

The Triumph in Wadesboro.

"A little more than two years ago a local option election was held in Wadesboro which resulted in a victory for the opponents of open saloons and stills by a majority of 6. Another local option election was held Tuesday, at which the following vote was cast:

"For saloons, 160; against saloons, 107—majority for saloons, 53. "For stills, 137; against stills, 125—majority for stills, 12."

The above is from the last week's issue of the Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer. It is a great cause for rejoicing. The sturdy manhood of the good old county has asserted itself and freedom sits again upon the mountain heights. The preachers, the women and other fanatics have been put to rout. Everybody who believes in the natural rights of man should give a whoop and go to Wadesboro and take a drink. Narrow-mindedness and provincialism have been cast off by this cosmopolitan town, and it is now the only place between Wilmington and Asheville where Lee-born Saxons, cherishing all the ancestral hatred for oppression and tyranny, can walk up to the counter and drink out of the same glass that has been used by a free nigger a short time before.

Sound the loud timbrel o'er this be-nighted section, for liberty again reigns in Wadesboro and only a few more policemen will be necessary to restrain her. Watch the good place take on new life and vigor and recover from the blight that the reign of the fanatics has entailed. Watch the thousands of horny-handed sons of the soil who will trade where they can buy drink, rush from the phariseal towns around and buy their goods from the town where the bird of liberty has again squatted. Not only will the sons of liberty in that town have somewhere to go and take a freeman's drink when they feel like it, but their sons will also. The boys and youth may not now sit at home or suck their fingers at the starvation parties as they were compelled to do under the rule of the oppressors, for now they may gather nightly in the nice warm bars and take a social game of cards and a drop of something to cheer the heart.

No ice wagon will be run after this week. Ice will be kept on hand and sold at the ice house, but none delivered after this week. J. D. Parker.

The printers of Charlotte went out on a strike yesterday and the daily press of that place is badly crippled. The job printers of the place work nine hours a day and they brought on the strike, contending for eight hours. While the newspaper printers already work only eight hours and have no grievance, they struck at the order of the International Union in order to enforce the demands of the job printers. The papers say that they will resist the order to the last and will run their shops with non-union labor just as soon as it can be secured. Hand compositors and linotype operators are now in demand in Charlotte.

Story Concerning a Day's Market. It will be remembered that cotton took a spurt Friday. The New York American tells the following story in its Saturday issue as to the cause of it:

"A little luncheon at Delmonico's, in Beaver street, was responsible for a 20 point rise in the cotton market yesterday.

"Col. W. P. Brown of New Orleans, who has risen from a grocery clerkship to the position as a leader in the cotton market, and Frank B. Hayne, scion of one of the oldest families in the South, were the chief members of the little luncheon party. When they met yesterday they compared notes and agreed there was a pretty good opportunity to make a little spending money. So they decided to buy 100,000 bales of December cotton. They took into the deal several of the other Southern cotton dealers who are now in the city. Then they adjourned over to the Cotton Exchange, and inside of 15 minutes they had changed the appearance of the entire cotton pit. Cotton, under the personal buying of the Southern leaders, jumped several points at a time, and the many little bears got scared and fairly scrambled over one another in an effort to cover, even the great bear leaders, among them Theodore H. Price, became worried. The other bulls, especially the so-called Wall Street crowd, fell in with the movement, and, before the Southerners had been able to take in more than 50,000 bales, the price of December cotton had advanced 20 points, to $10.77.

Wingate News. Correspondence of The Journal. Wingate, Sept. 24.—Messrs. D. H. Perry, Lindsay Austin and R. L. Womble have recently been to Sanford on a business trip.

Mr. Blair Bivens has a position at Monroe with the McKee Mercantile Company. He spent yesterday in Wingate.

Prof. J. M. Massey gave an entertainment at the academy Friday night.

Mr. J. B. Williams of Monroe spent the seventeenth with Mr. I. B. Mullis. Mr. W. E. McWhorter has a position at Marshville in the hardware department of the M. K. Lee Mercantile Company.

Mr. J. M. Sullivan, a student of the Wingate School, returned to his home at Ruby last Monday. He was unable to remain in school on account of ill health.

Mr. Mike Parker of Albemarle was in town a few days ago. He was a student of Wingate and has since spent sometime at Wake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Ashcraft spent yesterday at the home of Mr. J. W. Bivens. Mr. Ashcraft attended the Sunday school in the morning, of which he was superintendent for a long time, and gave us an interesting talk on the lessons of the quarter.

