Crop Conditions Point an Emphatic Lesson for Southern Farmers Right Now.

Atlanta Constitution.

The farmers of the south have presented to them by the disasters of the western floods an opportunity that should by no means be neglected.

Four of the largest wheat and corn producing states of the west have been damaged in their crop prospects for the present year by one-half or more and it is plainly to be seen that there must be a shortage of foodstuffs in consequence. Sheep, cattle and horses have been destroyed in large numbers and the effect must be to reduce labor and other productive returns to the farms. Prices of food and their related interests in the beef, pork and mutton markets are sure to be much higher in the future than in the past season. Corn is more likely to sell for over than under a dollar per bushel. And the southern farmers who have become accustomed to rent their bread and meat in western markets will be called upon to recoup present losses to those peoples by higher prices for foodstuffs.

It is not too late yet for southern farmers to fortify against that manifest state of affairs. Every one of them can devote a part of his land and labor to raising corn and peas and thus supply himself with substitutes for his usual western supplies.

It is yet possible anywhere in the South to plant and raise crops of the kind mentioned and those who are wise will lose no time in taking this warning to himself and preparing to meet the general rise in the price of provisions by having an ample home-raised stock of food in his own crib and smoke house.

These are the apparent facts that confront us and The Constitution feels it a duty to the farmers of Georgia and the south to follow the sensible course we have indicated. A year of high prices for farm products is coming and it will take all the wisdom and industry of a Joseph to prepare a store that will defy inflated prices, short supplies and produce manipulators of the people's bread.

A Morphine Fiend's Story.

It was a pitiful story of human weakness—that was related last night in Klutz's drug store by a friend of the county who only a few weeks since attempted to kill himself. Even while relating the incident he begged for morphine, pleading that he was hopelessly a victim of the drug and could not live without it.

"I was almost wild for morphine," he said, "and there was none in the house. Living in the country as I do I knew it would be a night of agony. My little girl searched in vain for a bottle and presently my two-year-old-boy, seeming to realize my condition, brought me an empty morphine bottle. Realizing that it was of no avail he brought me another and the sight of my baby appreciating my weakness and trying to relieve me drove me into a frenzy. I got my pistol, put a bullet in my head and well—it didn't kill me and—say can't you let me have just enough morphine to last over night?"

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

WHY SHE SEEKS DIVORCE.

The Story of a Woman Who Was Deserted for Eighteen Years by a Worthless Husband.

Kinsley Star.

The other day a lady, tired, worn and weary, came into our town in search of advice, sympathy, help! She had passed the meridian of life, her energies were on the wane and she was about to give away under the load of care and anxious anxiety which had been heaped upon her during the eighteen years of her married life—married to a man who had treated her unkindly, indeed beastly, and then deserted her and their two little children in a cold and friendless world. She was poor, she was needy, but she was honest and she was pure. In the silent watches of the night, beside the bed of her tiny loved ones she lingered and watched and prayed. An avenue for employment was opened up to her and by working hard, living economically and expending her small earnings wisely, she was enabled to care for her children until they grew into years of capability and service and then they—died.

She was heart-broken. For eighteen years she and the children had lived together—the husband and father had deserted them and gone—they knew not where. The life of the mother had been spent for the children and now they, too, had been taken from her. She was so lonesome, so desolate, so miserable. Nothing to care for, and no one to care for her.

Hers had always be a life of service. She knew not how to rest. In her neighborhood there was a motherless child—a prattling little girl four years old without relative save a kind father. This lonesome mother, hungry for association of a child, a confiding, sympathetic nature like we find in childhood, did what she could in her humble way, for the comfort and pleasure of this dear little girl, and the father saw the interest she manifested and was glad. In no one else had shown such thoughtfulness, and the little child saw her each day at her little cabin and soon loved her fondly.

The father, a good man and reasonably prosperous, heard the story of this good woman's life, he got an insight into her beautiful character—her Spartan like spirit, and he was greatly impressed with her worth and goodness. The more he saw of her the better he liked her and the end of the story is that his friendship grew into deepest affection and she reciprocated with a heart of love his holy reverence. A new light came into their lives and the little girl was happy in the added love of a good woman whom she hoped soon to call by the tender name of "Mother." They wanted to marry but the woman had no divorce and they could not do so without violating the law of the land.

This explains the woman's heartaches and the look of care returning to her cheeks, and all the trouble of years mounting up before her and shutting out almost every ray of sunshine.

"Don't separation for as long as eighteen years give me a divorce?" she asked, and she was told that it did not. The chimney corner law is that seven years gave a divorce, but that it is not law and will not protect the ignorant party who steps across the boundary and enters the marriage relation afresh, while the old relation remains unsevered.

