the harmonious relations of mankind. I do not know whether it is a form of insanity or whether it is a weakness or just pure cussedness, but the main object of the trouble breeder is to stir up strife, discord and discontent wherever he or she may be located.

One young woman I have in mind. She is a charming conversationalist. She is good to look at. She has an unfailing good humor. And she is altogether delightful to meet, but look out for her. She is the kind that comes to you and says laughingly, "So and so is the funniest person I ever met in my life. He does get off the funniest things. He just said that when you walk each foot says to the other, 'You let me by this time and I will let you by next time.'"

Then I know a young man. He comes to you as your friend and defender. He is very angry at a certain person who has just said you are so lazy the only reason you are walking around is to save funeral expenses.

Then there is the individual who comes to you wearing a judicial mein and tells you what someone has said about you because he thinks you ought to know it.

Again we have the person who never says anything you can lay hold of but resorts to vague and disturbing suggestions. He says, "I would be careful what I say before her," or "Don't depend upon him too much as a friend."

Then there is the twister who takes some innocent remark of yours and distorts it until you would not recognize it and passes it on to some one who does not speak next time to you meet.

They work in all kinds of ways—these people do. There is the one who comes to you and gets your confidence and who then uses this confidence to spread poison. This person will tell you with the most confidential air what he thinks about all the disagreeable things he picks out in some absent person's character—traits which you know are there. He will ask you if you have noticed them. Perhaps having a pride in your keenness of perception you will admit that you have noticed these things—then he trots away and says you have said to him all the things he said about you.

I tell my acquaintances that when an uncomplimentary remark is repeated to me I consider the repeater is the real insulter. The person who said it originally did not intend me to hear it. He was just blowing off steam. Perhaps he had indigestion and was mad at somebody. He might think a good deal of me and would not hurt my feelings yet on some impulse when I was not present he would repeat out about something I had done he did not like. But he would not have said it to me for any-hing in the world. Not because he was afraid, but because he did not wish to offend me. Therefore I consider the one who carries the tale is the real offender and is the one to whom any resentment should be directed.

Theford's Black-Draught Liver Medicine (Vegetable) Praised by the Head of a Louisiana Family.

Lake Charles, La.—"I don't know what we would have done had we not had Black-Draught. It sure is one of the best medicines made, and am sure the best liver medicine," said Mr. Henry Garrett, of this city.

"My whole family uses it," continued Mr. Garrett. "My wife says she believes she kept off the 'flu' by taking doses of Black-Draught regularly.

"I, myself, use Black-Draught for indigestion, and it is fine. "We used pills and tablets and other laxatives, but they never seemed to do us good, but the Black-Draught sure has, and it has come to our house to stay. We give it to our daughter for headache and torpid liver.

"I am glad to recommend anything that has been the help to my family that Black-Draught has.

"My health is good. Have two boxes of Black-Draught in the house now."

If your liver gets out of fix, take Black-Draught. It will help to drive the bile poisons and other unhealthy matters out of your system.

Trio Of Nationally Known Men Analyze Evils Of Coal Industry; Stress Need For Stable Labor

COL. GUY D. GOFF

COL. HENRY L. STIMSON

DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard; Colonel Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, and Colonel Guy D. Goff, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, are among the men to whom the National Coal Association, in an aggressive movement to stabilize the bituminous coal industry and increase its value to the public, has applied for advice.

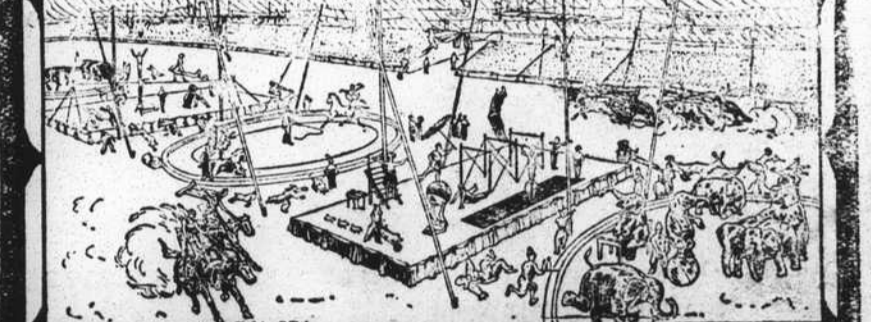

"In the public interest," he wrote, "it is inexpedient that these secret societies, which collect large sums of money from their members, and use all their resources to support strikes, however violent, should continue to be exempt from the usual legal processes to prevent violations of contract and enforce payment of damages."

Dr. Eliot in a comprehensive letter addressed to the organization's annual convention at Atlantic City, stressed the importance of arbitration of disputes by non-partisan agencies, a tenet to which operators claim they have long held. Dr. Eliot advocated the incorporation of all unions that relate to the coal industry.
