A Henpecked Dog
An English lady, says a contributor to the Cornhill Magazine, having received a kitten and a puppy as gifts, determined to bring them up together. She put them into the same bed, fed them from the same saucer, and they became fast friends.
In time the kitten arrived at matronhood. She presented the world with little ones and chose for their nursery a remote and quiet room in the house. But in a few days she evidently decided that there was a better place for them on the floor above. Instead of removing the kittens herself, she trotted off to her friend the dog and got him to follow her to the spot where the kittens were lying. When he had looked at them she started off to the upper room, and he followed her; but, seeing that he was—so to speak —“empty-handed,” she doubled back and returned to the kittens; and eventually, after two or three more false starts, he understood her and, picking up one of the kittens in his mouth, followed her up the stairs to the new place. That was as far as his understanding went, and she had to conduct him back to the other kittens and repeat the whole performance again and again until in the end he had removed them all, and she was happy in her new quarters.

But it was not the ideal spot after all; she was happy there only for a day. Again she summoned the dog, and he moved all the kittens again, but more readily than at first. Again the cat became dissatisfied, and the dog moved the kittens again. From first to last there were so many removals that the lady lost count of their number.

The Place for Alphonse
“Alphonse,” said the heiress, “I have been thinking.”
“Thinking of me, precious?” asked Alphonse.
“Indirectly, yes; I have been thinking that if you married me everybody would say you only did so to get my money.”
“What care I for the unthinkable world?”
“But, Alphonse, I will marry you.”
“My own dar—”
“And I will not have people say unkind things about you, so I have arranged to give my fortune to the missionaries. Why, Alphonse, where are you going?”
Alphonse paused long enough on his way to the door to look back and mutter: “I’m going to be a missionary!”

Inheritance
Johnny Brown was the brightest boy in his class, but was also the naughtiest. After a time the teacher's patience was exhausted. She wrote a note and gave it to Johnny for his mother, who read the following:
“Johnny Brown is the brightest boy in the class, but also the most mischievous. What shall I do?”
Without a word Johnny's mother wrote the following in the upper left hand corner:
“Do as you like. I've my hands full with his father.”

THE SOLDIERS' BONUS BILL PASSED HOUSE YESTERDAY

Measure is Now Up to Senate and Its Fate is Regarded as Very Uncertain in This Place

Washington, March 23.—The four billion dollar soldiers bonus bill was passed tonight by the house by an overwhelming majority. It now goes to the senate where its fate is regarded as uncertain.

The vote was 333 to 70, or 64 more than the two-thirds majority necessary for passage of the measure under the parliamentary procedure selected by republicans for the expressed purpose of preventing the democrats from offering a motion to recommit.

Party lines disappeared both in the general debate and on the final roll call, 242 republicans, 90 democrats and one socialist supporting the bill and 42 republicans and 28 democrats voting against it.

Provisions of the Bill.

As passed by the house, the bonus bill would provide for immediate cash payments to veterans whose adjusted service pay would not exceed $50, and would give the other veterans the option of these four plans:

Adjusted service certificates, with provisions authorizing loans by banks in the first three years after next October 1, and by the government thereafter; the certificates to run for 20 years and to have a face value at maturity of the amount of the adjusted service credit at the rate of $1 a day for domestic service and $1.25 a day for foreign service, increased by 25 per cent plus interest at the rate of 4 1/2 per cent compounded annually.

Vocational training aid after January 1, 1923, at the rate of $1.75 a day, the total payments not to exceed, however, 140 per cent of the adjusted service credit.

Farm and home aid under which veterans who purchase or improve farm or homes would be paid after July 1, 1924, a sum equal to their adjusted service credit increased by 25 per cent.

Land settlements, under which lands would be reclaimed under the supervision of a special board and farm units established for sale to the veterans at a price fixed by the board, unless the amount of the adjusted service credit due the purchasers.

The North Carolinians members of the house voted for the bonus bill. Representative Kitchin was “paired” against it, while Representative Brinson was not present.

