USES AND ENDORSES THE

Electropoise

North Carolina Supreme Court.
WALTER CLARK, Associate Justice.
Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 1, 1894.
We have found the Electropoise very valuable especially in cases of children. I feel sure that it will be found to be a most reliable remedy for all ailments of infants and children. I can safely recommend it.
Yours truly,
WALTER CLARK.

A Bad Condition.

We have before called attention to a great calamity threatening the people of the South. There is ground for this fear. In no section of the country is there greater need for Liver Medicines than in the South, and this has encouraged unscrupulous persons to take advantage of people's misery and offer them all sorts of stuff as a cure-all for Liver troubles. Their preparations are sold to the druggists at a low price. And the big profit to the druggist is the road by which they reach the public. Druggists of high honor will not be a party to such an outrage. Beware of any dealer who tells you that any Liver Medicine is just the same, or as good as Simmons' Liver Regulator, put up by J. H. Zeilin & Co. You know it by the Red Z on the package. These preparations are not the same nor as good. Stick to the Old Friend. Your health and life should be worth something to you.

Young Minister—I've been praying for you a long time, Miss Dora.

Dora (astonished):—Why didn't you let me know it? I'd have been yours after the first prayer.—Ex.

Ben as a Bi-Metallist.

The New York Herald has a story from Indianapolis to the effect that ex-President Harrison's friends will urge him for re-nomination the third time at the next Republican national convention, as the candidate of the bi-metallists. The silver Republicans are reported to have found McKinley a broken reed, and Reed untrustworthy on the money question, and are, therefore, turning to Harrison. He has, indeed, it is not denied, talked all sorts of ways on the currency problem during his career, but his friends are hanging their hopes on his last public utterance on the subject. He made a speech at La Junta, Col., when on his way to lecture at Leland Stanford University last year, and this is what he said:

"Now, I say to you to-day what I said when I was President, and what I have always believed—that a larger use of silver for money and free coinage of silver, upon a basis to be agreed upon, that would maintain its parity with gold, was good for the whole world. I do not believe that we could run free coinage ourselves, when the European governments were pursuing the policy they have been pursuing with silver, but my fellow citizens, there are clear indications in England and in Germany that they are feeling the effects of a scarcity of gold, and its prostrating effects upon the industries.

"I believe these two great countries are nearer right to day than they have been for the past twenty years. They are all considering favorably the question of a larger and freer use of silver as a money metal, and bi-metallism has gained strength in England, and that energetic and young Emperor of Germany is himself considering the question of bi-metallism.

"I do not think that these countries are coming to the next silver conference, as a coy maiden holding back, but will come with a greater readiness than in any recent years, and will agree with us upon a basis for a larger use of silver money."

As for Benj. himself, he is laying low and saying nothing. Indeed, if it be true that "speech is silver, but silence is golden," his to friends have surely misplaced their confidence in him. He seems to be spending most of his time watching the feather in his grandfather's hat to see which way the political wind blows.—Charlotte Observer.

The True Position on Silver.

Senator Blackburn of Kentucky, has stated on his own position on the silver question with such clearness that it is worthy to be adopted as the Democratic party's declaration upon that question. It is short, comprehensive, safe and straightforward, and the Democracy could win on this platform, if success in 1896 be possible. We quote:

"I am in favor of opening the mints of this country to the unlimited coinage of the silver metal on an exact equality with gold. I am opposed to gold mono-metallism. Without reservation or evasion, I am a bi-metallist. I want and mean to continue to insist upon the use of both gold and silver on even terms as the redemption money of this country. I would be glad to see this result brought about by the action of an international conference, but I am opposed to this government waiting for any such conference to act. Our experience with sugar agencies has not been such as to give us either confidence or hope for the attainment of this purpose.

"I am in favor of the re-creation of the silver metal at the ratio of 16 to 1, believing in the light of an experience that covers a century such ratio will establish and maintain permanently the parity between the two metals. I believe that we should take this action at the earliest day possible, independent of the policies or views of other nations."

The News and Observer adopts Senator Blackburn's ringing announcement of his position as the strongest way of stating its own position. The attempt to commit this country irrevocably to the gold standard cannot be too strongly combatted.—News and Observer.

Using up Dead Horses.

In France when a horse reaches the age of from twenty to thirty it is destined for a chemical factory; it is first relieved of its hair, which is used to stuff cushions and saddles; then it is skinned; the hoofs serve to make combs.

Next the carcass is placed in a cylinder and cooked by steam at a pressure of three atmospheres; a cock is opened which lets the steam run off; then the remains are cut up, the leg bones are sold to make knife handles, and the coarser—the ribs and the head—are made into animal black and glue.

