BOTH KILLED.

Mr. Tom Howard of This County Meets Instant Death in Pistol Duel and Also Kills His Opponent. Mr. Tom Howard, son of Mrs. Mertha Howard of Sandy Ridge township, and a nephew of Mr. E. C. Winchester of Monroe, was killed at Montbrook, Fla., last Friday morning. In the same pistol duel he killed his opponent, a man named King, of that place.

Mr. Howard was paying attention to the daughter of Mr. King, who objected on account of the young lady's age. He was flagging on the Coast Line, and when his train went into Montbrook, the young lady was at the station and they began talking. Mr. King came up and fired three shots at Howard, who drew a pistol and fired twice at King, shooting him down. King then raised up as Howard was turning away, and fired twice, one of the shots going through King's head and killing him instantly. Howard leaned against a telephone post, and right away sank down, saying as he did so, "wire the boys," King.

The body was brought to Monroe on Sunday and buried at the family burial place at Union yesterday morning. Mr. V. E. Cason, a friend of Mr. Howard, accompanied the remains here. He was an eye-witness to the shooting and brought the particulars as above.

Mr. Howard was 25 years old, and is survived by his mother and several brothers and sisters. He had been in Florida about two years. He formerly lived in Monroe, and was a quiet, likable young man.

LEPER J. EARLY INSANE.

District Soldier Under Guard in Washington State. Insanity has been added to the afflictions of John R. Early, "the leper of Washington," who was already suffering from what is perhaps the most dreaded disease known to medical science. The public health service received this announcement yesterday from the government quarantine station at Diamond Point, in the State of Washington, concerning the unfortunate man who was detained here several years ago by the District health authorities as a leper, and who subsequently wandered, an outcast, throughout the West.

Early has been acting strangely for some time in the little camp where he is segregated with a small group of other lepers, the report states, and has recently become violent. It has been found necessary to place him under strong guard.

Washingtonians will recall Early's case, much of which ran its course in this city, as in many ways sensational. About him and his affliction was waged one of the most stubborn medical and scientific discussions of recognized prominence throughout the world examined his case and bitterly disagreed in regard to it. At one time the District was threatened with a suit by Early, who had at that time been pronounced free from the malady for which local authorities had detained him nearly a year.

Early, who served as a regular in the Spanish war, came to Washington in ill health August 14, 1908, to make application for a pension from the Federal government, thinking that he was suffering from some sort of tropical fever contracted during service in Cuba or the Philippines. On August 21 he was arrested under suspicion of being a leper, and soon afterwards was pronounced to be such by physicians.

He was placed under guard in a tent on the banks of the Eastern Branch, beyond the quarantine station, where he was later joined by his wife and baby. The unusual conditions surrounding the case attracted attention throughout the nation.

The suspected leper was kept in seclusion by the District authorities till July 4, 1909, when, through the efforts of a New York physician who had examined him and maintained that he did not have leprosy, he was removed to New York for treatment. Here he was pronounced to be suffering from an ordinary skin disease, and was later said of Washington in a baggage car.

For a while Early lived in Brooklyn, and later on a farm in Virginia. Early in December, 1905, he was for the second time arrested in Washington, and on December 10th, was again sent from the District in a baggage car, this time with the warning not to return. He returned to New York, and was cured for by the scientists.

Women Here. Mr. Medina, in replying to your very unfavorable answer relative to Woman in your last communication. As we were not asking about woman beyond whether they were given in marriage or not.

We have heard the author in his conversations harping on Man and Procher so much and not mentioning the woman, until we just wanted to draw him out upon this subject and find whether he was going to give her an even chance or not. We are very glad that Mr. Medina has explained himself so far. X.

Judge Bennett Died Yesterday.

Wadesboro Messenger of Yesterday. Hon. Elden Tyler Bennett, in his own words "tumbled upon death" this morning at 6:06 o'clock, after an illness of several weeks. He had been in failing health for several years, but was confined to his home only a few weeks. On July 11th he suffered a stroke of paralysis, and since that time his life had hung by a thread, his powerful constitution making a strong fight against death. Saturday pneumonia set in, and it was realized that the end was only a question of hours.

Judge Bennett was a son of Nevill Bennett and his wife Catherine Harris Bennett, and was born June 18, 1840, at the family home about two miles from Wadesboro.

From earliest childhood he gave evidence of the brightness and the strength of memory which were to distinguish him in after life. It is said that at 12 years of age he could repeat the six books of Virgil in the original Latin. He was educated at Anson Institute and Davidson College, graduated in law at Lebanon Law School, in June, 1859. He also studied law under the late Judge Thomas S. Ashe and the late Johnson Hargrave.

