

STOMACH CATARRH.

From Maine to Florida Pe-ru-na's Fame Has Spread.

Gottfried Hemmerich, of Palmer, Fla., says the following in regard to Pe-ru-na for catarrh of the stomach:

My trouble was catarrh of the stomach, and your medicine has performed a miracle in my case, as the doctor I consulted said I could not live if I stayed in Florida. He wanted to send me to a hospital in Knoxville, Tenn. If I had done this I would surely have died. I took Pe-ru-na and now again I have life and energy, and new flesh and blood has replaced what I lost.

Hon. J. D. Botkin, Congressman-at-large from Kansas, says: "A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief from catarrh of the stomach, with which I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century." Address: Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for free book.

DEVELOPMENT ON CATAWBA.

The President of the Company Says that He Can Furnish Electrical Power for the Same Price the Manufacturers Pay for Coal.

Dr. W. Gill Wylie, president of the Southern Power Company, recently chartered under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with $7,500,000 capital, arrived in Charlotte this morning.

Dr. Wylie was seen in his offices in the Trust building and asked to give the News an interview concerning the great power developments that are now and will soon be under construction. When electrical power is under discussion, Dr. Wylie may be counted on to be the most interesting talker that can be found either North or South.

As soon as the News man entered the handsome offices, Dr. Wylie seemed ready for the fray. Electrical power is his hobby and the harnessing of the Catawba in order to develop this power, is his ambition—the goal of his life.

"You may say in the News that the Southern Power Company is now in a position to guarantee the delivery of electrical power at a cost not to exceed the price of the coal used by the steam plants."

Thus spoke Dr. Wylie, and his eyes fairly sparkled when he finished the sentence.

"You know, three years ago I came to Charlotte and told these cotton mill owners what I proposed to do, they looked at me as if I was an escaped lunatic. Many of them thought I had lost my reason. I am in a position today to make good all those seemingly extravagant statements.

"If all the power needed by this immediate section is not available just now, I promise that it will be in the shortest possible time.

"Today I am prepared to sign contracts to furnish any amount of power to new enterprises, erect their buildings and am ready to turn their wheels.

"The Southern Power Company is now engaged in a tremendous undertaking at Great Falls, Chester county, S. C. There we have three falls of 70, 50 and 45 feet. We are now at work developing the 70-foot fall, and as soon as this work is completed we will begin on the other two.

"This work is now being carried on by practically the same force that built and put in service the power plant formerly known as the Catawba Power Company. With the developing of the three falls at Great Falls our capacity will be augmented by 60,000 horse power—this, too, at low water.

"When the work at Great Falls is completed we will move on up the Catawba to Mountain Island, and there begin the development of that property, which will add about 20,000 horse power to our supply.

"It may seem a fairy story to many, but the probability is that my company will not even stop at Mountain Island. I am inclined to believe that we will continue on up the Catawba even as far as Hickory, where there is a fall of 50 feet that would greatly increase our capacity.

"And when we land at Hickory we will be in a position to turn every piece of machinery in the vast area that includes upper South Carolina and the bordering counties of North Carolina."

Great Falls, where the development is now under way, is located on the Wateree river, which in North Carolina is known as the Catawba. It is about 8 miles from Lancaster, 12 miles from Wintonsboro, 15 or 16 miles from Chester and about 10 miles from Heath's Mill. It is the purpose of the Southern Power Company to distribute the power developed at Great Falls in the towns and cities in South Carolina, or at least as much as may be taken. Camden will want some, Columbia will take 10,000 horse power. Then, 10,000 horse power will be brought to Charlotte, thereby increasing the actual amount of horse power to 22,000 for Charlotte.

It is also the intention of the company to distribute 10,000 horse power in Gastonia and that immediate section.

In this connection Dr. Wylie states that the principal distributing points will be Charlotte, Gastonia and Mountain Island.

