IN MEMORIAM.

From the Darlington News.
"Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."
They shall hunger no more neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them nor any heat; for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and lead them to living fountains of waters, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

I.
On the strand of that deep wild sea
Whence thy spirit took its flight,
Alone I stand and think of thee,
Alone in my depth of night.
Alone, my dear one, all alone,
On the lip of the boundless sea,
Waiting for some sweet word of thine
That never comes back to me.

II.
From the depths of a wounded heart I pray
To the Lord who loved us much,
Strength for my weary, lonely way,
And his gentle, healing touch.
For my heart clings close to the tender love
That walks by my side no more
But beckons me still from her home above,
To her side on the heavenly shore.

III.
And I wait in the valley of prayer,
And I call, in the hush of the night,
And ask for the solace and cure
Of God's holy angels of light.
And though never the touch of a sound
From their lips sends its thrill to my ear,
By the peace that my spirit has found,
I know that the angels are here.

IV.
For my Father has "harkened and heard,"
And his angels come at the call
Of his children who trust in his word
And his mercy—whatever befall.
And they bring me sweet thoughts from that shore
Where the River of Life floweth free,
And my loved one, at rest evermore,
Is waiting and watching for me.

V.
To my soul comes their whisper, so sweet—
"The dark night, it is passing away;
Soon, the dear ones, now sundered shall meet,
And shout at the dawning of day.
Thy dear loved ones glad souls is at rest,
By the river that flows from the throne,
In the light of God's face she is blest
With a peace that earth never has known."

VI.
And I weep, yet I know all is well,
And a sweetness find even in tears,
And earth's darkness grows bright while I dwell
With the angels sent down at my prayers,
And I look to you beautiful land
With a longing felt never before,
While I dream of the clasp of a hand
Which awaits me upon that bright shore.

LETTERS OF ACCEPTANCE.

From Democratic State Nominations.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
SUPT. OF PUB. INSTRUCTION,
RALEIGH, June 4, 1888.

Messrs. B. H. Bunn, W. T. Ennett
and G. G. Luke, Committee:

DEAR SIR: I have your favor of the 2nd inst., notifying me that the Democratic State Convention, recently in session, nominated me for re-election to the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Thanking the convention and very highly appreciating the honor conferred upon me, I accept the nomination and promise my best efforts for the election of our State and National tickets and for the promotion of the principles of the Democratic party.

For the committee's kind personal allusions they have my best acknowledgements.

I am, gentlemen, very truly
Your obedient servant,
S. M. FINGER.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
RALEIGH, June 4, 1888.

Messrs. B. H. Bunn, W. T. Ennett
and G. G. Luke, Committee:

GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt, this day, of your favor of the 1st inst., informing me of my nomination by the recent State Democratic Convention, for the office of Treasurer of the State of North Carolina.

In accepting the nomination I express my deep sense of gratitude to my fellow-citizens for this additional testimonial of their confidence and partiality, and my thanks to you for the pleasant terms in which you convey to me the action of the convention.

I share in the opinion which you express that, with united effort, a great and overwhelming victory is already assured.

With personal regards,
I am, very truly,
Your obedient servant,
DONALD W. BAIN.

LOUISBURG, June 4th, 1888.

Messrs. B. H. Bunn, W. T. Ennett
and G. G. Luke, Committee:

GENTLEMEN: Your favor of the 1st notifying me of my "nomination by the State Democratic Convention as one of the associate justices of the Supreme Court" was addressed to me at Raleigh and has been forwarded to me and received here by the last mail. I accept the nomination with a grateful appreciation of the high honor conferred upon me by the convention and for which I avail myself of this reply to express my cordial thanks. If my nomination shall be ratified at the polls next November, as I trust it will be, it shall be my highest aim, as it will be my highest duty, to do all that may be in my power to preserve the ancient character of the highest judicial tribunal in the State for integrity and a fair and impartial administration of justice, so that, in an appeal to the court of last resort in the State, every suitor, however high or however humble his position, may feel that no injustice has been done.

With thanks for your kind expression of personal esteem,
I am, very truly,
JOS. J. DAVIS.

WILSON, N. C., June 5th, 1888.

