One Dollar a Year

An Old Veteran Tells Some War Stories.

Written for The Journal.

I HAVE thought after this remote day to give a brief summary of our campaign in the spring and summer of '64. We left our winter quarters near Orange C. H. about the 1st of May, and were engaged then in the Battle of the Wilderness, which occurred on May the 5th. One man of our company was killed, D. M. Little, and several wounded. So sure were the Yankees of whipping us there, till before going into the fight they put all their baggage in a pile, expecting to get it after the fight was over. But in the wind up we drove them back at a break-neck speed. So we got the spoils and burdened ourselves with heavy wool blankets, overcoats, knapsacks and the like.

Early next morning we were ordered to move on down to Spottsylvania. It being quite a hot day and being pushed, we had not gone far before the road began to be literally lined with our extra luggage, and it was so all the way.

We got down to Spottsylvania late in the evening, and charged and drove back a body of Yankees. Just as we halted, one of our men fired his gun in the direction the Yankees had gone and killed one of our own company, William Medina. We were in the vicinity of Spottsylvania for two weeks or more, fierce fighting going on more or less every day.

On the 12th of May, supporting a battery, we lay behind our breastworks in mud and water all day, there being a fierce artillery fire going on and we dared not raise our heads during the day. Two of the artillerymen walked up close to where I was lying and sat down with their backs to the works and their heads above. In a short while a cannon ball came quartering across and killed them both, tearing their heads literally to pieces.

A day or two later we were ordered to move around and attack in the rear. So early in the evening we got around and made the attack, the Yankees giving back for some distance. Finally they turned on us and we were rapidly being flanked and were driven back, and night coming on we moved back to our breastworks.

On that occasion we had lost 14 of our company; two killed, R. H. Moore and J. F. Lingle, and several wounded and some captured. On one evening the Yankees charged on our works at a point just to the right of our company, a number of them crossing over works and firing an enflading fire down our line. There was great confusion and our Major and Color Bearer were both killed and one of our company, I. A. Elliott. Some reserves came to our rescue and we drove them back.

Later on we moved again, our next pitch being at Cold Harbor, where we had another battle, our casualties there being light. Our next pitch was some few miles down below Richmond, where we had another fight and where Rev. J. A. Bivens lost his arm and John S. Marsh was killed and others of our company wounded. By that time our company was reduced to only 32 men.

After resting a day our corps (which was Jackson's old corps) was ordered to Lynchburg to fight or drive back the Yankee General Hunter, who was raiding that section of country. After a wearisome march we arrived at Lynchburg on Sunday evening. Early next morning we drew 6 crackers and 1 pound of bacon and started to hunt up Hunter, but Hunter had taken the hint and was moving back with all his might. We chased him for four days through a rough, mountainous country and the weather awful hot, and we had nothing more to eat after we left Lynchburg. Hunter's men had slaughtered beavers along the road and left the carcasses lying. Our men would run out and trim off small bits and carry it along. We went as far as the town of Salem, where we gave up the pursuit and turned our course to the right.

Going down by Lexington, the home of Jackson, we marched around Jackson's grave. The ladies there brought us out some refreshments. We moved on, passing the Natural Bridge and on to Stanton, where we went marching on down the valley.

From Stanton we marched on to Winchester. In the meantime I had become sick and with a few others was sent back to Charlottesville Hospital. The command moved on to Harper's Ferry, where they surprised and captured a lot of Yankees, but as I was not along I cannot give any details.

Crossing the Potomac River, they again invaded Maryland, moving to some point not far distant from Washington, where they did some very fierce fighting, the command being badly cut up. We lost three of our company. Ananias Brigham, John A. Harrill and M. W. Nelson were either killed or captured, as they were never heard of afterwards.

I remained at the hospital three weeks when, with four others, we left to return to our command, which had recrossed the river and was not far from Harper's Ferry. We went as far as Stanton by rail, but from there we had to take it on foot, it being some 75 or 80 miles. We leisurely took our time, and had not much to eat and had to forage along and do the best we could.

One morning we spied a nice patch of beans near the roadside. I proposed to stop and pick off a mess of beans and get them cooked at some farm house, but they all seemed rather backward. "Well," I said, "if you all will walk on slowly and wait for me I will get the beans."

So I hopped into the bean patch and gathered a mess of beans; and going on, about midday we stopped at a farm house near the roadside and engaged an old colored "auntie" to cook our beans; we had among us enough bacon for the seasoning. We lay and rested while our beans were cooking, and in due time "auntie" brought them out nicely cooked on a huge dish.

