MONROE, N. C., TUESDAY APRIL 14, 1903

One Dollar a Year

Sparks of Public Opinion.

Vigilance the Price.

Monroe people have organized to show that prohibition will prohibit. They are fighting blind tigers. That is excellent. Vigilance is the price of law enforcement.

The Biggest Trust.

The biggest trust on the earth is the newspaper trust. It trusts everybody, gets cussed for trusting, mistrusted for cussing, and if it busts for trusting gets cussed for busting.

Taking Courage from J. P.

The country seems to take fresh heart because Pierpont Morgan predicts good times with plenty of money. Did the country ever hear of Mr. Morgan when he was having any other kind of a time or when he didn't need storage room for his cash?

Time for Carter to Do Things.

Carter Harrison breaks the record. For a fourth time he has been elected mayor of Chicago, and in this victory he defeated about all the influences that could be massed against him. There is doubtless room for much improvement in the Windy City's municipal affairs, and if Harrison is "Looking Onward" now is the time for him to pay strict attention to business and "do things."

The Best Investment.

Our people must realize that while it is their duty to pay taxes for the protection of their life and property, it is their still higher duty to pay taxes for the education of their children. They should believe that it is the inalienable right of every child to demand and receive the benefits of an elementary education, at least, and that the most profitable investment of the body politic is the tax fund invested in the brains and capabilities of children.

True and Statesmanlike.

"Honor, courage, integrity, devotion to principle, and the faithful performance to duty are just as essential to the greatness of a free people as courage and self-sacrifice are to the success of a fighting army." So said Gen. William C. Cretcher, in an address delivered on Shiloh battlefield last Monday. It is the truest, most statesmanlike utterance that has recently emanated from anyone connected with the administration.

Is It Worth While?

Be sure that the paper that you read is worth the reading. The reading is a greater consideration than the price. One spends three cents in money for a Recorder, two dollars in energy and ten, perhaps, in time and eyesight. The question is, is it worth the price, but is it worth while? Many a man is throwing away dollars' worth of time on two-cent papers because they are cheap. Man, they are the costliest things in the world! A paper that does not instruct and uplift, but rather runs through a man's mind—in and out again—is exceedingly dear at any price.

Would Sell Two of Them.

The gentlemen who opposed the Watts law begged almost with tears that legislature do not discriminate in favor of the towns against the country by depriving the latter of the glorious privilege of making whiskey and giving that privilege to the former. It turns out that there are five hundred and thirty stills in North Carolina, we dare say, are in the towns. And so it was discrimination with a vengeance. All good men, however, will rejoice in such discrimination. It means that from four to five hundred of these infamous dens will leave the State or go out of business, for the average town has too many level-headed business men in it to allow a filthy whiskey still to come in and poison its atmosphere. If a man is too blind to see that a "hell kettle" (as preacher Little calls the distillery) is an unmitigated curse, the strong arm ought to come in and protect him from himself. This particular feature of the Watts law is praise-worthy and we hope it will be rigidly enforced. We are delighted for once that a town may have by law what is denied the country. It may be said: "Well," you say, "look how they are flocking to Hamlet and Hoffman." It is reported that a Northern man, begetting by flaming advertisements, rode all the way from Philadelphia to see Hamlet and Hoffman, with a view to investment. After having visited both places he is said to have remarked that if he owned Hamlet, Hoffman and Hell he would sell Hamlet and Hoffman.

Strength and Vigor Come of Good Food.

"Force," a ready-to-serve wheat and barley food, adds no burden, but sustains, nourishes, invigorates.

From Over the State.

W. B. Ellis, a former tobacco merchant of Winston, has been sent to an insane hospital in New York. Mr. Ellis will be remembered as the man who made continuous attacks upon District Attorney A. E. Holton.

The Young Bank Defaulter of Atlanta Kept His Nerve when Discovered.

