KILLED HIS WIFE AND OTHERS.

Insane Citizen of Georgia Went Wild and Endangered Many.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 1.—Claude Jordan, aged 43 years, a member of one of the most prominent families of Columbia county, this afternoon killed himself after having shot and probably killed a negro, shot a white man through the neck, killed his wife and terrorized the entire town of Grovetown, 14 miles from here, nearly five hours, by threatening to kill any one who came near enough.

Jordan has twice been in a sanitarium for insanity and it appears that his mental balance gave way this morning about 10 o'clock as a result of his having shot a negro, Major Green, last night.

It is generally believed that Green was killed but his body has not yet been found.

This morning Jordan, who is a brother of the school commissioner of Columbia county, began acting queerly about 10 o'clock. Neighbors noticed that he was drilling up and down his front yard with his wife, carrying a shotgun over his shoulder. J. E. Beale, an intimate friend, who was supposed to have a strong influence over Jordan, stopped, engaged the crazed man in conversation, gave him a chew of tobacco, and started to walk away. When he had proceeded only a few steps Jordan fired on him, part of a lead of buckshot taking effect in the back of the neck. Jordan then coolly made his wife go into the house with him and in a short time shots and screams were heard.

It was known that two little children were in the house with Jordan and his wife, and when, later, Jordan again appeared in front of his house, it was believed he had killed his wife and both of the children.

BALKED THE CROWD.

A crowd from the town formed and attempted to get Jordan, who threatened the first who came within gunshot distance. Finally, when he went within doors, a number of people, armed with rifles, drew near enough to fire on the house and stood guard while Julian J. Zackary crawled up and discovered the fact that the two little children were alive. He enticed the little girl, between 9 and 10, to him in the back yard, and induced her to call the smaller child out.

The moment the children were out of the way the crowd began firing into the house and when no reply came the house was rushed at 5:30 this afternoon. Jordan was found lying in one of the rooms with one side of his head literally shot away by a load of buckshot from his own gun, which lay beside him. Mrs. Jordan's nude body, with a wound in the stomach, was found hidden between two mattresses in one of the bed rooms.

Pageland News.

Mr. John Deese, died at his home in lower Anson county Saturday morning under unusual conditions, and an inquest was held over the body Sunday by Coroner Green of Anson county.

It seems that Mr. Deese had been drinking, and while going along the road about a mile from his home on Friday afternoon he dropped in the road and was carried home in an unconscious condition and put to bed. There he remained until his death early the next morning, and he never regained consciousness. The inquest was begun Saturday, but it was decided that the county physician should examine the body, and the hearing was postponed until Sunday. The physician after a careful examination said he found no signs of violence and that he did not believe he had been struck on the head as had been reported. Mr. Deese was well known in this section and was a son of Mr. Amos Deese. A wife and two children survive.

Mr. James Sulpes and Miss Ellen Jordan, both of Lanes Creek township were married at the residence of Mr. W. L. Thomas, the officiating magistrate, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Sulpes is a prosperous young farmer, and the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jordan. Many friends wish them well.

Peter Johnson was killed in Cheraw on Christmas day by another negro, Joe Gadson. Both negroes came from Moncks Corner in the lower part of the State, and there had been some trouble between them before. Gadson was drunk and he walked out of his house near the Scaup tracks and fired upon Johnson as he and another negro came around a box car, the bullet striking Johnson in the neck. An inquest was held over the dead body Friday by Coroner Atkinson. Gadson is in jail awaiting the next term of court.

Mr. J. M. Arant had a big nice watermelon for Christmas. It was a melon he raised, and it had been lying in a dry room since it was pulled. He says it was just as fine on Christmas day as it would have been the day it was pulled. Now, let Huggins of the Marshville Home speak.

Effrontery.

"Well, did he pay you?" asked the wife of a Washington dentist who had been to collect a bill for a set of false teeth that he had made for a man almost a year before.

"Pay me?" growled the dentist. "Not only did he refuse to pay me, but he actually had the effrontery to gnash my own teeth at me!" — Pathfinder.

An Opportunity at Last.

The busybody was circulating a petition calling upon the powers that be to abolish something or other.

"It will be presented at the next meeting," he said, "and a copy of it will be printed in all the papers." The struggling young author had haste to sign.