We gathered around, and without any grace we eat until there was not any left, but I think we had enough. Somehow we found that "auntie" had a family apple pie in the stove, and we bought it and paid her two dollars for it. We fell in and ate that up and felt like we had had one more square meal.

Next day we met our command a few miles above Harper's Ferry, wending their way back towards Winchester, and in a few days we were back in the vicinity of that historic town and there, on Monday, the 19th of September, we had another pitched battle.

I had never been hit by a bullet up to that time, but it seemed that day that they had taken a notion to try and put me out of the way. After being in the fight two or three hours, a bullet struck my left breast; but I was carrying a small bullet in that pocket which the bullet struck, and in all probability the book saved my life. After that we fell back to a body of woods and about the middle of the evening they tried me again, hitting me that time by the side of the head. I thought at first that they had got me, and I hollered manfully. My friend, Daniel McCollum, was near me and said, "Oh, Charlie!" But I was not hurt as bad as I first thought; the skin was only broke and the ball had not entered, but it was an awful jar.

T. J. Bivens was killed in that fight, one of the best men of our company, and we had several wounded. We lost Major General Rhodes, one of our best generals. He was physically quite a fine looking man. We were repulsed in the fight and fell back that night 18 miles to Fisher's Hill, and in three days the Yankees advanced upon us again, and there we had a general stampede, a great many of our men being captured. I being one of the number. On that occasion I had three bullet holes shot through my clothing. I remained a prisoner then until the close of the war.

I hope, dear readers, you will excuse my poor scribbling, as I am getting old and feeble both in body and mind. C. E. BROWN, Wingate, N. C., June 7, 1908.

Local Items of Interest

Mrs. J. F. Doster returned Friday from Asheville, where she had spent some time for her health.

Blake, the little daughter of Mrs. Fannie Newsome, died in north Monroe Saturday morning of typhoid fever. She was 12 years of age. The remains were interred at Faulk.

Esq. J. C. Mangum of Chesterfield county returned from a business trip to Arkansas Saturday. He reports that the cotton crop is sorry, owing to continued rains. Much of it has not yet been chopped. In some places the corn crop is good.

They have a wild man somewhere near Pageland. The Pageland correspondent of the Chesterfield Advertiser says: "John Horton, colored, saw the wild man near this place last Sunday night. John says he had one foot like a man and the other like a cow. Spotted face and dressed in white; is about seven feet high but John did not take time to examine him very closely. He met him on the railroad about one-half mile from town, and John says he 'lit a rag'—coming in town at the rate of 70 miles per hour."

Mrs. Troy Moore of New Salem township died suddenly Sunday the 7th, while at the lot milking. She was about 55 years of age and is survived by her husband and eight children, four sons and four daughters. She was a member of Watson Primitive Baptist church. Mrs. Moore, after cooking breakfast and cleaning up her home, went to the lot to milk the cows. She appeared to be in her usual health, and the first anyone knew there was anything wrong she suddenly rose to her feet and, after taking a step or two, fell and died instantly. She was a daughter of the late John Williams of Anson county.

Mrs. Sarah Robinson, wife of Mr. Harvey Robinson, died at her home in Jackson township on the 4th, suddenly of heart failure. She was about 65 years old. She leaves besides her husband five sons and two daughters. The sons are Messrs. James, William, Charles, Robert and Crawford Robinson; the daughters are Mrs. Ed King and Miss Maggie Robinson. Mrs. Robinson was a daughter of the late Mr. Samuel Walkup. She was a member of the Presbyterian church and a most excellent christian woman. Funeral services were conducted at Tirzah church by Rev. W. W. Hatchford.

The following named ladies have been appointed from the different sections of the county to get up baskets for the old soldiers' dinner to be given in Monroe on July 4th: Mrs. J. E. Heath, Miss Pearl Rodman, Messdames W. R. McNeely, C. O. Howard, J. N. Price, Bert Clark, S. H. Crowell, I. D. Boyd, T. C. Sistrup, Wm. Griffin, Miss Fannie Griffin, Messdames Exeter Long, J. Ellis Simpson, P. J. C. Edrd, Mark Austin, Wilton A. Williams, Miss Alma Marsh, Messdames R. Armfield, V. A. Ashcraft, J. B. Eubanks, B. F. Parker, G. M. Laney, R. W. Elliott, W. A. Eubanks. Those ladies will report at their earliest convenience to Mrs. Ella McKenzie of Monroe. The place to which baskets are to be sent will be announced later.