To complete this gigantic undertaking the company has now on its payroll a large force of hands. The number will be increased just as rapidly as the help can be engaged. Another bill undertaking that will soon be launched by the Southern Power Company is the building of a railroad from Great Falls to one of two points, either Baseville or Fort Lawn, S. C. This will connect with the Chester and Lancaster at either of the above points.

Dr. Wylie states that the output of the plant near Fort Mill, formerly known as the Catawba Power Company, has been practically engaged. The capacity of this plant may be increased by steam power to the amount of 10,000 primary and 4,000 secondary horse power. The district to be traversed by the electrical power from the different plants of the Southern Power Company is about 150 miles in length and 60 to 80 miles in width. This embraces the valley of the watershed of the Catawba.

In connection with the loss of power in transmission, Dr. Wylie states that when his circuit is completed and the different plants are sending out their electrical forces, the loss enroute will not amount to more than 2 per cent. He says that some people imagine that a great deal of the power is lost on account of the distance it comes. With high voltage the loss will be reduced to a very small per cent.

The officers of the Southern Power Company are as follows: W. G. Wylie, president; B. N. Duke, first vice president; W. S. Lee, second vice president and engineer in charge; Richard B. Arrington, secretary and treasurer; W. H. Martin, assistant secretary and treasurer.

If you are troubled with dizzy spells, headache, indigestion, constipation, Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will make you well and keep you well. If it fails get your money back. That's fair. 35 cents. English Drug Co.

Deadly Parallel: Alfalfa vs. Clover. Alfalfa is ready for cutting a full month before red clover. There is a strong advantage in dairy farming, since green crops are needed at the earliest possible month in the spring. After cutting alfalfa springs into growth more promptly than clover and a second crop is produced within eight to six weeks. Clover lasts two years and alfalfa ten to thirty years. In New Jersey the average yield of green forage per acre was 36,540 lbs. for alfalfa and 14,000 lbs. for red clover. The weights of dry hay were 8,258 lbs. and 4,088 lbs., and of protein 2,214 lbs. and 616 lbs. per acre, respectively. In the same state alfalfa was found to contain 1,809 lbs. of dry matter and 265 lbs. of protein per ton as compared with 1,694 lbs. for clover. In other words, alfalfa not only yields two and one-half times as much as red clover, but its feeding value is much greater pound for pound.

Fiendish Suffering is often caused by sores, ulcers and cancers that eat away your skin. Wm. Bedell of Flat Rock, Mich., says: "I have used Bucklen's Arnica Salve for ulcers, sores and cancers. It is the best healing dressing I ever found." Soothers and heals cuts, burns and scalds. 25c. at English Drug Co.'s, guaranteed.

Nothing on the Market equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This fact is well known to druggists everywhere, and none out of ten will give their customers this preparation when the best is asked for. We sell and recommend this preparation." For sale by C. N. Simpson, Jr., and S. J. Welsh.

A Southern Idyl.

Howland Correspondence Lumberton, N. C.

The crop is about laid by. Steaming mules and happy plow hands are dragging through the last cotton middle—just breaking the crust, as it were. The cornfield felt the plowman's farewell touch days ago. But the bottom blades are beginning to ripen, and after a few days of sweet companionship with the "Georgia Kattlesnake" and the "Ol' Swimming Hole," fodder-pulling time will sound a clarion call for the scattered hands. Then the darkies begin to sing on evenings when the cured bundles are being placed systematically around the stack-poles by experienced "stackers" who received the bundles from their companions with as much seriousness of purpose as the masons evince in constructing a building from the brick and mortar laid at their feet by the stooping hod-carriers.

This, however, is only introductory to the grand chorus. The real depth of feeling, the sheer abandon and the proper setting does not come until September has touched the cotton fields, and the great hearts of the maturing bolls burst with joy. That is the supreme moment and the beautiful blended voices of the negro cotton pickers of the South is a sound, once heard, never to be forgotten. One cannot find any adjectives to express the wild, untutored beauty of it. It is a chant of inexpressible rhythm, with a note of sadness and mingled hope and regret, and one cannot stop without burdening it with that indefinable qualification—and call it weird. But this attempt at description is arrant nonsense. It has all been said before, and it is all inadequate. If seeing is believing, hearing is the only possible way of knowing what the sound negroes singing in the cotton fields in September is like.