Messrs. B. H. Bunn, W. T. Ennett
and G. G. Luke:

GENTLEMEN: With a just appreciation of the high honor conferred upon me and the great confidence reposed in me by the representatives of the Democratic party of North Carolina, I accept the nomination for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, that you are commissioned to tender.

Knowing that one, who properly fills so exalted a position, must be free from the exciting influences of political strife, I still recognize the right of a party, whose conservatism has won the confidence of our people, to provide through its organization for manning all of the judicial as well as executive offices of the State government with its own trusted men.

This plan is consistent with the fixed faith that, in the future as in the past, justice will be as fairly meted out to all classes of citizens in North Carolina, as in any State in the Union.

Allow me through you to tender my sincere thanks to the Democratic State Convention and to the hosts of people, for whose weal and under whose instruction they acted.

In conclusion, gentlemen, I must thank you for the very kind terms in which you communicated the message from the body you represent. It is moreover gratifying to me in the extreme, that a committee composed of friends whom I have honored and trusted for years has been the chosen medium of correspondence between the convention and myself.

With the highest esteem and kindest feeling,
I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
A. C. AVERY.

ALEXANDER, N. C., June 8, 1888.

Messrs. B. H. Bunn, W. T. Ennett
and G. G. Luke, Raleigh, N. C.:

GENTLEMEN: I am in receipt of your letter of 1st inst., in which you state that you are commissioned by the State Democratic Convention to notify me of my "nomination for attorney general of North Carolina."

I accept the nomination with profound gratitude and pride. I trust that in the coming political campaign I may have frequent opportunity to testify my sense of the honor conferred upon me, and to contribute something to the struggle which the Democratic party is again called upon to make in the maintenance of pure local and general government.

Thanking you for the kind expressions accompanying the formal notification of my nomination,
I am most truly, &c.,
THEO. F. DAVIDSON.

WASHINGTON, N. C., June 12, 1888.

Messrs. B. H. Bunn, W. T. Ennett
and G. G. Luke, Committee:

GENTLEMEN: I am in receipt of your much esteemed favor of the 1st inst., notifying me of my nomination by the State Convention of the Democratic party, lately in session at Raleigh, to an associate justiceship on our Supreme bench, should the proposed amendment, increasing the number of such justices be ratified.

It would be the pride, as it shall be the effort of my life, to merit the gratifying expressions by which you have chosen to indicate your estimate of my fitness for this high position. While sincerely entertaining for my own part a widely different conception of my capacities, I am so far encouraged to trust myself, by the high opinion of men whose opinion is everywhere valued, as to venture to dedicate my humble powers to the service of the State, if to this honorable position her sovereign people should call me.

In this spirit I accept the nomination. The law has been from my boyhood up the study, the beloved pursuit, of my life; promotion to its honors my chief ambition. If invited to go up higher in my profession, I shall approach the grave duties of the position with an earnest resolution to discharge them uprightly and worthily.

I am profoundly grateful to the convention for the high honors which it has bestowed upon me.
Very truly,
Your obedient servant,
JAS. E. SHEPHERD.

Our Philadelphia Letter.

Correspondence of The Morganton Star,
PHILADELPHIA, July 21, 1888.

The Wm. M. Lloyd Company of this city is one of the most extensive lumber and coal handling concerns in the country. Their trade in this city alone is sometimes enormous, and at Williamsport, Pa., they have a large source of supply and, I have no doubt, occupy there as conspicuous a position among the commercial institutions of that section as they do here. Their lumber and coal yards in Philadelphia cover a small town. Only recently a whole row of houses was bought to be torn down and the ground used as an extension to the lumber yard.

A firm sending out on an average one hundred loads of lumber a day, and a not inconsiderable number of tons of coal, must, you may well imagine, own some strong and high-bred live-stock. Six or seven stables accommodate some sixty horses and seven mules. The stables are separated because of the lessened danger of a sweeping fire. Three men are constantly at work during the day, cleaning and otherwise keeping the places in order. Each driver, and they are all tried and experienced men, is expected to attend to the team placed in his charge, beside having the duty of harnessing, of course. But here is the curious part which I wanted to tell you about:

The animals are all fed by clock-work. I'll explain. An ingenious machine, regulated by clock work, furnishes the fodder to the sixty-seven stalls with unfailing regularity and without the necessary presence of a single employe at the time of feeding.