Mrs. Alice McRae Vann, widow of Mr. J. J. Vann, died at her home in Charlotte last Wednesday night, after a long illness of cancer of the stomach. The body was brought to Monroe Thursday afternoon and interred by the side of Mr. Vann's. The funeral service was held by Rev. Francis Osborne of Charlotte and Rev. F. A. Petter of Monroe. The pallbearers were Messrs. J. R. English, C. N. Simpson, Sr., J. M. Fairley, Sr., S. O. Blair, R. A. Morrow, Frank Armfield, H. B. Adams, Sr., and T. P. Dillon. Mrs. Vann was born and reared near Suffolk, Va. She married Mr. Vann in 1887 and came to Monroe, where she lived until about ten months ago when she moved to Charlotte. The deceased was a woman of fine mind, strong character, good judgment and business sense. She was a devoted member of the Episcopal church and was an excellent christian lady. Four children, John, Henry, Mary and Jessica, are left. It is understood that they will make their home with their uncle, Mr. Walter McRae of Wilmington.

Mrs. S. L. Bowen of Wayne, West Va., writes: "I was a sufferer from kidney disease so that at times I could not get out of bed, and when I did I could not stand straight. I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." Foley's Kidney Remedy works wonders where others are a total failure. English Drug Company.

Glenn to Second Bryan. Bryan has asked Governor Glenn to second his nomination in the event the Governor is selected as a delegate-at-large from this State, and he will do so.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve Wins. Tom Moore of rural route 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a 25 cent box won the day for me by effecting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee at English Drug Co.'s.

Old Mt. Moriah Coming to the Fore Again.

The faithful workers of Mt. Moriah church deserve a brief mention in the columns of your noble paper. The church has been located in a rather retired place of Union county, a distance of fifteen to twenty miles from any market, but the new road from Cheraw and the growing little town of Pageland is furnishing a good market and splendid outing for the community. This, together with the marvelous growth of pride and enthusiasm in both the church and community, is rapidly bringing Mt. Moriah to the front. The growth of interest in church work has been very marked during the last year.

A splendid organ was installed in the church in October; and at the same time it was decided to attempt to carry on the Sunday school during the winter months, an untried experience in the history of the church. During each month interest grew, and in February it was decided to work for an enrollment of one hundred within four months. By June the 7th, one hundred and twenty had been enrolled, with an average attendance of eighty to ninety.

The four months ended last Saturday with a carefully prepared programme in the interest of the Sunday school, in which each child acquitted itself so well that the parents' hearts throb with joy.

In the preparation for children's day, Mrs. T. P. Brewer and Miss Eva Martin deserve special mention; many others if space would permit. Mrs. Brewer is a Sunday school worker of experience, and demonstrated her ability to prepare children for such an occasion. Miss Eva Martin, the faithful and efficient church organist and one of which any church might well be proud, rendered very faithful service in preparing the programme.

An hour and a half Sunday afternoon was taken up in the interest of missions. Short talks were made by Mr. L. L. Parker, the brilliant cashier of the Bank of Pageland, and by the pastor. Following this, pledges were taken for missions, and to the credit of the church and some visitors, it must be said that an advance of more than 500 per cent, was made over any year in the history of the church.

The next task before the people is a church building, and this is expected to be completed before the end of the year.

It is right difficult to serve a church so far away, but the pastor finds pleasure in visiting and working with such a generous, faithful and appreciative people.

Father Kills His Son. One of the most brutal and heinous crimes ever committed in Grayson county, Va., is said to have occurred the other day when Lewis Wingate killed his 12-year-old son, Roy. The body was buried and nothing was thought of the death until it was found to be more than an investigation; the body was exhumed and bruised and all the boy's teeth had been extracted. It would appear that Wingate subjected his little son to the most inhuman torture before life departed. He was jailed.

Born in Iowa. Our family were all born and raised in Iowa, and have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (made at Des Moines) for years. We know how good it is from long experience in the use of it. In fact, when in El Paso, Texas, the writer's life was saved by the prompt use of this remedy. We are now engaged in the mercantile business at Narcoossee, Fla., and have introduced the remedy here. It has proven very successful and is constantly growing in favor.—Emmis Bros. This remedy is for sale by Dr. S. J. Welsh.

Used Milk of Mad Cow. Some folks in Columbia, S. C., who have been using milk of a cow that had been killed for the rabies Monday, are not feeling "werry" comfortable, though the doctors assured them that they need have no fears. The cow had been acting queerly, but nothing was suspected until she broke loose with genuine hydrophobia.

A Grand Family Medicine. "It gives me pleasure to speak a good word for Electric Bitters," writes Mr. Frank Conlan of No. 136 Houston St., New York. "It's a grand family medicine for dyspepsia and liver complications, helps for lame back and weak kidneys. It cannot be too highly recommended." Electric Bitters purify the digestive functions, purify the blood, and impart renewed vigor and vitality to the weak and debilitated of both sexes. Sold under guarantee at English Drug Company's, 50c.