The first are calcined in cylinders, and the vapors, when condensed, from the chief source of carbonate of ammonia, which constitutes the base of nearly all the ammoniacal salts.

There is an animal oil yielded, which makes a capital insecticide and a vermifuge.

The bones, to make glue, are dissolved in muriatic acid, which takes the phosphates of lime away; the soft element, retaining the shape of the bone, is dissolved in boiling water, cast into squares and dried on nets.

The phosphate of lime, acted upon by sulphuric acid and calcined with carbon, produces phosphorus for our lucifer matches.

The remaining flesh is distilled to obtain the carbonate of ammonia; the resulting mass is pounded up with potash, then mixed with old nails and iron of every description; the whole is calcined, and yields magnificent yellow crystals—prussiat of potash, with which tissues are dyed a Prussian blue and iron transformed into steel; it also forms cyanide of potassium and prussic acid, the two most terrible poisons known in chemistry.—Ex.

St. Vs. Crowl.

The Newton Enterprise says: Knowing the people of the county are interested in this case we clip from the News and Observer the following opinion of the Supreme Court as reported by Perrin Busbee, Esq., of the Raleigh Bar: "State vs. L. A. Crowl (appellant) Catawba county. Opinion by Clark J.

1. There has never been such an indictable offence as "deceit," but the meaning of the Code, Sec. 1177, which excepts from the two years statute of limitations, perjury, forgery, malicious misdemeanor and deceit, is that deceptions, the gist of which is malice or deceit, are within the exception.

2. The act of 1885 chapter 248 contemplates a seduction brought about by means of a promise of marriage, in the nature of deceit. In fact deceit is the very essence of the defence, and the act 1891, chapter 205, makes a seduction under promise of marriage a felony as to which there is no statute of limitation.

3. Where there is a prayer to put the charge in writing the entire charge must be written; but this rule does not forbid any and all oral expression from the presiding judge. Hence, where the defendant has the full benefit of his exception to a prayer which was refused, he cannot assign as error that the judge did not write an incidental remark made thereto.

4. It is not error to refuse to charge that an innocent and virtuous woman must have "a mind free from lustful and lascivious desires."

5. When a judge both fines and imprisons where the statute provides a fine or imprisonment at the discretion of the Court, there being no other error, this does not entitle the defendant to a new trial but this Court will remand that the sentence may be properly imposed at the next term of the court below. The verdict stands. Error. Remanded.

There is now no hope for Crowl to escape punishment, either in being fined not exceeding $5,000 or in being imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than five years. The next judge presiding, will pronounce the sentence if the defendant appear before him.

Good on Sunday Giv.

John Wanamaker, whom many the gods continue to stuff with eloquence andunction, presents the pathetic spectacle of a righteous man who cannot afford to be truly good more than one day in the week. In the April number of To Day he makes the sad admission that he were to conduct his business on the principle of B. O. thereby Love—the principle he promulgates so sweetly and so smoothly every Sunday—he would be in the sheriff's hands before the next slaughter sale in summer underwear could sell around.

That this remarkable statement will occasion wide comment and discussion need hardly be said. Here is a good and pious man, redolent of the odor of sanctity, bubbling over with holy admonition, reeking with the spirit of rectitude and charity, who confesses that he cannot afford to practice what he preaches, and admits that, since he cannot fall into the Lord's hands without first passing through the sheriff's, he pretends to keep his Christianity for the Sabbath and give six days to godlessness at the shop. Religion, as he sees it, is all very well at Bethany among the elect and where it costs nothing save a little language, but it won't do for the Chestnut street bazaar where merchandise is on tap and Paris thoughts prevail. John can manage to be a saint on Sunday. He can swim sweetly into Bethany chapel, excluding love at every pore and spilling bliss into the sisters' yearning hearts, but he can't afford any nonsense during the other six days of the week and he frankly confesses that he does not propose to try it.

As we say, this announcement, emanating from so zealous and so profusely anointed a disciple as John Wanamaker, will raise a vast wind of controversy. How many Christians of Wanamaker class it will really astonish we should not like to guess.

IT MAY DO AS MUCH FOR YOU.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill. writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and was relieved at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c. for large bottle. A. S. An Essay on Man.

Man is an omnivorous animal. Some smart people call him a biped, but this is a zoological error.

He's just a plain, every day two-legged animal.

Man is found in most parts of the world.

He roams at will, feeds in the daytime, and sleeps at night.

Some nights.