But she was told that under the law she could sue and obtain a divorce and be free from the husband who had deserted her in her young womanhood, and then she could marry the man whom she loved and who loved her, and the little girl could, for the first time within her memory, look in to the face of a woman who loved her and utter the unutterably sweet word, "Mother."

In a mountain county where she resides, she will bring her suit, obtain her divorce and marry this summer, and she has gone back home for the purpose of instituting the suit now. Would any one deny to her the pleasure that will come into her life because of this new relation when she has suffered so much with not even the recompense of love and sympathy? Yet there are those who say that the divorce laws are too lax—that this woman ought not to have this divorce. For our part we stand with the woman and the law!

He Was an "Angel."

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"It's easy enough to make friends," growled the dyspeptic, "but its hard to keep them."

"Oh, I don't know," replied the jovial fat man who was notoriously generous, "I find that all my friends are satisfied to let me keep them."

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR Cures Colds; Prevents Pneumonia

GRADUAL DECLINE

This is the fate of sufferers from Kidney trouble, as the disease is so insiduous that often people have serious Kidney trouble without knowing the real cause of their illness, as diseased kidneys allow the impurities to stay in the system and attack the other organs. This accounts for the many different symptoms of Kidney Disease.

You begin to feel better at once when taking as it stimulates the heart, increases the circulation and invigorates the whole system. It strengthens the urinary organs and gives you new life and vigor.

Chicago Business Man Cured

Foley & Co., Chicago, Gentlemen:—About a year ago my health began to fail, I lost flesh and never felt well. The doctor thought I had stomach and liver trouble, but I became convinced that my kidneys were the cause of my ill health and commenced taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE. It increased my appetite and made me feel stronger, and the annoying symptoms disappeared. I am now sound and well.—J. K. Horn, 1354 Diversey Blvd., Chicago. June 11, 1902.

Cured His Wife

E. C. Watkins, sexton of the Methodist Church, Springfield, Pa., writes: "My wife has been very bad with kidney trouble and tried several doctors without benefit. After taking one bottle of FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE was much better, and was completely cured after taking four bottles."

One Bottle Cured Him

A. H. Davis, Mt. Sterling, Ia., writes: "I was troubled with kidney complaint for about two years, but a one-dollar bottle of FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE effected a permanent cure."

Wise Words From a Wise Head.

By Chas. E. Taylor, President Wake Forest College.

"Three facts may I believe, be regarded as certain: First: That white and black people, both in increasing numbers, are going to remain and live together in this state. Second, that there will be no intermarriage between these races and that this may be the case, there will be no social equality. Third, that for his own good and aim the black man will henceforth be eliminated as a potent factor from the political life of the State. These are finally settled.

"Can we, under these conditions, live side by side and tread together the paths of peace, friendliness and prosperity? I believe it to be possible. The practical answer must be given by the educated white men of the South, who ultimately, are the shapers of public opinion. Hitherto we have been embarrassed by criticism and interference, sometimes friendly, sometimes impertinent, from beyond our borders. These later months have witnessed a marvelous and happy change in this sentiment. We are now, for the first time, at liberty, comparatively unhampered, to set our own house in order. And this fact imposes tremendous responsibility. Conscience, as well expediency and tact, must be summoned into the council as we face the future.

"The educated men of our State, in proportion as they recognize essential manhood and endowments of personality in the negro, in proportion as they mete out even-handed justice and frown upon unwarranted infliction of penalties; in proportion as they, being stronger and wiser and rulers by the grace of God, render loving service to a weak and ignorant people and deny opportunity to none, they—the educated white men, will make this State a veritable garden of plenty and peace for the people of both races. If these fail to lift and carry this burden in the fear of God, woe unto our children and our children's children.

"As a lover of my country, I speak from the high ground of ethics and religion. For, in the situation which will confront you young men, an ounce of religion will be worth a pound of politics."

Confirmation.

Lippincott's Magazine.

"I wish to state," said the fresh young lawyer, rising in court, "that the rumor to the effect that John Doe, now under indictment for murder, has attempted to commit suicide, has no foundation in fact. I saw him this morning, and he has retained me to defend his life."

"That seems to confirm the rumor," said the judge. "Let the case proceed."

Have the Habit of Running Away.

Reidsville Correspondence Charlotte Observer.

At Pelham yesterday among the passengers arriving from Lynchburg, Va., were Miss Georgia Downey of Amherst county, Va., and Mr. James Mitchell of Bedford Va. It was an easy matter for the observant eye to see that they were on matrimony bent and a few questions of those nearby confirmed the truth of the conjecture, and the purpose of their visit here was made known to Esquire Pierce who stands ready at all time to serve the interest of those inclined, and he soon made the happy twain one. They returned to Lynchburg on the train. A peculiar circumstance is that Miss Downey is the third daughter of her family, and Mr. Mitchell is the third son of his, to run away and get married at this place in the past few years.
