Impotent Man and the Omnipotent One

TEXT - Will thou be made whole?-

Blow condescending and how kind Was God's sternal son Our misery reached We heavenly mind

And pity brought little fown, And here at the shoep market show fitting a place in which to show us the shepherd seeking the sheep-we behold an example of that compassion of which Isane Watts sane in this familier lymn, and a pastern of the outflowing of the Savior's grace to every neesly sin-What brings Jesus to Jerusa ion of this feast day? Not the feast itself, we may be sure, for, no long-"a feast unto Jehn h," It had degen muted into a more "roust of the Jews. and He who had come from beaven to sure and bless was cutside this empta formation. In contrast with it is the feast that He will prend for hunghearts, No. not the beast attracts Him but wretchedness and misery, "A great multitude or impotent felk, blind, haft, withered wairing." Oh, what a picture of the whole race.

The Pool,

Bethesda, with its five porchesnumber of grace and redemptionwith its spring of healing water, and with its very name, bears witness that God, "in wrath remembers mercy." and testifies to that mercy which accompanied the second giving of the law. But its story is one of misery. "A great multitude lying." And there it leaves them. Not all are heated, but only those who have the strength to get themselves into the water. For a moment there is bealing virtue in the pool, if one is able to avail himself of it. And so the law promises life to the one who would keep its requirements, saying: "The man that doeth these things shall live by them? Even so! But what if one is "without strength" for this, as this impotent mun at the pool, and as you are, and as I am? Ah! for such, a Savier bas come to Bethesda and He shall make it Bethesda indeed, for mercy is newing out of Him without measure for every one that will receive Him.

"And a certain man was there, which had on infirmity thirty and eight years. And when Jesus saw him He, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him. Wilt thou be made wholey

The Patient.

Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool; but white I am coming, another steppeth down before me," And God swites it down as a part of His word, for this for all the world and describing the holplessness of every unregenerate sinner. For, "when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly." No strength had be to plunge into the water, nor money to hire carriers, and the bystanders had no mercy or sympathy. Yet, day by day he came seeking help, "While I am coming." Oh, how many are thus coming! Coming to anything and to everything except to the only Savior, seeking for something to supplement their deficiencies. And here is One at hand "mighty to save," but no mere helper for those who are trying by their own efforts to help themselves. He is the Savior of sinners, the Savior of the lost, the Savior of those who look away from all self-help to Him alone. But still Bethesda is thronged and He is despised or disregarded, Oh. soul. He has come to heal and save you and your sin and impotence are your only claim upon Him.

The Physician. Yes, "The Grent Physician now is near," and the moment this helplessness is confessed He turns the eyes of the poor man away from the pool and from his own impotence to have them fixed upon Himself. It is enough. To look away from all things to that Blessed One who has already done everything for you and who by His word of power raises up dead souls to live before Him and to walk forevermore in newness of life. If still the impotent man thinks of the pool as the source of healing, as so many now think of the church or ordinances or of anything and everything save Christ, he is to find, as every saved one finds, that it is the infinite word of the Savior that gives life and salvation. "Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk." And the work is done! For this is the word of a sovereign God. One blessed word closes the story in so far as it concerns the subject of the Savior's grace. "And on the same day was the Sabbath," for His perfect work leaves the beart in perfect rest. Of old God wrought in creation, and rested. So now, in the new creation, the result of His work is rest for the heart of the Savior and rest for the sinner who hears His

TIME TO PURCHASE FEEDERS

No Hard and Fast Rule for Farmer to Go By-Cattle Are Higher in Spring Than in Fall.

Sim Baxter's right leg was in temporary retirement under a layer of arnica-soaked bandages. He regarded the injured member with a glint of rueful humor and spake thus to a neighbor who had dropped in for a chat with the cheerful invalid.

"Pert, (cli me somethin'. How can a feller tell when a mean white mule named Anarchy is goin' to kick? I mean, how can be tell in time to do. him any good?"

"Hamma knowledge goes no further than to say that a white mule is always gold to kick. Is that the answer? Then let me ask you a question; How do you know whether to buy your 'feeder' steers in the falor in the spring? Do you make any thing by feeding them in the winter. and will you make more if you let the other feller feed 'em through? They cost more in the spring tinn in the fail. Is tiwre any way to be certain?"

Sing admitted that the thing was post his comprehension and confessed that he sometimes did the thing one way and sometimes the other, but thur he never knew just how he was com-

In reality, as to the time to buy stockers or feeders, there is no hard and fast rule. The usual time is it the full when they must leave the grazing areas and go where feeds have been harvested or stored for catthe feeding. However, with a falling market, which no one can foretell with any degree of certainty, the cattle may not be worth enough more in the spring to pay for the winter feeding. Yet they have been kept largely on feed for which there is no other mar-

Consequently, what Sim and his neighbor should know is how much it costs to keep stockers through the winter on various rations, how they lose or gain weight and how they gain through the summer as a result of the way they have been wintered. Being in a better position to carry on feeding experiments to answer these questions than the cattlemen, the bureau of animal industry, co-operating with the West Virginia experiment station, conducted a series of feeding. tests in Greenbrier county, West Virginia. The experiments began December 22, 1914, and covered a period of four years, the results being new published in department bulletin 870 In brief, 30 yearling steers were selected each year and divided into three lots of ten steers each. When the lots were carefully equalized, the average weight of the animals was 663 pounds, each. The steers were on winter rations an average of 130 days, and on pasture an average of 158 days each

The tests proved that an average daily ration of 19.8 pounds of silage. five pounds of mixed hay, and 2.5 pounds of wheat straw during the winter would maintain these steers without loss of weight.

An average daily ration of 23.1 pounds of corn silage, 4.9 pounds of wheat straw and one pound of cottonseed meal would give each steer an average gain of 62 pounds.

A daily ration of 11.9 pounds of mixed hay and 4.1 pounds of wheat straw fed throughout the winter will not keep the animal in good condition. This ration was responsible for a loss of 35 pounds per steer. Corn silage gave better results than dry roughage alone, and the steers that had slinge as a part of their winter ration made greater total gains than those fed on hay and straw.

The cost of feed averaged throughout the four years was as follows : Corn silage $ 6.00 Wheat straw 7.00

The bulletin records feeding tests that will be extremely valuable to the farmers of Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina. Tennessee and the adjacent states, and for them it does much to answer the question that puzzled Sim and his friends. The bulletin may be had on application to the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. Q.