But the opportunity for satisfying this auditory curiosity is near at hand. For, are we not laying by, and won't fodder soon be ready to pull? And then the town will yield its pilgrimage to the cotton field, the Mecca of the negro of the South. Then will come days and nights filled with song and laughter and the nimble plying of fingers set to music that is perhaps a lone relic of a long forgotten Congo.

So after a Southerner has been out West he is moved to thank God for the Southern woman and the Southern Sabbath! And our observance of Sunday is only an evidence of our old-fashioned Puritan faith in God and the Bible. There is no doubt but that at times we have interpreted both with a rigid and unlovely coldness that has been harmful; but austere Puritanism is ever to any sort of easy Epicureanism that nevertheless leaves man rudderless on a sea of doubt.

In a former letter I mentioned the Westerner's lack of regard for Sunday, and reported some specific illustrations. In San Francisco Sunday closing is entirely optional with the merchant or shopkeeper. Saloons are full blast; the market stalls are liberally patronized; the sound of carpenters building wakes you on Sunday morning; picnic parties march through the streets with brass bands; and at night the theatres probably draw larger crowds than the churches.

Church spires not only are not so prominent in the outlines of Western towns as in the South, but of the churches a large proportion are of the freak sort—Christian Science and Universalist churches, not to mention the Mormons, whose missionary zeal has already been noticed. Somebody has represented a thorough-going Atheist as saying: "I can believe anything provided it is not in the Bible." So it is that many people who think it creditable to accept Biblical stories as true, are yet ready to credit the wildest stores of unsavory spiritualists and "m'iums." I was very much impressed by the large number of fakirs of this sort who advertise in the San Francisco papers.

The reader may think that the day in which the desert claimed its victims passed long ago, but this is not true. The day we arrived in Los Angeles the daily papers told of three young miners who went out prospecting in the Death Valley vicinity. Water failing, they decided at last to separate in their mad search for it. Two lived to get water, but the third died of thirst, and the burial took place while we were there.

In the Unbounded West.

C. H. Post, in Progressive Farmer.

The West is a land of magnificent opportunities, of course, but so is the South, and my conviction is that we have the finest people, the best men and women, in the South that are to be found anywhere. It is a good atmosphere in which to be born and in which to grow up. We have some fine old-fashioned ideals of honor, and a reverence for sacred things, and a reverence for North and the breezy West seem to me to lack.

For one thing, take our regard for women. An Oregon young man whose mother was a Texan spoke to me about this difference between the West and the South. "In Portland," he said, "not one man in a thousand will let a woman go before him in getting on a street car; not one in a thousand will take off his hat if a woman comes into the elevator; while as for giving one's seat to a woman in a street car, I have done this when it made me so conspicuous I almost felt ashamed of myself."

But let me not do an injustice to the Western men. It is not all their fault—not by any means. The Western woman seems to have been trying so aggressively to prove herself the "equal" of man by breaking into his sphere that he does not think of her as belonging to any higher sphere. Down South the women don't vote not because the men don't think them good enough, but because we think them too good. And the experience of Utah and Colorado and Wyoming and other States where woman suffrage obtains only goes to show the striking fitness of the toast a man once proposed in one of these States: "Here's to woman—once our superior, now our equal!"

So after a Southerner has been out West he is moved to thank God for the Southern woman and the Southern Sabbath! And our observance of Sunday is only an evidence of our old-fashioned Puritan faith in God and the Bible. There is no doubt but that at times we have interpreted both with a rigid and unlovely coldness that has been harmful; but austere Puritanism is ever to any sort of easy Epicureanism that nevertheless leaves man rudderless on a sea of doubt.

Religious Cranks Must Observe the Civil Laws.

Stateville, Ill., Landmark.

