In last Friday's Journal we referred to the race now on for governor and stated that Gardner, Page, Morrison and Parker would receive about the same size vote in this county. In making this statement we were under the impression that the highest vote cast for a Republican candidate in recent years was around eight hundred and that would constitute about one fourth of the total vote of the county. Of course we were not sure and did not offer it as an accurate forecast. Mr. Vann, our congressional candidate, is a man of fine ability, logical, original, never dull and always interesting as a public speaker. If he is nominated, as now seems likely he will poll the full democratic vote of Union County and carry the banner of democracy to victory in this district.

Mrs. Philip Gwaltney of Kinston is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Iceeman. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Gaddy and little daughter, Margaret, who have been with Mr. and Mrs. Iceeman since the Gaddy home was burned several weeks ago, returned to Charlotte yesterday.

Mr. W. Henry Long died Saturday afternoon at his home in Monroe township following an attack of pneumonia. Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at Salem Baptist church, of which the deceased was a member, by Rev. J. W. Little. Mr. Long is survived by his wife, four sons and four daughters all of whom reside in this county. Mr. Long was a Confederate veteran and was about 80 years old. He was a fine type of citizen, respected by all who knew him.

The Revival services at the Methodist church will continue throughout this week. Rev. Mr. Moore is preaching powerful sermons and large numbers of people are attending both the afternoon and evening services, many coming from the near-by towns. Sunday afternoon the service was for the children and Sunday evening the various denominations joined with the Methodist congregation in worshipping. Last night Mr. Moore preached a strong and unusual sermon on "Several Sorts of Fools."

In a letter to his uncle, Mr. J. W. Houston, of Monroe township, Judge J. P. Coon, of Kaufman, Texas, writes as follows, about land in his section: "The country has changed wonderfully since you were here. Our old home place sold last fall for a hundred dollars per acre. Some of the best black land has sold for four hundred dollars per acre and the price of all land is still advancing. They are building good roads all over Texas. Kaufman county is spending two million dollars this year on roads. We are only thirty-five miles from Dallas, which now has a population of about two hundred thousand. This country has developed beyond the dreams of the most optimistic. Our county produced more than sixty-five thousand bales of cotton last year, and there is on deposit in the banks of our county more than eight million dollars. I bought some more land last fall and I will have about nine hundred acres in cotton and three hundred acres in other crops this year. It has been pretty dry here for about ten weeks. We have had only two rains in that time. It has been too dry for oats. Corn has not come up well. Most people are planting cotton now."

ABOUT GARBAGE COLLECTION.

I wish to make a final announcement to the public regarding the city hauling. Last week was "Clean-Up Week." I suppose our citizens have cleaned their premises thoroughly, therefore all cans and trash have been placed for hauling away, and we will remove it as rapidly as possible. In the future (beginning this week) I kindly ask you to place all cans, bottles and trash in a box or barrel of some kind, otherwise we cannot remove it. The wind and children play havoc with papers and cans loosely placed on the ground. Our street cleaner cannot spend even one half hour at any one place. I hope every house-keeper will feel it her duty to pick up all loose papers blown on her yard and burn them.

We want to establish a regular system for hauling garbage from the city and a notice will be placed in the papers when this system is perfected. Each person is expected to place all accumulations of trash from his place of business in a box in front of his place each morning, then after sweeping his sidewalk, that trash must be picked up and placed in the same garbage can so that the street man may cover more territory in shorter time.

The city wagons will not collect trash deposited behind stores; that must be moved by the individual.

Merchants shall not leave empty boxes on the sidewalks. The public is entitled to use them.

I know our citizens have great pride in keeping Monroe clean and to do it each must help. Let us lay aside thoughtlessness and selfishness, and all work together for the health and beauty of our town.

The sanitary inspector has authority to see that Monroe is kept clean, so I advise you to assist her in every respect. I am pleased to inform you that Monroe is cleaner today than in all her past history, and in the near future we hope to boast of the cleanest town in the state.

