Fair Last Night Was An Agreeable Surprise To All Who Attended It

In the terms of Dempsey, the first night of the Fair was a "knockout." In ordinary English it was great. The first thing one would see on entering the grounds was the band, playing exclusively for the gate. The second thing was the Ladies Aid Booth in Exhibit House No. 1. The ladies in this booth were dispensing ham and chicken salad sandwiches of delicious flavor, and to quench the thirst of the midway-promenader, they poured iced tea, giving good measure for the price. One thing good about trading there—you are sure to get your money's worth. And, as far as we found out, you got your money's worth anyplace on the grounds. Especially at the free attractions. Some young lady of prepossessing appearance defied the law of gravitation on a shiny silver ladder. She proved that Einstein was a poor boob. Then this same young lady tore a trapeze all to pieces. Not literally, of course, for she might have been hurt—but she sure did cut up scandalous on that cross bar.
About this time a clown—and a good one, too—climbed up a strop and tried to paralyze the crowd gathered below by doing hair-raising stunts. This same clown would hang by his toes, his knees, his fingers, his arms, and sometimes he hang up there by his imagination, at least so it seemed. After he had scared

CHINA HAS NA PRESIDENT

(By Associated Press)
Peking, Sept. 12.—Lack of a quorum caused the failure of an effort to elect a President to succeed General Li Yuan Hung, the session of parliament called for that purpose breaking up in disorder.

PAPYRUS BADLY CUT

(By Associated Press)
London, Sept. 12.—Papyrus, which has been matched for a race in the United States with the best American three-year-old, was badly cut about the hind legs during the running of the Saintleger stakes, according to a telephone message from C. J. Fitzgerald, August Belmont's agent in the negotiations for an international race.

Mrs. D. M. Walker is very much indisposed this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leaderman and daughter, Mollie, of Martinsville, attended the Fair last night.

Coach Tenney of the High School Football team is putting the football squad through its paces daily. Practice so far consists of light signal practices and dummy scrimmages. Some very promising material is being developed, and before the season is over Leaksville can be assured that she will have a football team that will carry her honor into the far sections of the state. Go to it boys. As Napoleon told George Washington: "Buck that line!"

50 GALLONS OF WHISKY 25 OF BRANDY, TAKEN

Reidsville, N. C. September 11.—Glenn Castevens a young white man of Elkin driving a roadster in which was tucked away 50 gallons of whiskey and 25 gallons of brandy was arrested on the bridge in the southern edge of Danbury by officers A. A. Hedge and C. D. Bryant of the federal prohibition forces.
The officers were on the lookout for the car and when it was seen coming they drove ahead and turned around to come back and met the car with the whisky on the bridge. This gave the officers a chance to make an investigation before arresting the man as he had to back off the bridge to let the officers get by.
The car with the whisky came from the north probably from Virginia and was evidently en route to North Carolina's largest city.

LETTER FROM CRANK IS THOUGHT TO HAVE STARTED THE EXODUS

(By Associated Press)
South Bend, Ind., Sept. 12.—Quiet prevailed in the negro section here following a night of excitement and commotion which was marked by the exodus of between a thousand and fifteen hundred negroes from the city, according to police reports.
The commotion among the negroes followed a receipt of a letter by members of the community which was said to have warned the negroes that an outbreak against them was brewing.
Many negroes became frightened and are said to have fled from the city, while others are reported to have armed themselves. Officials believe the letter was the work of a crank.

REAL REWARD FOR HERO WHO SAVED TRIO FROM RIVER
Walla Walla, Wash., Sept. 12.—For once heroism has been given a real material reward. Leslie Wiese, Portland youth, has been presented with 500 acres of choice Walla Walla wheat land as the result of saving the three young sons of L. W. Lever of Troutdale, Ore., from drowning in the Columbia River, near their home.
The grateful father, according to a report reaching here, made the gift after one of the finest exhibitions of skill and strength seen in Troutdale in some time. The Lever boys were rowing in a small boat in the Columbia River when the craft became unmanageable in the swift current. The lads became excited and jumped overboard. Their inability to swim was immediately apparent to Wiese, on the bank of the river. He dove into the stream and rescued the trio after a hard fight in which his life was endangered.
The land Wiese will get is located ten miles east of this city on a paved highway. Its yield for the last 30 years has been from 40 to 50 bushels an acre, and it sells for $300 an acre.
The Free attractions at the fair start tonight at 10 o'clock.