The Gladstone and Philonian literary societies have arranged for a public debate at the close of the quarter. They will discuss a very timely question: Resolved, That Japan got her just dues in the peace conference.

Story Concerning a Day's Market. It will be remembered that cotton took a spurt Friday. The New York American tells the following story in its Saturday issue as to the cause of it:

Mr. John Williamson's Slayer Sentenced to Ten Years. Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer. The second trial of the case against Henry Young for the killing of John H. Williamson, at Hamlet, February 21st, 1903, ended at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning when Judge Neal sentenced Young to the penitentiary for ten years, the jury having found him guilty of manslaughter.

The case was moved to Anson from Richmond county and was first tried last September. This trial resulted in a mistrial, two members of the jury holding out for acquittal while ten favored a verdict of manslaughter.

On the night of February 21st, 1903, Williamson, who was a young man of about 22 years of age, was on his way from Troy, where he had been at work, to his home in Monroe. There was a young man with Williamson by the name of Hill, who was intoxicated, though Williamson himself was sober. While Williamson and Hill were in Auman's bar Hill commenced crying because, as he said, he had lost his valise while on his way to his grandfather's funeral. About this time Henry Young entered the bar and, noticing Hill crying, cursed him, calling him a dam s-n of a b-h. Some one then took Young to the rear end of the bar room, but Young almost immediately returned to where Williamson and Hill were standing. As Young came in the second time Williamson spoke to him and told him "not to call his friend that any more."

To this Young said, "Damn you, you take it up!" and immediately pulled his pistol and fired. The ball struck Williamson near the heart and he died in about fifteen minutes. Young made his escape but was captured a few days later at the home of his sister in Union county.

The case was taken up on the second trial last Thursday morning about 10 o'clock. As the State only asked for a verdict of murder in the second degree no special venire was ordered.

The killing being admitted the entire case hinged on whether or not Young was insane when he fired the fatal shot. The defense claimed that he was insane and that his insanity resulted from the excessive use of whiskey. A number of witnesses testified that at different times, commencing about August before the homicide, that they had seen the defendant acting in such a manner as indicated that he was suffering from delirium tremens. Drs. W. H. Steele of Rockingham, H. F. Kinsman of Hamlet, and J. M. Covington, Jr., of Wadesboro, were introduced as experts by the defense. They all testified that in their opinion the actions of Young, as testified to by the witnesses for the defense, indicated that he was suffering from delirium tremens or alcoholic mania.

The State's contention was that Young was not suffering from delirium tremens at the time of the killing but was just ordinarily drunk. Dr. C. E. Ross of Morganton was introduced as an expert, and testified that in his opinion that the acts testified to by defendant's witnesses were not caused by delirium tremens, but were simply the acts of a drunken man.

The evidence in the case was concluded Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The opening speech was made by Frank Armfield, Esq., of Monroe for the State, who was followed by Cameron Morrison, Esq., of Charlotte for the defense. Mr. H. H. Melendon next spoke for the State, after which Hon. Jas. A. Lockhart closed for the defense. Solicitor Robinson made the closing argument for the State. All the speeches were of a high order. Indeed the case on both sides was conducted with consummate ability, though without bitterness.

Judge Neal concluded his very able and exhaustive charge to the jury Tuesday afternoon at 6 o'clock and the jury returned a verdict at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. After the verdict was returned Judge Neal adjourned court until 10:30 o'clock, stating that he desired to consider the matter further before passing sentence. Before sentence was pronounced Messrs. Whitlock and Lockhart of counsel for the defense made touching appeals to the Judge for their client.

Notice of appeal was given by Young's counsel and Young's appearance bond was placed at $6,500. This he has not yet given and he is now in jail.

Henry Young, who was only 22 years old when the crime was committed, is rather a prepossessing looking young man. He has not a bad face, though his countenance denotes that he is not a well balanced man. He is a son of Mr. J. D. Young of Rockingham. Mr. Young was a former citizen of this county and both he and the young man's mother and brothers have the sympathy of all who know them in the trouble this deplorable affair has brought upon them.

Wolfsville Cross Roads Talk on Different Subjects.

