

When your heart is bad, and your head is bad, and you are bad clean rough, what is needed? asked a Sunday school teacher of her class. "I know—Ayer's Sarsaparilla," spoke up a little girl, whose mother had recently been restored to health by that medicine.

"When I was a Boy,"

Writes Postmaster J. C. Woodson, Forest Hill, W. Va., "I had a bronchial trouble of such a persistent and stubborn character, that the doctor pronounced it incurable with ordinary medicines, and advised me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and one bottle cured me. For the last fifteen years, I have used this preparation with good effect whenever I take."

A Bad Cold,

and I know of numbers of people who keep it in the house all the time, not considering it safe to be without it.

"I have been using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for 30 years, with the most satisfactory results, and can cheerfully recommend it as being especially adapted to all pulmonary complaints. I have, for many years, made pulmonary and other medicines a special study, and I have come to the conclusion that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral occupies a position pre-eminent over other medicines of the class."—Chas. Davenport, Dover, N. J.

RIGHT OR WRONG?

In these times a merchant may just as well plant broomsticks and expect blossoms as to try and build a business on mere "buncombe". The fellow who follows this fallacy may think he is plucking Apples from the Garden of Hesperides—but he isn't. When the public "get on to him" they do it with both feet and

"The fruit he loved so much
Will turn to dust and ashes at His touch."

Notice!

To the citizens of North Carolina and adjoining States:

I call your special attention to my Double Stock Plows, cotton planters, Cotton Harrows and Gibbs Plows, the best on the market.

You can afford to lose a number of mules, as there is money saved; but you cannot afford to lose the opportunity of buying the above mentioned farming implements, as there will be money lost.

I still keep the Camel Skin Shoe, and my $3.00 Congress Shoe in Stock.

I also keep a general line of merchandise and everything a specialty.

Respectfully,
F. A. TOBY.

LET US CHANGE DIET.

The political pot has been boiling a long time. Democrats and Republicans, Populists and muggums have been in the pot so long that the broth is becoming stale.

Let us stop and talk about some change until the servant can get fresh water in the vessels.

When the time for an election comes on we will be found defending the side we think best, but we want to rest and pitch our tent on another field now. The farmer is the man we are most interested in just now. He is the bone and sinew of our land and when he is downed all is downed. He is not omnipotent nor omnipresent. Like other men he has much to learn before he graduates, and many places to visit before he sees everything. One of the most important lessons he needs to learn is to live easily and comfortably in, not to cultivate so much land. Prepare thoroughly ten acres of land and you will make more on it than on twenty acres poorly prepared. Keep two good cows and care for them properly and you will have more butter and milk than from a dozen poorly kept.

Do away with all superfluous canines and put what they would destroy into hogs, and you will always have meat. One acre of land will produce all the sweet and Irish potatoes an ordinary family will consume from one season to another. Plant many flowers in your yard and have a few hives of bees to gather the sweets of the same and you will always have honey. Raise all your home supplies and you will always have money.

Washington News.

Independence of Columbia.

President Cleveland's message to Congress is unusually long, but the length and importance of the subject which it deals made it necessary that it should be long.

It is a statement of democratic policy, and it is straight to the point and every citizen should admit that it is a statement of democratic policy.

Tariff reform as embodied in the Wilson bill is commended in the message that carries conviction and Congress is earnestly urged to pass it at the earliest possible moment in order that the business of the country may be adjusted to the conditions.

Opening of the regular session of Congress finds the democratic side in better condition than the republican side. The opening of the extra session of Congress is a great relief to the democratic side.

It may be temporarily injured by some of the proposed tariff changes, but as a rule the democratic side is in better condition than the republican side.

The message expressed by Representative Tamm, of Missouri, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, is not simply a statement of the tariff—it is a statement of the tariff. Time will tell what it contains no element of prejudice or animosity against any particular industry or attack upon the manufacturing industries; on the contrary, it is intended and will speedily result in the rapid growth, development and expansion of our industries upon a broad national basis, and not upon a narrow basis of selfish, personal, local or sectional interests. While taking away from the manufacturer of manufactured products, by giving him untaxed raw material essential in his manufactures, we leave to him all that should be required to enable him to compete with the world in the disposition of his products.

