crowded the stand and reached be youd the statue of Vance, whose spirit the new Governor invoked as he took the oath of office.

The incoming executive, with his youthful face and clean cut features, clear eye and black hair and winning smile, looked the picture of manly beauty as he acknowledged the applause with which he was greeted as looking straight into the face of the Vance statue he began his inaugural. Every seat on the platform was taken by the members of the General Assembly, the incoming and outgoing officials and their families, promitive and the position is thus expressed by him in his inaugural:

"The legislature prescribes the law as a rule of conduct commanding what is right and prohibiting what is wrong, and in my opinion only the man or corporation that fears the right or follows wrong officials and their families, promitive man or corporation of their legisla-
