The Absent-Minded Preacher.
A famous French preacher is very absent-minded. He does many funny things, about which he is the first to laugh heartily afterwards.
One night, before going to bed, he was looking, with a lamp in his hand, for something in the cupboard of his dressing room. He set the lamp on one of the shelves. When he shut the cupboard door, he forgot the lamp inside. He remained a little while quite still, wondering; then he opened the door of his room and said to his wife in a solemn and distressing voice: "My dear, God sends me a great trial. I believe I am blind!"

The great preacher's wife was not much disturbed. She was used to these sudden calamities. Not long before, had he not come home informing her he was quite lame? She discovered he had been walking with one foot on the sidewalk and one foot on the street, and had mechanically kept up the unequal step until he got home.

So tonight she just said: "You have extinguished the lamp?"
"No."
"Then where is it?"
"I am sure I don't know. But don't you see the light?"

"I see no more than you, but we must find the lamp. I hope you did not put it where it can set fire to something."
She got up and found the lamp, which had already begun to char the upper shelf.
"You are really too bad!" laughed the great preacher's wife, returning to her bed.
"Really I am," asserted her husband, overjoyed to be spared the "great trial" to which he had already tried to submit.—The Christian Herald.
