The Real Santa Claus.
Rev. C. A. U. Thomas in Baptist Messenger.

The following from the New York Sun concerning Santa Claus is very beautiful, and ought to stir the heart of every parent to an effort to make Santa Claus real in their homes, and every child to enjoy his annual visit. A child asks the question which comes to every child, and the Sun answers it beautifully. Read for yourselves:

"Dear Editor: I am 8 years old.

"Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, 'If you see it in the Sun it's so.' Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

"VIRGINIA O'HANLON."

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas, how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be like dreary as if there were no Virgins. There would be no child-like faith then, no poetry, no romance, to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might as well not hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders that are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You may tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God, he lives, and he lives forever! A thousand years from now, Virginia, may ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

REAL LIFE IN JAPAN.

Rev. Stephen A. Stewart Writes About the People and How They Live—"Wide Streets" of Kobe.
To the Editor of The Journal:

Perhaps a few words from this side the Pacific may be welcomed by your readers, now that the Japanese question has aroused so much interest in the United States. However, I may say in the outset that I know nothing of the merits of the discussion in San Francisco, and will therefore refrain from expressing any opinion in regard to it. But I may say that the Japanese are extremely sensitive on the segregation of their people in separate schools in San Francisco. Even the school boys here read about it and debate it with vigor. If it were not for the stand the administration at Washington has taken in regard to it, I think the feeling here would be quite bitter and might take retaliatory form in the shape of a boycott.

But I started to write of our trip and a few things we have seen since coming. Our ocean trip was exceedingly favorable; there was no rough sea at all during the whole trip of twenty days which we spent in coming from San Francisco to Kobe. Our trip was broken by only two stops, one at Honolulu and one at Yokohama. I don't know how it impresses other visitors, but the Hawaiian Islands appeared to me to be in a very flourishing condition. One thing is certain, Honolulu presents a splendid spectacle to the tourist. Its streets are broad and well cleaned, its business houses are many and flourishing, and its dwellings are very creditable, by no means the low flat-roofed huts so often seen in the East. And just at the season at which we were there was a veritable Garden of Edeh, with all kinds of tropical fruits, which unfortunately were cumbered with unpronounceable names, and with an endless variety of flowers and evergreen shrubs that made one think of summer homes and parks. You see, I left our new island possessions with a decidedly favorable impression.

When we reached Yokohama we had to stop two days waiting for the exchanging of cargoes, and so we ran over to Tokyo, the Emperor's city, and thus got our first impressions of Japan. Of course, the first thing one noticed when we went ashore was the hundreds of little two-wheeled, one-seated carriages called kuruma or jirikisha (pronounced jin-rik-sha), each having a man in the shafts instead of a horse. Some one has aptly called them the "pull-man-cars" of Japan. You jump in, tell the man where you want to go, and off he goes at a brisk trot. It is not very expensive, about four or five cents a mile. But this is more expensive than street cars in America, and we miss them very much in Kobe.

In Yokohama, Tokyo and Kobe we have broad streets—the broadest ones being about like the narrowest ones in Monroe. But these are not very numerous, and little narrow, winding alleys are most common. These are usually from four to six feet wide. I suppose all their streets were like these before Western civilization reached them. Along with the narrow streets go the low, flat-roofed houses, all crowded together in a great jumble. Each house is a combination shop, factory and residence. As one walks along the crowded streets he can see all phases of life at a single glance: a few men and women may be making some article for sale, as matting; a child may be keeping the shop or store in the front part of the same room; and one woman may be out washing clothes over the street gutter, and another washing rice by her side preparing to cook it for the family meal. Domestic privacy is almost a thing unknown, and their code of etiquette allows them to do anything essential to one's comfort almost anywhere and any time. If some of the home people could see the low state of ordinary Japanese life and society, they would reform their ideas in regard to them as a nation. It is true that they have done many remarkable things, but their ordinary life is far from being leavened by the civilization of the West to any great extent at present. Think of a city the size of Kobe (about 350,000 population including outlying districts) having an open sewerage system, so that one gets all kinds of nauseating smells as he passes along the ordinary thoroughfares! And the sights one sees are no less disgusting than the odors he smells.

