Thus science hopes to obtain light on the cases, manner of transmission, conditions that seem to favor the prevalence of the disease, as well as those most marked where it is least prevalent. Much more deadly than small pox, and perhaps as easily communicated, is pneumonia, yet cities and States are up in arms against smallpox, communities go into panic over its presence, and it is popularly regarded as the pest of all pests, while until the last few years pneumonia has been viewed with more or less indifference by all save the medical fraternity.

This is the proper season for a study of the disease, as it begins its ravages with the beginning of winter. It is also the right time to take warning, but not to take fright. Pneumonia is a prevent-able disease to the extent that the chances of contracting it are reduced in proportion to the care taken to keep the system in good tone and, so far as possible, avoid exposure to wet and cold.