You can go up and lay your head on him anywhere, so long as you don't put it on his pocket-book. He has, under such conditions, been known to kick.

He is like the dog; howls a good deal and runs around at night. Like the elephant, he has a trunk, but he doesn't always take it with him.

The elephant does.

As to what man is really good for, anthropology is still in the dark.

Being strong, he is used to draw pictures, carry news and pull revolvers.

He is also fast and often goes in the human race.

Properly trained, man can jump higher than any other known animal. He has even been known to jump mountain resort board bills!

Although in many ways man is like other animals, in this respect he is different from them all; he lies standing up.

We have learned on good authority that there are several Mormons in the Laurel Hill neighborhood doing their best to convert all with whom they come in contact to their religion. If there was anything ennobling about their religion we would bid them Godspeed, but knowing as much about them as we do and it is your privilege to know equally as well, their articles of faith being broadcast, we think the very best thing to do for them is give them a few nouns to leave the neighborhood and if they don't, warn their jackets. We don't need any such cattle as this in the country.—New Orleans Picayune.

Just one More Case.

Near the adjourning of the Legislature the Democratic members of the lower house united in signing a protest against the falsehood which the record had been made to speak with reference to the adjournment in honor of Fred Douglass, and the Speaker ordered it to be spread upon the journal. After the adjournment it was discovered that it had not been so spread and could the original be found. It has just now been discovered that it is in the possession of J. B. Moore, of Burgaw, Pender county, one of the clerks, who the Wilmington Messenger says, claims that he picked it up off the floor and put it in his pocket. The Messenger pertinently inquires if he dropped it on the floor, and if so, or whether so or not, why did he not, when he picked it up, put it in his proper place instead of in his pocket. It might also be asked if Mr. Moore is just now having a "reddin' out" of his pockets, after his return from Raleigh, and if not why is he just now reporting his find? The public is quite familiar with the record of that Legislature for lost and stolen bills and of the performances of its clerks, who were made in its likeness. This is just another instance, no more fragrant than a number of others already told of.—Charlotte Observer.

Spring Time

Is the time nearly everyone feels the need of some blood purifying, strength invigorating and health producing medicine. The re-merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the reason of its widespread popularity. It unquestionably is its best recommendation. The whole system is susceptible to the most prodigious medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla taken at this time, and we would lay special stress upon the time and remedy, for history has it recorded that cures are dangerous. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla and the many words of praise it has received, make it worthy of your confidence. We ask you to give this medicine a fair trial.

Spare Those Shad and Red Horses.

News and Observer.

The following letter, speaking for itself, was yesterday received by the Supreme Court, and was referred to Mr. T. K. Bruner, of the Agricultural Department.

"HAGER, N. C., April, 19, '95.

"TO THE STATE OF COURT,

DEAR SIR:

"You will please send our state commission John Robinson to Tuckasee Ford and law A. P. Rhyme of Mt. Holly N. C. open his dam for free passage of fish in Catawba river as Rhyme is stopping all fishes.

"He is catching shad and red horses and hauling many load wagons of fishes to Charlotte to sell every morning.

"There are no shad and red horses in Lincoln and Catawba counties now. There was no them there in five years. A. P. Rhyme don't obey the acts of fish laws. It is true that he always know where to make a pull or haul. He ought to be prevented to sell fishes in Charlotte.

You will be sure to come to Tuckasee Ford to send our state commission there and make A. P. Rhyme to open or pay.

Please let me know about him soon.

Yours truly A. S. KEER,

Get the pattern of your life from God, and then go about your work and be yours.—Phillips Brooks.

If thou canst not make thyself such an one as thou wouldst, how canst thou expect to have another Thomas a Kempis.

Keep yourselves aloof from grumblers, for it is the easiest sort of things to find fault. Any stupid man can do that, but it takes a smart man to make things better. When a man begins to grumble and find fault, you can size him up for a lightweight right away.—D. L. Moody.

To neglect God all our lives, and know that we neglect him, to offend God voluntarily, and know that we offend him, casting our hopes on the peace which we trust to make at parting, is no other than a rebellious presumption, and even a contemptuous laughing to scorn and deriding of God, his laws and precepts.—Sir W. Ral. Eigh.

Malice sucks up the greatest part of her own venom and poisons herself. Vice leaves repentance in the soul, like an ulcer in the flesh, which is always scratching and lacerating itself for reason effaces all other griefs and sorrows, but it begets that of repentance, which is so much the more grievous by reason it springs within, as the cold or hot of fevers are more sharp than those that only strike upon the outward skin.—Montaigne.