Another thing that one notices is the hard burdens of the people. How they do work! This is especially true of the 'riksha men and the draymen, for we must not forget that man does the work of the dray in the East. Most of the dray work is done by men. They have their little low, two-wheeled carts (nigarruma) on which they haul heavy loads. What few horses there are, look to be stock imported from the islands of the Lilliputians, wherever that may have been, and they are as ugly as they are small. It is all right for them to be small—everything Japanese is diminutive in size, from the people themselves to the oranges which they grow. (I will make an exception of persimmons and chestnuts, which are really very large.)

Sunday is now a legal holiday, but not many of the stores close, and the working class do not seem to get much benefit from it. Now as I write I hear the rattle of 'riksha wheels and the pounding of the hammer on new buildings that are being erected near.

But this letter grows too long. I will tell the children of my trip to Minomo yesterday and close. At this season—middle November—the maple leaves are exceedingly beautiful here in their autumn garb. It is so near the coast that we have not yet had any frost and very little need of fire, so the leaves

DO YOU KNOW

That Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine sold through druggists for women's weaknesses and general ailments that does not contain large quantities of alcohol? It is also the only medicine, specially prepared for the cure of the delicate diseases peculiar to women, the maker of which is not afraid to take his name to the public, as containing no potent ingredients entering into the medicine. Ask your druggist if it is not true.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, all the ingredients of which have the unqualified endorsement of the leading medical writers of the several schools of practice, recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Prescription" is advised.

Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free booklet, and read the numerous extracts from standard medical authorities praising the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicine is made, and don't forget that no other medicine put up for sale through druggists for domestic use can show any such professional endorsement. This of itself, is of far more weight and importance than any amount of so-called "testimonials" so commonly seen in the hands of the public, in favor of the alcoholic compounds.

The "Favorite Prescription" cures all women's ailments, such as irregular menstruations, bearing-down discharges, leukorrhoea, and all the various ailments in lower abdomen, accompanied by weakening and disagreeable catarrhal, pelvic drains and kindred symptoms.

Dr. R. V. Pierce and his staff of skilled specialists may be consulted free by addressing as above. All correspondence is treated as strictly confidential. By consulting in this way the disagreeable questions and personal "examinations" are avoided.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser contains some very interesting and valuable chapters on the diseases peculiar to women. It contains over one thousand pages. It is sent post paid, on receipt of ten cents. You may also pay cost of mailing only, or 25 cents for a copy in flexible paper covers, or 50 cents for a cloth-bound copy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce as above.

Mr. Roosevelt, the Storer and Mr. Dubois.

Mr. Bellamy Storer, late minister to Austria, Mr. Bellamy Storer and Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, have been much in the papers the past few days and the incidents in connection therewith are creditable to none of them. Mr. Roosevelt and the Storer were great friends, the friendship existing prior to Mr. Roosevelt's elevation to the presidency. Some months ago Mr. Roosevelt dismissed Mr. Storer from office. Thereupon Mr. Storer published a pamphlet charging the President with bad faith and various other things. Thereupon Mr. Roosevelt replied and in accordance with his custom when he is in a tight place, he called Mr. Storer a liar more or less directly.