In Winston there is a religious crank, one Tom Hege, who is of the Seventh Day Adventist faith. Hege keeps a small store which he closes on Saturday (his Sabbath) and opens on Sunday. He has been arrested many times for violating the Sunday law, has been fined and sent to jail often, but so far as appears he has never paid any fine or stayed in jail longer than a few days at a time. The mayor seems to have regarded Hege as a white elephant and to have handled him gingerly (just why he didn't go ahead and enforce the law and let consequences take care of themselves it is hard to understand), the newspapers have given him more notoriety than he deserved, and strange to say a good many people have apparently lent their efforts toward making a hero and a martyr out of the commonest sort of crank. A few days ago Hege was arrested and sentenced to 60 days in jail. He appealed and the Superior Court affirmed the mayor's decision. The case goes to the Supreme Court and Hege says he will take it to the United States Supreme Court. This is a land of religious liberty and the landmark stands for the widest freedom in religious belief. But we have no patience with people who come along and try to overturn existing conditions like Sabbath observance, which has been recognized for centuries. The Jews hold that the seventh day is the Sabbath, but Jews have too much sense to defy the laws providing for the observance of the first day of the week. If one is allowed to practice anything which may hold is sanctioned by the Bible, the Mormons should not be disturbed in the practice of polygamy; they have as much right to disregard the law against plural marriages as the Seventh Day Adventists, has to disregard the law which provides for the observance of the first day of the week as the Sabbath.

No Man Eaters There. To the Editor: The story printed in your paper in reference to a shark eating a boy near Davis Shore, this county, is absolutely without foundation whatever. The boy's uncle talked with me yesterday and said the boy was very much alive at present.

I have been living in Beaufort since 1893 and I have never known of a man-eating shark being seen in our waters during that time. In fact, I never heard of any such sharks here infesting our waters.

The shark found about here is small and is afraid of a man or a boy. I have seen fishermen jump right overboard when sharks were playing and scare them away. I cannot imagine how such a story should have been started as the one published in the papers about the boy being devoured by one at Davis Shore, which is about twenty-five miles from here.

I sincerely trust that all the State papers and other papers which have printed this fake shark story will correct the same and as conspicuously as the first was published.

A story of that kind is calculated to damage Beaufort and Morehead City as resorts. Nothing of the kind happened and nothing of the kind will happen, I am sure.

A Warning to Mothers. Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by C. N. Simpson, Jr., and S. J. Welsh.

I eat almost anything with perfect impunity, except health food. That is the only thing I ever have trouble with. Health food will send my pulse down to forty eight in less than an hour. A man must have a very strong constitution to stand up against food which is already prepared, so that all he has to do is to swallow it.

I exercise a great deal in the open air. In summer I follow a lawn-mower around for an hour each day, and in winter I take a spin on the elevated railroad.

I keep a notebook, in which I write all my best thoughts. I then put the book in a side pocket of my coat and give the coat to a poor man whose address I do not know.

I give a great deal to charity, but try to keep it out of the papers as far as possible.

When the weather is such that I cannot exercise in the open air I have a heavy pair of dumb bells at my lodgings, which I use for holding the door open. I also belong to an athletic club and a pair of Indian clubs with red handles. I owe much of my robust health to this.

I do most of my writing in a sitting posture or in an autograph album. When I am not engaged in thought I am employed in recovering from its effects. I am very genial and pleasant to be thrown amongst and frequently submit to all kinds of indignities, especially from people to whom I am indebted, rather than resent it and cause them pain.

I keep a large pair of brass knuckles, which I wear on my feet while riding in a crowded car. This I like better than getting myself upholstered every week.

I do not believe in mixing up alcohol with literature. Literature with nothing else in it will last longer when exposed to the air than the other kind.

In dress expensively, but not so as to attract attention. In the morning I wear morning dress, and at night I wear evening dress, and at night I wear night dress.

I have forgotten what books have helped me most; also what my favorite passages of prose and poetry are. I do not know the best of home influences when a child, and everybody has been very kind to me, so I cannot say definitely what it was that brought me here.
