The demand for this great ennvenience is being evidenced by men and in editorials in newspapes all over the country. The post check system provides paper money printed in such a way that it may be used as a check for its tace volue. To illustrate:

There are hundreds of things a farmer wants to send money for, perhaps to the store at the county set. Now instead of taking a begy and going to town at the espense of time and money, he would like very much to send the money and get what he wants Inder the post check plan he
