MARCHING TO THE POLLS.

Paper Mills and Laboratory Cotton Mills come in Procession to the Polls.

It was a grand and enthusiastic procession that came up from the South Fork Paper Mills and the Laboratory Cotton Mills last Tuesday. 103 men came up in wagons, on horses and in buggies, bearing flags and they all marched up to the polls in line and voted solidly the Democratic ticket.

Senator Vance Delighted with Lincolnton.

As had been announced "Governor" Vance lent his presence to the great Democratic demonstration here last Friday, and rode in a carriage in the procession. He went away bragging on Lincoln County Democracy. He said he had never in his life, seen an audience that listened so attentively and he was never so tempted to make a speech.

A Tariff Catechism.

The following questions and answers were found among the papers of the late George Otis, of Roselle, N. J.:

Q. What is the meaning of the work tariff?

A. It is so called because hundreds of years ago sea pirates at Tariffa, Spain, forced every passing vessel to pay for the privilege of going into and from the Mediterranean sea.

Q. What is the meaning now?

A. A certain sum forced from the people by land pirates.

Q. Why was taken by force?

A. Because the Republican party say to the people, "Stand and deliver!"

Q. Stand and deliver to whom?

A. To certain favored manufacturing industries.

Q. Where in the constitution is Congress empowered to pass a law to compel the few to support the many, the poor to contribute to the rich?

A. In no part of it.

Q. Then where did it find the power?

A. In the Bible.

Q. Give the book, chapter and verse.

A. Matthew, 13th chapter, 12th verse: "For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance; but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he hath."

Q. Is such a law republican in the sense of being democratic—a government in which the people rule?

A. No. It is aristocratic.

Q. What do you mean by aristocratic?

A. A government wherein a few rob the many; where the many work to help support the privileged few.

Q. Explain how the law law law establishes an aristocracy in a democratic government?

A. Congress says to the poor because this or that man is rich and produces iron or cotton or woollen goods, you shall pay him so much money for so many pounds, or go naked and work without tools.

Q. What reason does Congress give for such a tyrannical law?

A. Congress says the law is a differentiation of industrial function, which means that industry is the function of the poor and the difference goes to the rich.

Q. Is that the only reason Congress gives?

A. No. It says the tariff is intended to foster infant industries at home.

Q. Are the iron, cotton and wool industries infants?

A. No, they are a hundred years old.

Q. What date has Congress fixed for these industries to come of age?

A. When Gabriel blows his horn. One Congressman did move to fix a later date, but when reminded that asbestos was not protected he withdrew his notion.

Q. What is the meaning of a protective tariff?

A. Protection of the rich from getting poor, and of the poor from getting rich.

Q. What is the difference between the tenants in Ireland and the farmers in America?

A. None. In both cases the tax gatherer lives in the east and the Sheriff in after both.

Q. Is there any other similarity between the Irish tenants and the American farmers?

A. Yes; the tenants are too poor to stay and the farmers too poor to leave.

Q. Is that the only benefit Republican protection confers on the poor?

A. No. It improves their morals; keeps them from having useless desires.

Q. How does protection produce such results?

A. The poor have to work so hard to support the rich they have no time for mischief. Having no surplus money with which to travel they see nothing new and their desires are kept dormant. That brings content.—Baltimore Sun.

Physical Training for Women.

It is said to be a Boston hobby to attend the gymnasium, but if so it is at least a very commendable one. The day of physical culture for women, outside of a few exercises with dumbbells and "wands" at select boarding schools, is a development of recent years. It is gratifying to note how rapidly the idea has already spread. The clubs or caresses for gymnastic training among women and girls are by no means confined to Boston, or even to Massachusetts.

Political Homicide in Caldwell—A Democrat Kills a Republican.

SPECIAL TO THE OBSERVER. LENOX, November 5.—John Lingle, Democrat, shot and killed John Jenkins, Republican, three miles from Lenox to-day, Lingle yelled "hurrah for Cleveland," and Jenkins cursed him and stoned him, when Lingle shot three times. Jenkins was a notorious rowdy and a desperado.

The United States, when Alaska is included has a greater area than Canada has. The areas are as follows: The United States, with Alaska, has an area of 3,602,990 square miles; Alaska's area is 577,390 square miles. Canada has an area of 3,466,690 square miles.

"A chemical success and medical triumph," so speaks an eminent physician in reference to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral; and the eulogy was none too strong. No other medicine is so safe and efficacious in all diseases of the throat and lungs.

and stronger muscles. The safety bicycle, the " tandem" and the tri-cycle, and more recently the bicycle, have won many young women and girls into knowing the delights of a healthy spin along country roads, and among those who can afford it, horseback riding has gained great popularity within recent years. In fact, every outdoor sport which is not of too rough or too dangerous a nature has recently been adapted to feminine participation, and the athletic girl of to-day can row or fish, ride or walk, bowl or play tennis or golf as well as her brothers. A generation or so ago her accomplishments would have been considered unmaidenly; to-day she has every reason to be proud of her proficiency, and is generally admired for her skill and expertness by her brothers and envied by her less accomplished sisters.