The young Atlanta bank officer, who stole $93,457.42 from the Capital City Bank with a petted leader of "sassiness." He received a salary of $1,000 and says that during the past eight years, while he was stealing the pile, his expenses in "society" cost him $51,000 in excess of his salary. He must have been a high roller, sure enough! He claims that he spent the balance on a model Greece country farm. This may well be believed. A $1,000 man who tries to keep up with Atlanta society and run a model dairy farm at the same time will need to rob a bank—and a rich bank, too—to meet all the demands upon him.

Hon. Hoke Smith, one of the directors was sent for as soon as the defalcation was discovered. Mr. Smith says he has never seen so cool a man as Sims. The Journal says: "He was absolute the coolest man in the bank, said Mr. Smith, and never once did he lose his nerve or flinch under the trying ordeal he underwent."

"How much are you short," finally asked Mr. Smith. "Between $93,000 and $94,000," responded Sims, without a tremor in his voice. Those present knew that Sims was short about $1,000 but thought that the discovery of this shortage had caused him to lose his mind, and that he was crazy when he said he was short so great a sum.

"How do you know that you are short that amount?" Sims was asked. "Because it was necessary for me to know how much I was short in order to keep dummy notes, in order to doctor my books, and to balance. I have never failed to balance, and Mr. DeSaussure found me only fourteen cents out of balance when he examined my books."

"I had to keep an account of my shortage in order to keep you people from discovering me," was Sims' reply. "How long has this been going on," Sims was asked. "Oh, about eight years," he replied.

"Never once did he flinch or lose his self-possession. He was as cool a man as ever faced such a situation. He was far and away the coolest man in that room that night," said Mr. Smith. "Such a nerve in the face of such a charge I never saw. He did not move a muscle, but proceeded to sit down and go over his book with the examiner, pointing out his every change, his every defalcation, his every forgery."

Vicious Convict Hangs Himself.

Maximus Spitzer, the one armed convict who was yesterday sentenced by the Governor to be hanged on May 16th, committed suicide in his cell in the county jail here last night about eight o'clock, by cutting his throat from ear to ear with a short piece of iron which he pulled from the bottom of his shoe. Spitzer was serving a term in the penitentiary for manslaughter when he murdered a fellow convict last November. He was tried at the December term of the Criminal Court and found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged in January, but his attorneys, Messrs. Harrison & Abston, took an appeal to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court affirmed the decision of the lower court, and the Governor yesterday fixed the date of the hanging on May 16th. It was not known until yesterday that the Governor would commute to the sentence to life imprisonment, as Spitzer's attorneys have been hard at work securing petitions for this purpose, but their efforts proved unsuccessful. The supervisor of the penitentiary, as well as the jailer, says that Spitzer was one of the most desperate characters they had ever had in their charge. He came near killing another convict about four years ago, when he was at the Northampton farm. He and the convict had some words, when he grabbed a knife and plunged it to the hilt in his comrade's temple. The physician says that if the blade had been an eighth of an inch longer the blow would have proved fatal. Spitzer was a man of vicious temper and would have revenge on anyone whom he thought had wronged him. No longer than last week he came near putting out the eyes of a negro confined in jail with him. All the prisoners are furnished with a preparation, which contains a large amount of poison, to destroy vermin; the negro, who was confined in another cell had been teasing Spitzer about his sentence, who had prepared for his revenge. He dissolved the poison in a cup of water and when the negro came around the next morning to assist the jailer in feeding the prisoners, Spitzer emptied the contents of the cup in his face. By chance he closed his eyes, but the poison took all the skin off the lids as well as his face. No disposition has been made of the remains, and if no one calls for them he will be buried at the county house.

GOOD BREAD COMES Only From GOOD FLOUR.

Many a well-meant, well-planned attempt at bread-making is wrecked on the shoals of poor flour. Cheap flour is bad flour—its low price is the maker's excuse for the inferiority of his product. Good bread is not hard to make. Half the voyage is over when you get good flour. Whiter, stronger, sharper, purer flour than ours cannot be made. Therefore we caution you to ask for the "GOLDEN ROD" and "INVINCIBLE" brands. These brands are sold at the lowest price for which really first class flour can be sold and its price is the highest you need to pay in order to get the best. Beware of bad flour and short weights. Our quality and weights are guaranteed.