J. B. SIMPSON, Chm. of Streets, April 13, 1920.

The shipping board steamship Lake Calvenia was rammed by the Steamship H. H. Rogers in Hampton Roads Sunday night and sank in five minutes. The entire crew of the Calvenia was rescued by a Coast Guard Cutter.

BROOKS' CANDIDACY IS VIEWED FAVORABLY HERE

Sheriff Griffith Sizes Him Up to Be Capable Gentleman—Mr. Lemmond Tells Why 'Tis Better to Change Horses in This Instance.

Mr. A. L. Brooks of Greensboro, who is opposing Hon. Lee S. Overman, the present incumbent, for the United States Senate from this state, is developing unexpected strength in Union county. His candidacy is viewed with much favor by the political leaders, and if sentiment over the state is the same as it is in this county, Senator Overman will likely be re-elected at the next election after many years of illustrious service.

Prominent among those who view his candidacy in a satisfactory manner are Sheriff John Griffith, Clerk of the Court R. W. Lemmond, and Mr. Frank Limerick, a well-known Monroe attorney. While attending the Democratic convention in Raleigh last week, Sheriff Griffith had a conference with Mr. Brooks, and he came back to Monroe singing his praises. "He speaks to be a sensible, capable gentleman," says the Sheriff, who is inclined to believe Mr. Overman has been honored sufficiently.

Mr. Lemmond, who is an avowed Brooks' supporter, is meeting the old cry, "Never change horses in midstream," with a unique argument. He says:

"Both Senator Simmons and Senator Overman occupy commanding positions, earned by their long periods of service. They are, however, about the same age, and both will probably end their period of usefulness at the same time. Then unless we retire one of them, in a few years North Carolina will have to send two inexperienced legislators to the Senate to succeed them, and neither will profit by the experience of their predecessors. Now, in my opinion, the way out of this contingency is to elect Mr. Brooks, who is a progressive, well-informed citizen, to succeed Mr. Overman. He will, for a time, be under the tutelage of Senator Simmons, who will teach him the tricks of the game. Then, when Mr. Simmons retires, Mr. Brooks will be in a position to step into his place, and thus continue the influence which this state has exerted in Congress. The Senator to succeed Mr. Simmons will be under the guidance of Mr. Brooks, and eventually they will bring the North Carolina representation to the high position maintained by Messrs. Simmons and Overman."

In brief, Mr. Lemmond thinks a younger man should have the advantage of training under Mr. Simmons, who probably holds the most dominant position in the Senate.

Friends of Mr. Brooks expect him to come to Monroe in a few weeks.

TORNADO LEAVES 3 DEAD IN ITS WAKE; DAMAGE WAS GREAT

Mr. Polk and Two Williams Boys Lost Their Lives Last Night

MRS. PRESSON SERIOUSLY HURT Carried to the Hospital Today, Her Recovery Is Doubtful

SEVERAL HOMES A TOTAL LOSS Homes and Barns Destroyed; Much Fine Timber Blown Down

Three persons are dead, one woman is seriously, perhaps fatally, injured, a number of homes and barns are a total wreck, and thousands of feet of fine timber were destroyed as a result of a cyclone which swept parts of Monroe, Goose Creek and New Salem townships about 9 o'clock last night. The dead are:

Robert L. Polk, aged about 30 years; Aubrey Williams, aged 5, and his brother, Hilton Williams, aged 6. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Williams, who live a few miles north of Unionville.

Mrs. Sam Presson, who was badly injured, is in a serious condition, and is not expected to live. She was carried to a Charlotte hospital. Mrs. Presson was injured about the neck, waist and kidneys.

Among those injured are: R. W. Byrd, his son, Roy Byrd; and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Griffin, all of whom live in Goose Creek township. Others were probably injured, but their names could not be learned today.

The cyclone was reported to have started about Bakers. It swept through the southern part of Goose Creek township, missing Unionville by about a mile and a half, through the edge of New Salem, on to Rocky River. Some damage is reported from the Rocky River vicinity.

Both the school and church at Ebenezzer are said to have been destroyed, though it could not be ascertained to be a fact.