News about the Cross Roads is scarce, all we get is through the press and over the telephone. A man with the postoffice at his gate and a telephone in the house has no excuse to sit around the store and whistle goods boxes and listen to country gossip.

Rev. Mr. Holland of Atlanta, Ga., has finished a seven days' meeting. When he asked all who wanted God's blessing on the meeting to come up and give him their hands, Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians walked up the aisle and responded to the request. I hope to see the time when God's table is spread all his people will walk up and take seats around it. Sam Jones says when he gets to heaven he expects to see the people of God coming from the four corners of the earth—the Catholics with a cross on the breast, the Presbyterians walking with an air of dignity, the Methodists shouting, and a boat coming putting down the river loaded to the water's edge with the Baptists.

I see an ex-mayor has assailed one of our judges. The judge had sentenced a man according to the request of a jury impaneled by the State. The court let him off light. We believe that the judiciary of North Carolina is as near perfect as it has been in forty years. Judges Cloud, Logan and Tourgeou put no stars in the judicial crown of North Carolina. Ralph P. Buxton was a good man. Judge Norwood had his weakness, he had Noah and Lot. If justice is defeated today, it lies at the feet of the jury. If a jury says a man is guilty and recommends mercy from the court, the judge is honor-bound to extend it to the prisoner; and if the jury renders a verdict of acquittal, all the courts in the United States can't arraign him again for that same offense. So our jurors should be our best men. When a juror takes a seat in the jury-box, he should drive all malice from his heart, political or what not all race prejudice, and remember that the prisoner's liberty, or may be his life, is in their hands and they will be held responsible on that great day for their action. I once heard of a good man in an adjoining county who was on a venire in a murder case. He was asked if he had formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. He like a man arose and told the court he was opposed to capital punishment. Of course that let him out. The magistrate who refuses the prosecutor or defendant counsel or witnesses, and taxes them with the cost, will some day enter the flourishing valley that blazes with fire and brimstone. Robert Emmitt, the great Irish patriot, was convicted and hung for defending his country, and not one of his countrymen was allowed on the jury. The jury that tried the Kluks at Columbia, S. C., in 1871 was badly mixed with negroes, so was the grand and petit juries that were drawn to try Jefferson Davis, and with that mongrel crew he was denied a trial till the day of his death. I once heard a good veteran of the 30th N. C. Regiment say that there was a good man in his company who was wounded and got a furlough, and when his furlough was out he was not able for duty, but got the consent of one of his officers to stay at home ten days longer. At the expiration of that time he reported to his command. He was asked to show cause why he did not return at the expiration of his furlough. He said one of his officers gave him ten days to get able for duty. They did not believe his report and a courtmartial was set for a certain day, with no witnesses. The night before his trial he put himself under the protection of the stars and stripes. His witness appeared the next day and said he had given him permission to stay at home ten days more.

The first trial by a jury in the United States was at Jamestown, Va., that of Capt. John Smith, who was charged with a crime by the royal government. He demanded a jury and got it, and they acquitted him. The State should protect a juror, the corner, and the doctor who holds an inquest. I once knew a fight over the verdict of a corner's inquest, in the town of Monroe, forty years after the homicide. The doctor showed the jurors the wounds on the dead body, and the jury decided the case by the wounds. It occurred a few miles east of town. A relative met in a bar room the son of the doctor and branded the doctor as a scoundrel about the inquest. The doctor's son gave him what Paddy gave the drum. He fell the first lick, shouted murder the next, and then the doctor's son was taken off. The boy who won't fight for his daddy is no good. C. C. M.

Great Day at the Monroe Oil Mill and Henderson Roller Mill. About half way between the Oil Mill and the Henderson Roller Mill there has been recently erected a nice large brick store room. It is a nice, handy and commodious a building for a store room as can be found anywhere.

The greatest day for east Monroe, a day that will tell more for the future of that thriving part of town than any other, is the day that J. W. Hill & Co. moved a large stock of groceries and dry goods into that store room.

They now have a complete line of all kinds of groceries, heavy and fancy, which they will sell most extra ordinarily cheap. This is a new concern, located in a new place. It asks for a part of the patronage. It has its reputation to make and in order to do so it has determined right in the beginning to sell only the best goods for the lowest possible price.

We respectfully ask our friends to watch our ads in the future and give us a trial at our new store at the Oil Mill. Yours for business and accommodation. J. W. HILL & CO.
