EXCITEMENT OVER THE ARRIVAL OF A NEW BABY

A Man's Birthday, Wedding Day and the Time of His Funeral are Red Letter Events

Everyone is excited over the arrival of a baby. It is the one time in his life, save for his wedding day and his funeral, when he is practically sure of holding the center of the stage. But, notwithstanding the Declaration of Independence, there is a pitiful inequality in the baby's debut. Some babies, for instance, are attended by a retinue of nurses and powder puffs and delicate afghans, but many of the babies in your town have none of these things. They come into the world somehow, often at the expense of their mothers, and they linger, according to government statistics, about twelve months and many of them only six. One baby out of every ten in the United States dies before its first year is out; 125,000 before their sixth week. One hundred thousand babies in this country, more than the entire population of the state of Nevada, die yearly of preventable causes such as bad feeding, cold milk, draughts and ignorant care.

Mr. Average Baby is lucky indeed if he has a Red Cross public health nurse to meet him when he comes. If the nurse has had anything to say about it, he is practically certain to have a doctor, too, unlike many of his baby associates. One of the nurse's chief objects is to persuade the mother to have a doctor. Birth and death are so frequent in some districts and run so close together that people do not even bother to have a doctor. But when the baby has once arrived he is made the object of constant rites. The nurse calls every morning to see him and his mother, and starts him on the path to health with warm water, soap, powder, vaseline and little soft, clean clothes. When she has ministered to the mother, aired the room and laid the baby in a little bed of his own, sometimes made from the clothes basket, a large wash boiler or any sort of box that may be on hand, she leaves a little advice about diet, rest and care, and leaves them until the next day. She is, next to his mother, the baby's best friend. It is she who regulates his diet and saves him from colic and colds. It is she who knows what is the matter with him when he cries and just what to do for him in every emergency. She knows all his little problems, and when the novelty of his arrival has worn off and he is apt to suffer a loss of popularity, it is she who persuades his mother to bring him to the baby clinic to be weighed each week. Here he becomes a disciple of clean, fresh milk, soft clothes, no draughts and a quiet life, so that the year's end finds him plump and limpled and healthy, a living refutation of those pitiful quarters of a million babies dying every year of improper care.

There is a wealth of work cut out for the Red Cross public health nurse once she is established in a rural community. It is considered a day's work, a very day's work, in the centers of population for one trained nurse to minister to one case of sickness during a day. Frequently there are two nurses for this one case.

But the public health nurse in the rural community has to look after, not only her particular community, but maybe a neighboring community or two, or some outlying and isolated farms and she must see that her day is so divided that she may bring the greatest amount of relief and comfort to the greatest number.

So she arranges her day on a visit-by-leave basis. She lists all the homes in which there is sickness and she arranges her schedule so that she can call at each of these homes to give the necessary care daily or as often as she is needed or as often as time can be spared. She does not remain in the home except in cases of emergency, but she does not leave it neglected. She gives the well members of the family some plain and simple rules to follow in ministering to the sick.

And while she is in these homes, her concern is not only for the person who is ill. She must look out for the entire family. She endeavors to discover and remedy physical defects and habits, insanitary home conditions and anything else that may be productive of disease. She not only instructs the family on how to care for simple cases of illness, she instructs them as well as to how the family can be kept well.

Their claim cold has been discovered in Florida; it may be just some tourist with his mouth open.

NEGRO IS TAKEN FROM GUILFORD JAIL

Will Davis, "of Charlotte," Caught by Four Unidentified Men; Declares His Innocence

Greensboro, June 6.—Will Davis, young negro giving his home as Charlotte and his place of recent employment as Winston-Salem, was taken to the state penitentiary at Raleigh, leaving here at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon, by Sheriff Brady, of Randolph county. Davis was placed in Guilford jail shortly after noon today, charged with assaulting Miss Florence Reddick, prominent farmer of near High Point, late Monday afternoon.

Davis was arrested by four unidentified men near Winston-Salem this morning, slipped to High Point where it is said his victim identified him as the man who assaulted her, and later brought here where he was placed in the Guilford jail.

The crime occurred just over the Randolph county line and, as Sheriff Brady, of that county, arrived here shortly before the Raleigh train time this afternoon, he took him in custody and to Raleigh.

Davis was brought here by four unidentified men who said that they had captured him at a store a short distance from Winston-Salem on the Winston-Randolman road. He showed fight and one of them knocked him in the head. He was taken before the girl and she identified him.

The four men did not leave their names with the sheriff here. Davis declares his innocence, saying that he was returning to Winston-Salem from Lexington. He admits trying to run when the four men came upon him and says that they knocked him down. His head was bruised by the impact of some heavy object. He says he was eating cheese and crackers when captured.

It is understood that the men were led in the direction of Winston-Salem by bloodhounds on the trail and that the four in an automobile went ahead and found the negro before the arrival of the dogs.

Davis emphatically denies any knowledge of the crime, saying that he had never been near the scene of the crime.

He is a thick-lipped, bullet-headed, brutish-looking black.

BLOODLESS EXPERT HERE

MEINHARDT, FAMOUS IN THIS SPECIALTY, CALLED TO CHARLOTTE

Meinhardt, of Chicago and Daytona, Florida, who became conspicuous since successfully attending John D. Rockefeller as well as other noted individuals, will personally be at the Selwyn Hotel, Charlotte, N. C., Wednesday and Thursday only, June 14th and 15th, and will afford local sufferers a private demonstration from 10:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m., when all sufferers of any disorder or crippled condition are invited to come and talk. He employs similar Bloodless Methods to those first successfully introduced into this country by the famous Prof. Lorenz, of Vienna, Austria, on P. D. Armour's child of Chicago. Prof. Lorenz again returned to this country the past year and conducted many successful clinics in New York City. Meinhardt's superior skill in applying these methods was what attracted Mr. Rockefeller, among his many other distinguished patrons. While Lorenz is claimed the Bloodless Genius of Europe—Meinhardt is claimed the Bloodless Genius of America.

No matter what your illness or crippled condition may be, every individual who is not in good health should consult this noted expert who produces by the most advanced Bloodless Methods without using Surgery, Medical Treatment or Prescriptions. Many receive immediate and permanent relief—after having suffered for years. Demands for his services prevent stopping at any other place in this section.

Stop Scalp Itch With PARISIAN SAGE

Thousands of men and women use Parisian Sage because it so quickly stops itching scalp.

Besides speedily ridding the head of every particle of dandruff this delightful invigorator keeps the hair from coming out and gives it a beautiful lustre and softness that compels admiration. That's why English Drug Co. and all good druggists sell so much of it and guarantee it. Parisian Sage does not change the natural color of the hair.

If there must be a war, China is a fine place for it to be.