Diarrhoea. When you want a quick cure without any loss of time, and one that is followed by no bad results, use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It never fails and is pleasant to take. It is equally reliable for children. It is famous for its cures over a large part of the civilized world. For sale by Dr. S. J. Welsh.

Mr. Adrian Godfrey of Charlotte visited Mr. G. W. Godfrey's some few days ago.

Mr. A. B. McManus and family are visiting Mr. S. T. Adams'. Mrs. Leonard Godfrey is visiting Mr. G. W. Godfrey's.

Miss Jennie Bigham, who was right sick, is able to be up and about again, we are glad to state. Mr. Ed Bigham's baby is a great deal better at this writing.

Mr. G. W. Godfrey has gone to Charlotte on business. Mrs. J. J. Godfrey and son, Meek, visited Mr. Henry Morris and family the first of this week.

Mr. K. G. Starnes is attending the old soldiers' reunion at Birmingham. His little son, Johnnie, gave his brothers and sisters a fright on yesterday, June 10th, by running off from home. All the neighbors quit their work and went in search of the wandering six-year-old Johnnie. The hunt was well planned, but they never found the sly Johnnie; but about evening he came sauntering back home of his own accord. The foolish whim of one little boy caused time to be lost, plows and hoes to lie idle, anxiety and sad forebodings. Ah! boys, there is no place like your dear loving home. "Be it ever so humble, there is no place like home," should be every boy's and girl's motto.

We have been enthusiastically interested in the prohibition theme. And if we had it in our power to do so, we would sweep intoxicants, which make hogs of men, off of the face of the earth, as a careful housekeeper sweeps the dust off of her floors. Then it would be—

"Old Father Hubbard, He went to the cupboard To get his beer set a drink; But when he got there The cupboard was bare, So he got him a drink at the sink."

Work on the farms and meetings of farmers' unions are the principal themes nowadays. The prospect of a good cotton and corn crop is quite encouraging. From the outlook our community is well blessed temporarily; the enormous quantity of fruit, good gardens and fine farms.

Edwin and Aubrey Belk are among the champion cotton choppers of our vicinity. They are doing fine work on Mr. J. J. Godfrey's farm.

Old Waxham Baptist church will hold a reunion right soon. We hope the members may all come together with a spirit of love, for "God is love."

On the prohibition election day officers from Statesville made a little raid in Alexander county, and captured a stillhouse on Barretts mountain. The operators skidded but the fixtures were captured and ruined. Alexander is a very wet county, and sentiment is not against blockades. The vote was 30 majority for whiskey.

Rev. W. A. Wasson, who left his pastorate at Riverside, L. I., to butt into the prohibition fight in North Carolina, preaching for whiskey against prohibition, will have to answer before his bishop for pernicious talk when what he had been doing became known. His conduct caused surprise in his activity in behalf of the booze joints. He wasn't thought much of in North Carolina.

Clarence Prince, nine years old, having delivered his dinner to his father in a Spartanburg cotton mill, proceeded to slide the balustrade to make a quick descent. He fell to one side, hit the floor and broke his neck.

For a Sprained Ankle. As usually treated, a sprained ankle will disable the injured person for a month or more, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle faithfully, a cure may be effected in many cases in less than one week's time. This liniment is a most remarkable preparation. Try it for a sprain or bruise, or when laid up with chronic or muscular rheumatism, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which it affords. For sale by Dr. S. J. Welsh.

Dolphus Ingram of Cumberland county, although he had a wife and children in South Carolina, went and married Ito Neal, a young girl of Campbellton, and last week the court got the idea that four years in the pen was not too much to pay for the privilege of having two wives, and so Dolphus will help make brick on the State preserves.

Stomach troubles are very common in the summer time and you should not only be very careful about what you eat just now, but more than this, you should be very careful not to allow your stomach to become disordered, and when the stomach goes wrong take Kodol. This is the best known preparation that is offered to the people today for dyspepsia or indigestion or any stomach trouble. Kodol digests all foods. It is pleasant to take. It is sold here by English Drug Co.

Thomasville's Unique Gift. When the people in Thomasville think that prohibition carried, they rang a bell so hard that it broke, and one day last week they sent a fragment of it to Governor Glenn, making a very unique and appropriate gift to the chief executive.

W. R. Ward of Dyersburg, Tenn., writes: "This is to certify that I have used Foley's Ointment for chronic constipation, and it has proven without a doubt to be a thorough practical remedy for this trouble, and it with pleasure I offer my conscientious reference." English Drug Company.