The Storer pamphlet contained private letters which the President had written to Mr. Storer, whom he addressed as "My Dear Bellamy," and to Mrs. Storer, whom he addressed as "My Dear Maria," at different times. The Storer's are Catholics. In one of his letters to Mrs. Storer Mr. Roosevelt, discussing the good and bad points of his cabinet, said he would like to have Bellamy in his cabinet when he could find a place for him, as all things being equal, he would like to have a Catholic in the cabinet. This consideration of religion purely for political purposes was bad enough, but was not so bad as what is to follow. Mr. Storer alleges, and the evidence sustains him, that the President wanted Archbishop Ireland appointed a cardinal. While the President directed to make this request directly to the Pope he instructed Storer to say to the Pope that he would be gratified to see the archbishop thus honored. Of course this mixing in the affairs of the Catholic church on the part of the President was purely for political purposes, the object being to gain favor for himself and the Republican party among the Catholics. The Storer's, especially "My Dear Maria," being anxious for their own advancement, that of their church and to please the President, made themselves quite officious in carrying out what they allege was the President's wishes, but they were not discreet in their zeal. The news of the affair leaked out and Catholics who preferred the promotion of another over Archbishop Ireland began to complain. Then Mr. Roosevelt turned on the Storer's, laid all the blame on them and kicked Storer out of office.

Replying to Storer's charge that the President had authorized him to say to the Pope that he would be pleased to see Archbishop Ireland made a cardinal, the President says it is "not only an untruth but an absurd untruth." This from a letter from the archbishop to Mrs. Storer leaves the President in a bad plight.

"The President said to me: 'Mr. Storer has told you what I said to him about you, archbishop?'"

"I replied, 'I do not remember.'"

"About his going to Rome?"

"I said, 'No.'"

"Well," he said, "I told him I would not write a letter to the Pope asking for honors to you, but I said that he could go to Rome and say, viva voce, to the Pope how much I wish you to be cardinal, and how grateful I personally would be to him for giving you that honor."

In any event it is clear that Mr. Roosevelt has been trying to advance himself and the Republican party by meddling in religious matters, and this is contemptible. Only last week in the Senate, Senator Dubois of Ohio, an earnest and conscientious opponent of the influence of the Mormon church in the politics of the Western States, charged that Mr. Roosevelt during the last campaign knowingly and willfully made an alliance with the leaders of the Mormon church for political purposes; that in pursuance of this combination Gentiles were removed from Federal offices and Mormon bishops and other adherents of the Mormon church appointed. Mr. Dubois says he protested to both the President and postoffice department against these appointments and his protests were ignored.

A dispatch from Holland recently told of the ending of a war that had lasted 243 years. This war has been waged for that length of time between the stout-hearted Dutch and the savages of the diamond-crusted, gold-dusted island of Celebes, in the East Indies. It took more than two centuries to subdue these savages, and when the war began New York was but a village, the Pilgrims had been in New England but 40 years and Charles XI was on the throne of England.

Jacob Tararovsky, of Brooklyn, died recently of consumption, contracted while experimenting with the germ that causes consumption, in the hope that he might add his mite to the world's knowledge of this dread disease that takes of more people than any other malady. FOR SALE!

About 225 Acres Very Very Fine Land.

Needs the Money.

Land lies well, five-room tenant house, good barn and outbuildings, well watered with fine spring as ever bubbled from the mountain side; about 25 acres open land, which pays in rent yearly from $8 to $10 per acre. About 100 acres natural forest, about 100 acres of second growth, which will average at least 75 or 80 cords wood per acre. This land is very fertile and early, black gravel with red clay foundation. It will easily produce from twelve to fifteen hundred lbs. seed cotton per acre. About 15 acres bottom land that will produce from forty to fifty bushels corn per acre. If it's the most good land and timber (both lumber and cord wood timber) you want in a small body, here it is. Parties wishing, can obtain public road right through the place. One of as healthy locations as on the globe. Parties looking for an ideal all-round farm, for health, fine water, money making, near Monroe, (1 1/2 miles,) with the most timber and most fertile land in one small body, look at this. It's necessary for it to be seen to be appreciated. This plantation is as cheap as ten thousand dollars as potatoes at thirty cents per bushel. The timber alone on the land will more than pay for the same and when in cultivation three or four years' rent will pay for the land the second time. Finest cotton, clover and small grain grit in the county and easiest cultivated.

For particulars see John C. Sikes or G. M. Beasley, real estate dealers, Monroe, N. C.