The machine may be set to do its work at any time of the day or night. At Lloyd's the animals are fed at six in the morning, at noon, and at six in the evening. At some convenient time before these hours the fodder is conveyed by an easy means to conduits or pipes in the upper part of the buildings. No further attention is requisite. At the time fixed by the regulator the feed is dropped into all the stalls simultaneously. The beasts then have ample time to eat, and when the drivers are ready to take them out for the morning's or afternoon's work, there is no delay on account of feeding, something all who have used horses will appreciate thoroughly, I think. Thus it saves time as well as labor. Either the drivers or men specially appointed for that purpose, would have to consume much time in doing what this excellent machine does with exactness—and to a firm like the one I speak of, "Time is money."

Pretty good idea, isn't it?

It has become virtually universally the custom among the churches of large cities to close at least during one of the Summer months. Then the pastors seek recreation at the shore or amid the mountains. Then the congregations are scattered, some of the members following the example of their spiritual leaders (if they can afford it, financially) and others spending the time at home, attending divine services whenever the doors of the houses of God are not barred. The church organization, church discipline, which includes punctuality and regularity of attendance, are all temporarily weakened or destroyed. As far as united opposition is concerned, the devil has a free field during the dog days in the cities.

Some ironical poet, perhaps Bret Harte, certainly writing much like him if it was not he, contrived a good thing to a magazine on this topic not so very long ago. He described the journey of a plain old country couple to a big town, and their experience there over Sunday. In inimitable style he relates their expressions of wonderment upon arriving at the church-door and finding a placard with an inscription like this: "Church closed till September. Pastor's vacation."

They wondered "whether Paul and Peter and them olden time preachers ever took a vacation, and whether Paul had an unpublished correspondence with the church at Ephesus on the subject."

Of course I believe the minister ought to have a good rest during the hot week; but couldn't it be done without closing the doors? It has been arranged so by a very few.

There's one thing to be kept in view: the turning of the key in the door of God's house does not imprison His Ever-Wakeful Darkness, who goeth about with alacrity though the thermometer tell a most torrid tale.

OTTO F. PEELER.

A RADICAL TRICK.

"Introduction to the King and Queen" Ought to be the Name of the Fraud.

Temperance Democrat, in State Chronicle.

The children have a play which they denominate—"Introduction to the King and Queen."

They place two chairs just far enough apart to admit between them a tub of water. Over the chairs and the tub they spread a sheet, making it appear that there are three chairs in a row, this arrangement they style "the throne."

A boy, styling himself the king, seats himself on a chair, and a girl, who is to play the queen, takes the other chair, the hidden tub of water being where the third chair should be.

Now the fun commences. A little boy or girl is brought in to be introduced to their majesties—the queen and king, and is told that he is to be granted the distinguished honor of sitting on the throne between them. After having bowed and knelt before the royal pair, he is told to rise and come forward and be seated on the throne. As he is in the act of taking his seat, the king and queen spring up and the little boy, instead of finding himself on a throne, wakes up to the fact that he is in a tub of cold water.

That's about the game the managers of the Third Party are trying to play on the unsophisticated, honest, temperance Democratic voters of North Carolina. They have arranged their throne, placing in one chair king "Prohibition" and on the other queen "Woman Suffrage," while under the gaudy covering overspreading it, they have placed the Republican tub; and the unsophisticated Democrat, if he take a seat on that throne, he may expect to find himself, in November next, smeared all over with Radicalism.

There is more temperance in the Democratic party today than there is in the Third Party, and Democrats would do well to examine the trick before they take a seat in the Radical tub.

The Bandanna Girl.

N. Y. World.

The Bandanna Girl is abroad in the streets and is doing her prettiest to spread Democratic doctrine with a charming disregard of any politics of her own. In a Fourth avenue street car yesterday she was an object of much interest. Around her tidy turban hat a genuine silk bandanna was wound and fastened with a dainty butterfly-pin. The vest-front of her walking dress was made entirely of a bandanna laced in to her figure and evidently an integral part of her bodice. The bouffant drapery below her waist was made of two artistically draped bandannas, and the corner of another peeped capriciously from her reticule. Fashion has before now worked up a vast amount of political feeling, and the cause that comes home to the heartstone of the milliner is bound to have a certain amount of moral momentum behind it. If there are Thur-men in the land, there are Thur-women, also of a verity.