"What's it all about?" asked a friend.

"Oh, I don't know," said the struggling young author; "but I couldn't resist the temptation to see my name signed to something that will appear in print."—Judge.

Man Who Once Lived Here Murdered His Wife.

Charlotte Chronicle, Thursday.

Crazed by the effects of alcohol, James L. Bolejack, a 60-year-old white man, at 11:30 o'clock this morning, killed his wife. The murder took place at the home of the couple, 916 North Brevard street, and followed an attempt which had been made by Bolejack to kill his step-son, Sam Hill. Four shots were fired at the unfortunate woman. One bullet from the .38 calibre revolver struck its victim just above the eye. A second took effect in the heart, and death was instantaneous.

Bolejack made no effort to escape and was summoned by local officers who were found by the scene by neighbors. The body of his victim was found in the kitchen of the home, where Bolejack had followed her with his revolver. He had previously fired one shot at Hill, who knocked his assailant down with a chair. Hill and his wife, and William Young, a friend, were eye-witnesses of the killing, which is one of the most heinous in the criminal history of the city.

When searched at headquarters, six bottles of lemon extract, a preparation containing 90 per cent alcohol, were found in the pockets of Bolejack, who as in a dazed condition. So complete was his mental upset by the alcohol, that he apparently did not realize the part which he had just played in the hideous killing.

Apprehended by a Chronicle reporter a few moments after his incarceration, Bolejack seemingly had no remembrance of the killing, and was in a comatose condition. In reply to a query about the affair, he said that he had been arrested for being drunk and disorderly, a statement seemingly made to the best of his drug-crazed remembrance.

Bolejack was until recently in the employ of the Lubin Furniture Co., acting in the capacity of city salesman for the local concern. During the two years which he had been in the service of the company, officials of the firm stated this morning that he had rendered conscientious service. It was some two weeks before Christmas that Bolejack embarked upon a spree which caused his dismissal from the employ of the furniture concern, and culminated in the horrible killing of this morning. Those familiar with the past history of the man who today so ruthlessly took the life of his wife, state that he had been a total abstainer for the past four years, previous to that time having drunk heavily.

(Some years ago this man lived in Monroe and ran a repair shop in the old store house of A. H. Crowell & Son. He married here and his wife's body was brought here for burial.)

Boys We Like.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.
The boy who never makes fun of old age, no matter how despicable or unfortunate or evil it may be, God's hand rests lovingly on the aged head.

Cheating is contemptible anywhere and at any age. His play should strengthen, not weaken, his character.

The boy who never calls anybody bad names, no matter what anybody calls him.

The boy who is never cruel. The boy who never lies. Even white lies leave black spots on the character.

The boy who never makes fun of a companion because of a misfortune he could not help.

The boy who never hesitates to say "No" when asked to do a wrong thing.

The boy who never quarrels.

The boys who never forgets that God made him to be a joyous, loving, helpful being.

AUSTIN & CORRELL.

The Social Rural Church: What It Must Stand For.

1. The Church must stand for good farming.
2. The Church must provide, and it very often should control, organized recreation in the whole community.
3. The Church through its members exert all influence in favor of improvement of schools, especially the consolidation of the rural schools.
4. The Church should teach, as a spiritual and moral imperative, the doctrine in which the true organization of country life shall be built. Farmers are going to be organized; therefore, the church ought to be the teacher of the philosophy of organized country life.
5. The Church should follow the work of the evangelist with the work of the pastor.
6. Religious education is of profound and far-reaching importance among country people. Of this the Sunday school is the nucleus and the tradition, but the education of the young in religion is more important, and should be better done than education of the young in the mere getting of a living.
7. The prosperity of the country is a great concern to the country church. This interest cannot be exhausted by the teaching of church finance. The Church must teach the community farm finance. It is more important that the farmer's income be devoted to the Lord than that the minister's income be adequate to the minister. Ministers and church people, therefore, in the interest of the kingdom of God, should study the conditions of country life, especially those about which farmers care most and would pray most fervently, if they were taught—namely, the economic and social interests by which the community lives or dies; in which the self-respect and independence of the country family are dependent.—Rev. Warren H. Wilson, Ph.D.
