AN ARTICLE AT A TIME WILL REFURNISH THE HOME

Let's Talk It Over

The demand for furniture of the better grades is increasing every day, and for the past few months we have noticed a greater demand than ever for the higher grades.

Here's the reason: Economy does not necessarily apply to the first cost. Many a family have purchased cheap furniture because they wanted to economize, but the furniture went to pieces quickly, and it took but a short time to convince them that cheap furniture was not economy.

To be thrifty and economical buy the better grades of furniture. We have a large display of high grade furniture selling at reasonable prices. Come and see us.

ANENT THE PEACE TREATY

The American soldier went to war to make future wars impossible. It was not a war of aggrandizement; racial hatred did not inflame his passion; he simply went to battle for humanity. The statesmen of his country promised, once the victory was won, to establish a league of nations; which, they said, would insure world peace. He placed implicit confidence in their promises, and many of his kind died on the battlefield with the only consolation of having contributed something to universal peace.

When the armistice was signed, the eyes of the men centered on Paris, where representatives from the great nations of the world had gathered to evolve into something tangible that which they had suffered, bled and died for. They witnessed the efforts of the last of the militaristic caste to tear asunder what they had fought for, but their confidence never wavered. At last was born the treaty of Versailles, and they were overjoyed.

On returning home, however, they found the Senate torn with dissension over this treaty, which was the result of their two years of fighting. Still they held out hope of the innate fairness of the members of the Senate until Friday, March 12, when the Republican Senators, lead by Lodge, handed the treaty back to President Wilson unratified. Then they awoke to the fact that many of our statesmen were liars.

Now, having been denied that which was promised to them, many of the men feel like the writer in the New York Evening Post, who is out to make somebody pay for the sacrifice he made. This writer says: "Until this morning I did not believe in bonuses for ex-soldiers, except for disability; in fact, I was so glad to be back again safe and sound that I went around with a song in my heart and a smile on my lips and no thought of anything so mercenary as a bonus. But now I am out for everything that can be gouged out of a reluctant Congress, for the following reason: We were told in 1917 and 1918 that we went to war to put an end to war; this was pay and bonus enough for me. I was well satisfied to embark on such a venture without thought of remuneration. But when the Senate rejects the only means at hand to put an end to future wars we must conclude that their lofty statements of 1917 and 1918 were lies and camouflage. This being the case then, we went to France not as crusaders but as gladiators to try our strength against the Germans, and I think in view of the small amount of training we had we put up a tolerably good show and are entitled to some of the gate receipts.

"Jack Johnson, Jess Willard, the New York Giants or any other worthies of the ring or diamond get handsome returns for proving their prowess, so why are not we entitled to some sort of rake off?" "Our President seems to be the only one of our public men who has kept the faith and not lost sight of the 'vision'."

Possibly the city fathers can redeem the sobriquet, "The City of Roses," with the dirty condition into which our main thoroughfares have fallen of late. We cannot.