There is much reason for satisfaction in this increase of health and vigor in womanhood, all the more so as too many young men of the present day have not shown the same eagerness towards physical development. It is to be hoped that the narrow, chested, thin, cigarette-smoking young man who is too often seen on the city streets may be ashamed into athletic training by his sense of physical inferiority when compared with the girls of to-day who can walk two miles to his one and who show in every movement the perfect health which he lacks.

At all events, the development of a healthy athletic spirit among American girls means an important gain to the physical standard of the Nation and, perhaps, a decrease in the mortality from hereditary diseases and especially from consumption, which seems the curse of American and especially New England family. On that account alone the spread of physical training is greatly to be desired.—Boston Advertiser.

Gold and Silver in the United States.

The stock of silver and gold in the United States on Nov. 1 1892, based upon official tabulations brought forward from year to year, was approximately, gold, $656,041,863; silver, $587,614,951; total, $1,243,656,814. The amount of money in circulation (outside of the treasury vaults) including paper and metallics was $1,606,139,735 or $24.34 per head.

Those Stony Eyes.

The Women Who Are Always Leaning Out of the Window.

"One of the queer features of flat life here in New York," remarked a cynical Bostonian to a reporter, "is the universal window hanging. I mean the habit of leaning for hours at a time far out of windows at all elevations. Of course people lean out of windows everywhere, but here in New York along such avenues as Sixth, Eighth, Third and Fourth, and all streets where there are flat houses, it seems as if the family took turns at the window sills. The feminine heads always predominate, though there are plenty of men. To the credit of our sex, however, they have not reached the pillow stage."

"The what?" inquired the reporter.

"She pillow stage. Protracted vigils on an unfeeling window sill are liable to callous feminine elbows, my friend. The wise flat builder of the future in your city will fit his window sills with air cushionings. I once thought this window hanging habit was distinctly a New York custom, but I received a severe lesson on that point two years ago. I came over here in the spring from Boston on a matter of business that required time, so I took lodging up on the west side. Directly opposite was a large flat house, and though all the windows in the building were more or less populous, there was one in particular on the third floor from which the female occupant was leaning out at all hours. It seemed to me that that woman must neglect even meals and sleep. She bawled me even to my dreams."

When I went out in the morning her stony glare followed me till I turned the corner, and when I returned in the afternoon it seemed as if that third floor window hanger hadn't stirred an inch. I became so nervous and conscious that I dreaded the street. I felt sure that woman could see every defect on my person, and when I was aware of a wilted collar or unpollished shoes I made a point of hugging the houses on her side till opposite my abode, and then scurrying across the street and indoor. I sometimes wondered whether that stare could count the change in my pocket. One night I returned home from an entertainment at 2 a. m. All the way home I glowered in the thought that for once I would be free from my oppressor."

"When I reached the corner a glance showed me I was right. No head, the window was closed and dark. I hurried to my house, mounted the steps and when I had opened the door, gave one parting glance at that third floor window. There she was, a white and airy costume, but she had got there just the same."

"When finally I left New York I took an early train, leaving the house at 6 a. m. Of course that third floor nuisance was on duty at her window, with the same imperturbable stare. As usual I stood it to the corner, and then I dropped satchel and umbrella and shook my flat at that window hanging hanging fiend with all the fervor of deadly hate."

"There was a milkman near me, and I said, 'Do you know that woman?'"

"Reckon I do. Served her milk."

"Is she queer?"

"Oh, no. She ain't used to New York. Only been here four months, and she hasn't went about much."

"Reckon so. Come from Boston last March."—New York Tribune.

Pulling Feathers.

Hous often have a habit of biting and pulling their feathers and greedily eating them until their bodies are bare. This practice, it is believed, is occasioned by want of salt, as when salted food is given them they make no attempt to continue the habit. Salt pork, chopped fine and fed twice a week, has been adopted with success, while others put a teaspoonful of salt with two quart of meal or shorts moistened, well mixed, and feed it about twice a week. Fowls, like human beings, must have a certain allowance of salt.—American Poultry Yard.

Sing a Song of Sixpence.

You all know this rhyme, but have you ever heard what it really means?

The four and twenty blackbirds represent the twenty-four hours. The bottom of the pie is the world, while the top crust is the sky that overarches it. The opening of the pie is the day-dawn, when the birds begin to sing, and surely such a sight is fit for a king.

The king, who is represented as sitting in his parlor counting out his money, is the sun, while the gold pieces that slip through his fingers as he counts them are the golden sunshine.

The queen, who sits in the dark kitchen, is the moon, and the honey with which she regales herself is the moonlight.

The industrious maid, who is in the garden at work before her king—the sun—is risen, is day-dawn, and the clothes she hangs out are the clouds. The bird, who so tragically ends the song by "nipping off her nose," is the sunset.

So we have the whole day, if not in a nutshell, in a pie.—E. R.