FIRST STRUCK POLK'S HOME

From what could be learned today, the home of Mr. Robert L. Polk, which is on the Seceest short cut road, about 6 and a half miles from Monroe, was the first to be destroyed. The house was picked up from its foundations and carried for a distance of about twenty-five feet. The dead body of Mr. Polk was extricated from the timbers by neighbors shortly after the destruction of his home. The body was badly bruised, but not mutilated. In some miraculous manner, the wife of Mr. Polk and his three children escaped. The deceased was about 30 years of age. Funeral services over his remains were conducted this afternoon at the old Waxhaw Baptist church.

The next home destroyed by the on-rushing tornado was that of Mr. R. W. Byrd, who lives on the Concord road, a short distance above the point where the road forks to Unionville. His home, barn and outbuildings were totally wrecked; and Mr. Byrd, and his young son, Roy Byrd, were both injured. The former was cut and bruised about the head and face, while the latter was cut on the leg. Mrs. Byrd and several children escaped injury.

When the house was picked up by the force of the wind, Roy Byrd was thrown into the well, the curbing of which had been torn away. Fortunately, he caught a timber before falling to the bottom. He was rescued by neighbors, who arrived on the scene a short while afterwards. Mr. Byrd was knocked unconscious by the falling timbers. A number of chickens were killed, but his pigs, horses and cows were not hurt.

The next home destroyed by the tornado was that of Mr. Sam Presson, who lives only a short distance from the home of Mr. Byrd. In addition to the loss of his home, Mr. Presson suffered the loss of a good barn, a mule, wagon, and other farming implements. Mrs. Presson was seriously injured, and is not expected to live. A child was unharmed from a mass of timbers uninjured. Mr. Presson's loss is about $2500.

CHILDREN DIED TOGETHER.

The most pathetic incident of the havoc was the death of the two little Williams boys, Aubrey and Hilton. They slept in the same bed, and the tornado, which simply tore up their father's home, threw heavy timbers across their little bodies. Their stomachs were crushed in and it is thought they died instantly. Six men were required to lift the timbers from their bodies.

The two lads had attended the funeral of an infant cousin the afternoon before they met their death. They were handsome, likable young chaps, and the community is mourning their untimely death.

Mr. Williams' store, which he conducted in the yard of his home, was lifted from its pillars, and carried for a distance of several feet. Nothing in the store, however, was broken or destroyed.

Severe losses were also suffered by Mr. J. H. Griffin, who lives in the same community with Messrs. Byrd and Presson. Both Mr. and Mrs. Griffin were badly hurt; their home destroyed, and barns and outbuildings totally demolished. His loss is around $2,000.

Mr. Arthur Pusser lost his barn, a mule and some timber. Mr. Carl Griffin lost a tenant house, and from 50,000 to 70,000 feet of extra good timber.

The home of Mr. Marcus Little, who is a bachelor, was destroyed. His barns and outhouses suffered likewise from the force of the tornado.

Mr. Caldwell Love's barn was blown down, but his stock escaped injury. The hay in the loft fell upon a mule, almost completely covering him. The mule's neighs and grunts attracted Mr. Love, who released him.

Rev. J. S. Simpson and Mr. H. C. Simpson had about 100,000 feet of fine timber blown down. Mr. David A. Simpson lost about 5000 feet.

An unconfirmed report was received at Monroe this morning stating that several people were killed in Stanley county, across Rocky River. It is believed, however, that the report is erroneous.

Mr. R. W. Byrd was the only sufferer, so far as is known, who carried tornado insurance. His loss is about $2000, with about one-fourth that amount of insurance.

Several families lost most all they had, but their neighbors are assisting them in rebuilding.

Carrier school house, and Mr. Menlenhall Helms' barn, it was reported in Monroe, were destroyed.

Death of Mr. McCorkle.