Representative Pou attacked the bill, but voted for it. He urged the house to provide a cash bonus, and declared the matter ought not to be made a political question.

“I regret,” he said, “that there was not nerve or statesmanship enough among those who framed this bill to provide cash bonus, and to pay these men now. March up, and don't play with politics.”

“This bill is better than no bill at all, and I shall vote for it, but in the hope that somewhere along its pathway it may be amended.”

CAPTURE SEVEN MEN AND 190 GALLONS OF WHISKEY

Rockingham Posse Makes Big Haul of Liquor—Five Autos Taken Into Custody

(From Greensboro Patriot)

The sheriff of Rockingham county, A. P. Sands, and a posse of deputies captured seven men, said to be residents of Guilford, five automobiles and 190 gallons of whiskey Friday morning in Rockingham county, just over the Virginia line. The whiskey was being brought to Greensboro by the bootleggers.

The capture was made just as dawn was breaking and was the reward of great patience on the part of the officers, who laid in wait all night long, until the liquor men thought the coast was clear and set out towards Greensboro.

Those captured are J. U. Foust, Millard Smith, Sam Price, Til Price, J. M. Riddle, Will Patterson and J. G. Blue. One man escaped, leaping from his automobile as the officers closed in on their quarry and fleeing across the country.

A tip that big liquor convoy was coming through was received by Sheriff Sands and he gathered up Deputies Dallas, Mobley, Martin Jones and Garrison, taking them to a point near Stoneville, where they concealed themselves and began their all night vigil, taking a position in a strip of woods along the road. A little while before midnight the “watch” car of the men arrested began moving up and down the road, making trips to see if the coast was clear. From then until early in the morning the pilot car passed and re-passed.

The officers, believing that the car was a lookout, left it alone. Then when, a little after 3 o'clock, four other cars, close together, came along, the officers rushed from their hiding place and quickly captured the outfit. The pilot car was in the rear this time and the driver escaped.

The seven men captured and the cars and liquor were taken to Wentworth and bond fixed at $1,500 for the men.

Wool Buyer to Visit Monroe

Mr. Chas. F. Tarter, wool buyer for a Philadelphia manufacturer, will be in Monroe next Wednesday, March 29th, for the purpose of buying wool. Mr. Tarter writes us that he is paying thirty cents for clear unwashed wool, and twenty to twenty-five cents for black or burry wool. Farmers having wool that they desire to sell will please bring to Monroe on next Wednesday. Come to our office and we will direct you further as to where to take it. Pack wool in good strong bags for shipping, but do not sew up, leave them open so that the wool can be examined. Remember the date and have your wool here if you have any for sale.—T. J. W. Broom.

COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION BIG SUCCESS

everybody that all folks are naturally, by instinct, religious.

If the fourfold nature is to be religious, then all the powers we have, physical, mental, social and spiritual, must be religious; therefore, the task of education becomes one of the developing powers that God has given to us in such a way that these powers will be nurtured and developed in harmony with the christian standards of life.

We are told that these powers at birth are in embryo form. In other words, that every child is either a potential saint or a potential sinner, with the power to become either. At birth heredity has done its work and the future and environment begins.

The need for religious education arises out of the fact that the child is at birth, not what we want him to be. Through the process of teaching and training we are hoping to overcome inherited tendencies. Therefore religious education consists of the nurture and development of all desirable traits and the control, or prevention of all undesirable traits. The old conception of the teaching process has been radically changed in recent years.

The memorizing of scripture is not necessary in teaching religion. It may or may not be learned—depending entirely upon the attitude of both teacher and pupil whether the memory work is done. The new task of the teacher today is indefinitely more difficult. But at the same time, it is increasingly more interesting than it was a few years ago.

The Master Teacher, Jesus Christ, has never been excelled as a teacher of life and religion. The difficulty is that so many of our teachers since his time have departed from His methods. The nearer we approach the methods employed by the Master Teacher, the more perfect is our pedagogy and psychology.