In June, 1861, the young lawyer enlisted as a private in the Anson Guards, Co., C., 14th N. C. Regiment. Later in the same year he was made quartermaster of his regiment. In 1862, at the re-organization of his regiment he was elected captain of his company, and a short while later was made lieutenant colonel of the regiment, becoming colonel by seniority the same year. He was then only 22 years old.

Colonel Bennett was a gallant soldier, and was thrice wounded, at the battles of Sharpsburg, Spotsylvania Court House and Gettysburg. At Chancellorsville he became a commandant of Rameur's brigade after General Rameur was wounded.

At the close of the war Colonel Bennett returned to Wadesboro and devoted himself to the practice of law and to politics. In both he was very successful. He was solicitor of Anson county in 1866 and 1867, was a member of the legislature of North Carolina in 1872, and a delegate to the constitutional convention in 1875. In each body he served as chairman of the judiciary committee. He was elected judge of the Superior Court in 1880, and resigned to accept the Democratic nomination as congressman at large in 1882. After a hard campaign he was elected, and two years later he returned to congress as the representative of the district in which Anson was then. While in congress he was a member of the judiciary committee, and the chairman, John Randolph Tucker himself a famous lawyer, said his legal knowledge was superior to that of any other member. It is said that at that time he could have had the nomination for governor, but declined on account of ill health.

On August 26th, 1883, he was happily married to Miss Kate Shepherd, of Wadesboro, who with three daughters, Mrs. John D. Leak, Mrs. R. E. Little and Mrs. John T. Bennett, survives him. Twin sons were born to them, but died in infancy.

Letter to Cotton Ginners.

This exchange has been notified that the various transportation companies handling cotton from all ports have notified shippers that cotton of irregular size would be penalized $1.00 per bale on all bales not pressed in the standard size press box.

This box has been established for some years, and is 54 by 27 inches inside measurement of the press box. It is our desire to obviate any trouble from this source, and it is with this purpose in view that this circular is issued. We specially recommend that all ginners will conform to these requirements, put up their cotton in such size that no claim can be made; have all press boxes made not over 54 by 27 inches inside measurement prior to September 1st, 1913, as on this date the proposed ruling will go into effect.

Further, as the weight and density of the bale of cotton is now to be a factor in making the freight rate, it is of the highest importance that cotton should not be under 475 lbs. and should average 500 lbs. or more per bale.

We heartily recommend the adoption of these suggestions, and earnestly ask your co-operation, as irregular sizes and under weight cotton will suffer in price.

Yours Very Truly,
NORFOLK COTTON EX.
Norfolk, Va., July 15, 1913.

Towing a Locomotive With an Automobile.

Scientific American. The average automobilist, who does not realize fully the enormous power of his car, would perhaps have a better notion of this if he had been a witness of a rather unusual test in California. A 40 horsepower touring machine weighing 4,000 pounds, was attached by means of a strong cable, to a 110 ton locomotive. The cable ran from the axle of the car to the cow-catcher of the locomotive. The start was made from a dead standstill. For some time the motor car groaned and vibrated to no avail. The wheels refused to find a purchase and slipped around and around. Finally, half a dozen men were put into the car to do duty as ballast.

This additional weight had the desired effect. With slow reluctance the wheels of the car began to revolve and the automobile had achieved the seemingly impossible task of drawing so tremendous a weight.

No injury to the car resulted from this great and unusual strain, and for some distance over the rails the massive iron obediently tagged after its puny pilot.

The demonstration was made by an automobile agent to show what a really powerful machine the motor car is of today.

It costs less to buy a screen door than to get sick and lay off for a month.

Items From Wingate.

Correspondence of The Journal. Hot! Temperature at 1 p. m. Saturday, up to 103 in the shade. Crops are suffering from lack of rain and fruits almost a failure.

The handsome residences of Messrs. J. J. Perry and Thos. Griffin are nearing completion. They will add much to the appearance of our town.

Uncle Sandy Parker is away on an extended visit to his son-in-law, Mr. J. E. Thomas, of Kershaw, S. C.

Mrs. D. P. Austin and her two little girls are here on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Meigs. Mr. Austin came over with them but has returned to his home in Palmyra.

Mr. I. B. Mullis is visiting his mother, Mrs. Tine Mullis, and his sister, Mrs. Lee Chaney.

Miss Barnhardt of Concord has a position as saleslady with the Wingate Mercantile Co.

Our town is to be honored with the State Farmers' Institute to be held on next Saturday, the 26th. Let everybody attend and bring along the good wife and all the boys and girls, for these are the hope of the county, and they especially, need all the help they can get from every source. Then let us older ones remember that we are yet in our a b c's and that the little we know we've had to learn in some way, and that there is still much to learn before we know it all. So let us avail ourselves of the opportunity to profit by the experiences and discoveries of those who are competent. Life is too short and time too precious to be spent by individual experiments and investigation. Then let us economize time and talent by cooperation in helping to make the farm home life all that it should be. H. P. MEIGGS.