Mr. Earl Wearn McCorkle died at the home of his parents in Buford township last Friday night after a lingering illness of several weeks. Earl has been a great sufferer. For several years he has been afflicted with rheumatism and spent some time at Hot Springs, Ark., in hope of recovery. Late in the fall he contracted flu from which he never fully recovered and his heart was left in such a weakened condition. He entered school at Wingate last fall and was making good as a student. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McCorkle. He was sixteen years old and a young man of splendid character. Besides his father and mother he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Clinton Braxton of Baltimore, Maryland, who was at his bedside when the end came. Leaning upon the arm of his father he expressed a willingness, and a readiness to die.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday morning at Corinth church by Prof. C. M. Beach and Rev. R. M. Haigler in the presence of one of the largest congregations ever assembled at that place on a similar occasion. The interment was in the cemetery at that place. The expression in flowers were beautiful. Mr. and Mrs. McCorkle have the sincere sympathy of all their neighbors and friends in their sad bereavement.—R. M. Haigler.

WOMEN SHOULD ACQUAINT THEMSELVES WITH GOV'T.

Miss Helen Taft Recommends Two Books for Study—News Items From Marshville.

Marshville, April 12.—Saturday afternoon an automobile belonging to John Kellock, in which John, his son, another colored man and his wife were riding, suddenly grew tired of life as lived on Union county roads, and turned turtle several times on the road leading by the home of Rev. A. Marsh about two miles from town. John was very severely, if not seriously injured, his jaw being smashed, some other bones broken and a deep gash cut across his head. John's son was driving the car and escaped with a few scratches. The woman had a collar bone broken and her husband's shoulder was dislocated. The car was completely wrecked. It is said it had been acting queerly for several days and had run into a post that afternoon just before starting on the trip. John's condition is very grave.

Mr. John M. Long went to Salisbury Monday on business.

Rev. C. E. White is in Polkton this week conducting revival services at the Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Moore spent the week-end in Hamlet.

Dr. and Mrs. S. B. Bivens of Charlotte spent the week-end here with relatives.

Dr. E. S. Hamilton has returned to his home in Charlotte after spending last week here with relatives, recuperating from an enlarged gland on his neck.

Quite a large number of Marshville Methodist attended services at the Methodist church in Monroe Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Moore has many friends and admirers in Marshville.

The condition of Miss Sallie Harrell who was paralyzed three weeks ago continues to improve slowly. Her nurse, Miss Edith Austin of Charlotte is still with her.

Speaking of women and politics reminds us that Helen Taft recommends two books—Bryce's "American Commonwealth" and Ostrogoski's "American Politics"—that the American women should read to acquaint themselves with their government, and help prepare them to become citizens with correct ideas of how to use the privilege. The last named sounds as if it might have a Russian flavor, but we are willing to risk Miss Taft's judgement. Miss Taft is very optimistic about the women getting the vote, and thinks that their introduction into the affairs of the nation will have a leavening effect, the good points of one sex offsetting the bad points of the other. This sound reasonable—if the men will ever realize that women have any good political points and be willing to accept them. Women realize, of course, that they have much to learn, but they probably will be able to use discretion in choosing the good from the bad political points in the methods of the men.—Mrs. J. S. Harrell.

Rev. B. B. Sahnkle will preach at Benton Heights school house Sunday night at 7:30.

AMERICAN LEGION AFTER COLONEL LYSER'S SCALP

Senator Simmons Asked to Use His Influence to Secure Removal of Army Officer.

Asheville, N. C., April 11th.—Senator F. M. Simmons, of North Carolina, has been requested by John Beasley, of Monroe, N. C., commander of the North Carolina department of the American Legion, to use his influence to secure the removal of Lieutenant Colonel W. H. Lyster, commander at United States army general hospital number nineteen, at Oteen, near here.

In his telegram to the senator, Commander Beasley declared that the North Carolina department of the legion holds Colonel Lyster responsible for the conditions which have existed at Oteen and not the enlisted men who are held for court martial.

His message follows: Senator F. M. Simmons, Washington, D. C.

"The North Carolina department of the American Legion requests that you use your influence towards securing the removal of Lieutenant Colonel Lyster from command of the government tubercular hospital at Oteen. The war department's investigation of conditions there has practically substantiated our contentions of abuse of patients and the prevalence of unsanitary conditions. We hold him responsible and not the enlisted men who are held to face court martial. Your efforts to bring about his removal or demotion will be appreciated by the thousands of ex-service men in North Carolina."