The delay caused by the preparation of estimates by the Treasury Department, showing in detail the difference there would be in import duties received by the government under the Wilson bill as compared with those paid under the McKinley law, has revived among democratic the talk of submitting the Wilson bill to a democratic caucus before it is reported to the House. It is determined by caucus whether the bill should be amended to have democrats try to get amendments adopted on the floor of the House, and that it would also save time in disposing of the bill. The question has not been decided, but judging from the talk of members, the chances appear to be against the bill being submitted to a caucus.

The new tariff does not suit the Irishman, and it is not likely that the great mass of the people will approve of it and Mr. Wilson and his co-laborers will have no cause to complain of lack of appreciation.

His Wit Saved Him.

Although it is a familiar saying that an Irishman is always spooling for a fight, still there is one kind of fighting to which even the bravest of Erin are sometimes averse—that is dueling. The following story well illustrates this fact.

A certain Irishman, have been challenged to fight a duel, accepted the conditions after much persuasion on the part of his friends, who felt confident of success. His antagonist, a lame man, walked on crutches.

When the place for the shooting had been reached, the lame man's second asked that he be allowed to lean against a milestone which happened to be there. The privilege was allowed, and the lame man took his stand.

The Irishman and his second drew off to the distance agreed upon—one hundred feet. Here Pat's courage suddenly failed him, and he shouted to the lame man:

"I've a small favor to ask of ye, sor."

"What is it?" asked the cripple.

Pat answered:

"I told ye that ye might lean agin the milepost, and now I would like the privilege of leaning agin the next one."

The laughter which followed spoiled everybody's desire for a fight and the whole party went home without a shot being fired.

Stop and Think.

What are you living for?

What is your mission in the world?

What is the goal to which you are running?

These are a few of the many questions that every individual ought to ask himself. The world is moving on at a rapid rate. Men and women are being transfigured from time to time every day, and others rise and fill vacancies.

The Washington correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch says that it is now admitted even by the friends of Mr. Kope Elias, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Western District, North Carolina, that he will not be renominated by the President. The talk here among North Carolinians is that Mr. Carter when he takes hold as collector, will put a stop to the appointment of Collector Elias to hold on. Mr. Carter and Mr. Elias are good friends, and the former was one of the bondsmen of the latter.

It will be a great mistake, says the Richmond State, is the Democratic in Congress allow the new tariff bill to be tampered with. It is the result of the most careful, disinterested and conservative investigation by men best calculated to consider a matter so important. The entire country is considered in the measure, and "the greatest good to the greatest number" is the motto. It may be inconvenient here and there to certain heads, but the general result of making the cost of living less will be attained. That is what the Democratic party promised, and that is why it is put in power. It comes in fulfillment of the Democratic doctrine of tariff reform—something that has long been held out to the country.

Lost Confidence.

Many years ago, or before the late war, people confided in each other and when a helping hand was needed it was always ready, but since that unpleasant period things have been going awry. A general revolution is needed in order to restore former confidence.

Money is gotten to be the burden of too many people. It seems to be the motto of the day for many people. Many have a selfish life and do not think of others and when they are abused it will sacrifice principle rather than put it to good use.

People are crying "hard times" when more money has been returned to the taxes in this country this year, than for several years past. If this money were properly used there would be no need of such waiting. Some of the greatest grumblers are those who do not know how to make their money bring the greatest amount of interest. They are waiting and waiting for the time to come when their money will be of use to them. Self preservation is, indeed, the first law with them. Some of them are like a cunning Jew we heard of recently. There were four brothers, the eldest of whom was taken ill, and he being the wealthiest of them all, very great interest was manifested in him. He had a dying request to make of the three brothers. The first was to put in the coffin of the dead brother $500.00 in greenbacks, the second $500.00 in gold, and the third man was to put in $500.00 in silver, but a happy thought struck him and he said "I put in my check for $1500.00 and takes out the thousand dollars," and this is the principle exhibited by many men to-day. They are just watching for a chance to get hold of the cash, not that they may use it to the best advantage for the benefit of human kind, but for the purpose of self aggrandizement.

We brought nothing into this world, and it is an assured fact that we can take nothing out of it. The most costly burial outfit, and the grandest pomp at the funeral will add nothing to our future reward, the finest mansion in the world will not preserve the soul after it leaves the body. A little more true Godliness will restore lost confidence and bring about a general resolution for good. Let those who have money lay it away to rest and cauter turn it loose and wonderful things will transpire in a short while.
