Will Take Men From 18 to 60 if Necessary To Win

Before another summer the United States will have built enough ships not only to "carry a million troops to France and enough destroyers to see them there in safety," Secretary Daniels declared in an address at New Brunswick, N. J., Tuesday night. If necessary to get these men to beat down Germany, Congress will make the draft limit 18 to 60.

The secretary of the navy made his address at commencement exercises of Rutgers college which conferred upon him the degree of doctor of laws, and whose sons cheered him vociferously when he told that the 300,000 men in the navy are doing to win the war, and declared that all Americans are standing shoulder to shoulder in the fight.

"Almost every day, in my official capacity, I am now called upon to give a name to a ship," said Mr. Daniels, "and we are going to get them out faster. We are going to get out the greatest naval ships produced—the destroyers on which men do not sleep for days and do not eat except standing up.

Turning then to the draft, Mr. Daniels said:

"The President of the United States, the foremost statesman of the world and the spokesman for humanity, and the Congress of the United States have called men to the colors from 21 to 31 years of age. Young men in college from 18 to 21 should stay in college until they reach the latter age. All the training they receive, mental and military, fits them for a larger service.

"The day may come, when if necessary, Congress may change the age limit because men from 21 to 31 cannot win the war. Then we will call on the men from 18 to 60 to win the war. The great drive of the Prussians a month ago was made because the German emperor well knows that when America gets enough ships to carry over her forces, the end has come."

A PAGELAND MAN TURNED INDIAN FOR ONCE IN LIFE

Getting Tired of Watching a Cork That Failed to Bob, Mr. Sowell Played a Prank on Himself—The Tourists Have Got Into a Lawsuit.

(From the Pageland Journal.)
Boyce Maples, young son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Maples, who lives a few miles southeast of Pageland, suffered a broken leg last Friday afternoon as a result of a fall while wrestling with another boy. The bone was broken just above the knee. He is said to be recovering as well as could be expected.

The most unique prayer meeting in the history of the town was held at the Baptist church last Wednesday night. Every person present took an active part in the meeting, and each one led in public prayer. One half the whole congregation stood up and read the lesson while the other half listened. Then half the congregation prayed at one time and a little later the other half. It was perhaps the most attentive audience ever assembled here, and there was absolutely no whispering or laughing while the leader was talking. Perhaps the above facts may be better understood when it is stated that only two persons, J. C. Blackwell and G. W. Kennington, were present.

Last Wednesday afternoon as Messrs. L. L. Parker, Paul Baker, H. V. Mungo and H. J. Ogburn were returning from Columbia their Ford struck a heavy car driven by J. L. McLaurin, Jr., of Marlboro county, at a turn in the road between Lugoff and the river. Each of them was badly jolted and slightly bruised, and the other car had a hole torn in a tire and a fender crushed. According to these Pageland citizens' account, they were driving on the right side of the road and the other car was on the same side until they approached around the bend, and the driver of the heavy car attempted to cross to his side of the road, but as the cars were so close, a collision was inevitable. The Ford had to be pulled into Camden, but the other car was soon running again. The Marlboro boys asked for damages, which was indignantly refused, and then they attached Mr. Mungo's car for damages, and a suit is pending in court. Each side will sue for damages. Mr. Mungo refused to give bond for the car and left it in a garage for repairs. They expect to recover not only the car but damages to the car and for personal injuries.

Mr. H. B. Sowell is a very industrious man, and he seldom takes the time to go fishing, but the desire to go seized him last Saturday afternoon. Perhaps his desire to idle away some time was caused in part by the fact that he had been suffering with toothache and was in no mood to work. His tooth was sore and there were lumps under his jaw as a result of his suffering. So he hitched Dan to the wagon and he and his faithful negro, Vern, hurried to Black creek along about the middle of the afternoon. Until after night "H. B." sat on the bank and watched the little cork as it moved with the water, but the fish were absent or too wary for him. He succeeded, however, in hooking one catfish hardly large enough to call a fish. This was the total supply of fresh water fish obtained, but there were other results of even greater value. A while before midnight they decided to move across the creek. The leader of this expedition had taken special care not to wet his feet or do anything that would arouse that offending tooth into action. The creek at that particular point is not so very wide and still not so very narrow. Vern was told to go farther down to cross, but this was unnecessary for an acrobat, and so "H. B." remarked that he would show the negro a stunt he used to work in his young days. Up a small tree on the bank he went, his object being to bend the tree over and land on the other bank. The tree failed to bend readily, but at last gave way, and to the consternation of the climber, dropped him right into the creek. When another fisherman happened along he found him trying to dry himself by a big fire which he, Indian-like, had made in the forest.

The toothache has not returned since the owner was thus dipped into this stream of nice, cool water.

Happenings in Anson.

(From the Wadesboro Ansonian.)
When it was rumored here that the Bleckett Battery would pass through Wadesboro Saturday night en route to a point from which it would sail for France, Mr. Sam Houston took up a private subscription to buy presents for the boys. As their train did not pass through here, the money, amounting to about $25, will be turned over to Mr. J. A.

Hardison for Red Cross work. If any one wishes his subscription to this fund returned to him, see Mr. Houston, otherwise the Red Cross gets all the money.

Mr. Louis Lazaros informs the Ansonian that Greeks in the United States have bought more than eight million dollars worth of Liberty bonds. Louis believes that only a part of the buyers have reported and that more than ten million dollars worth of bonds are held by his countrymen over here. He has eight $50 bonds and two more coming. He says he invests $25 each week in bonds, hoping that this will keep one soldier at the front. Two years ago Louis was fighting in this war in Bulgaria. He says when a man fires his gun and smells the powder, he cares nothing more for danger. He was a Greek soldier 21 years ago, being a captain in the army at that time. He ordered a man out of his place a few days ago who advised him to convert his money into gold, saying if Germany wins U. S. money will be worthless. Louis is very confident that the Allies will win and long to see the day when Germany is crushed forever.

—John McCall, colored, visited his colored friends from Union county at Camp Jackson Sunday. He reports that he found them well and enjoying army life.

Miss Ethel Sproule returned from a Charlotte hospital Wednesday, where she underwent a minor operation.

MERCHANT SEVERELY BEATEN

Haw River Man Refused to Let Red Cross Posters be put in Window.

W. L. Myrick, a dry goods merchant of Haw River, a town near Greensboro, received a severe whipping Monday night at the hands of a number of business men. Myrick was accused of having made remarks detrimental to the government on several occasions, and yesterday when a committee of ladies called on him with the request that he put Red Cross signs in his window he is said to have caught one of them by the wrist and to have handled her quite roughly. It is said that Myrick had refused to buy goods from traveling men who wore Red Cross buttons, and had made many remarks not calculated to suggest loyalty. He was taken out in the front of his store and soundly whipped, made to subscribe to the Red Cross and kiss the flag. He was also made to swear that it was a grand old emblem and that he loved to live under it. The Red Cross signs are in his windows today.

Sixteen or more soldiers are reported to have been injured and the engineer and fireman killed when a troop train was wrecked Tuesday near Garland City, Ark.

Joe Jackson, star baseball player, dodged the draft by securing work in a ship-building plant. The sporting world, however, did not applaud his action.