A Church Without Members or Collections.

Christian Herald. Without sectarian ideas or denominational teaching a Gospel meeting is held all the summer months in the unique Boardwalk at Atlantic City. This year—the fifth of the church's existence—services are being conducted each Lord's Day morning in the Bijou Theater—a room used usually for moving pictures. The Rev. Robert Elwood is the founder and pastor. It is a church without a choir, officer, or a single member and without a collection plate. The business men of Atlantic City, as well as the visitors, think it worth while and maintain this Gospel lighthouse by the sea. Ninety per cent. of the audience is new each Sunday. People gladly turn in from the Boardwalk at the call for worship. The audience is reverent though cosmopolitan. One Sunday morning when a test was made, every civilized country was represented in the large congregation, as well as most of the States of the Union.—Christian Herald.

Hartsell Gets Ten Years in State Prison.

Albemarle Enterprise. Court came to an unexpected close Friday afternoon, the Hartsell case, which promised to be a long drawn affair, being compromised without reaching the jury.

The plea of self-defense was thought by the attorneys to be rather uncertain as to Adam Hartsell and they proposed to the State to enter a plea of guilty of murder in the second degree, and this was accepted by the State, and as a compromise Alfred Hartsell, son of Adam Hartsell, was released. Masterful pleas for mercy were made by the attorneys for the defendant owing to the age of Adam Hartsell on the part of the deceased. Judge Adams sentenced Adam Hartsell to ten years in the State prison.

The defendants were charged with having murdered Andy Yow last October and the case was called for Wednesday of last week before Judge Adams and a special venire of two hundred men was necessary before the jury was made up.

There is a division of public sentiment over the disposition of the case, but the prevailing opinion seems to be that in view of the circumstances that justice has been meted out and the majesty of the law upheld.

A farmer of York county has threshed 928 bushels of oats from nine acres. It is estimated that some parts of the field ran as high as 125 bushels per acre.

BEATS SIX SOLDIERS.

Goldsboro Man Gives "Willie Boys" What They Deserved.

Goldsboro Dispatch, 14th. J. W. Jones, a contractor of this city, taught a half dozen soldiers down at Morehead City a lesson yesterday that they will not soon forget.

Mr. Jones went down to enjoy a dip in the ocean, accompanied by his wife and while in bathing a soldier approached Mrs. Jones, who was alone at the time, and demanded that she take a swim with him. Mrs. Jones refused, whereupon the soldier grabbed her by the arms and tried by force to take her in the water. She screamed, and at this juncture Mr. Jones appeared and demanded of the soldier to release her, stating that she was his wife and he would not submit to her being thus insulted. The soldier hurled several curse words and a few moments later found himself scrambling up from a right swing on the jaw, which for a short time put him out of commission.

Going over to the bath-house, the soldier gathered 5 of his comrades, and immediately returned to where Mr. Jones was standing on the beach, and renewed the trouble, striking him on the head and then for about ten minutes it seemed as though a cyclone had struck the beach, for outnumbered as he was, six to one, Jones was more than a match for his opponents, and soon they were about as surprised a bunch as ever gathered together, one suffering a broken jawbone, while the others were nursing discolored eyes and swelled noses, and at the first opportunity took to their heels.

Today Mr. Jones is none the worse off as the result of the fight, other than a small cut on one side of his face.

Your correspondent was a witness to the affray and it was the greatest fight he has ever seen a lone man put up against such odds, all six of the soldiers receiving a severe drubbing.

Friends have been joking Mr. Jones today, demanding that he challenge Jack Johnson, immediately and the "holy terror" only smiled and said, "Nothing doing." (The truth of this story has been denied. Jones and one man had a fist fight and that was about all.)

Flour Explosion Wrecks Mill.

Christian Herald. That flour, the softest and most innocent thing in the world apparently, the very stuff of life, could by any process turn to an engine of destruction, wreck the mill that makes it and killing many people, as it did in one of the large cities of the country recently, would be thought incredible. But once in a long while, under certain rare conditions, it does act this way and becomes a terrific instrument of ruin.

There is a scientific reason for its action. Gunpowder, dynamite, and other recognized explosives are all capable of suddenly releasing enormous power because they combine in close proximity the necessary quantity of oxygen for its complete combustion, or as a chemist would say, its oxidation. Flour contains these same elements but usually they are held together in safe proportion. But once in a while the flour dust of the bin or mill is in such a condition that a spark, or even a jar, will produce an explosion as violent and from the same reason as that of nitroglycerine.
