the doctors have failed absolutely to find a successful treatment for blood poison, and the many diseases having their origin in the blood. They give but one kind of medicine, they know but one treatment, and whether in the form of powder, pill or liquid, the doctor's prescription is always the same-potash or mercury.

Too much cannot be said of the harmful and disastrous effects of these drugs. The doctors are unable to rid the system of the poison, and direct their effor is toward covering up the symptoms from view. There is but one effect to be obtained from potash and mercury—they bottle up the poison and dry it up in the system, but it must be remembered that they dry up the marrow in the bones at the same time, gradually consuming the vitality. Those disfiguring copper-colored splotches are but indications of worse results to follow. No sooner has the system taken on the full effects of this powerful drug than that suppleness powerful drug than that suppleness and elasticity of the joints gives way to a stiffness, followed by the racking pains of rheumatism. The form gradually bends, the bones ache, while decrepitude and helplessness prema-turely take possession of the body. Under this treatment, it is but a short step from vigor and health to a pair of crutcher. With this wreck of the system often comes falling of the hair and eyebrows, loss of finger nails, and decay of the bones-a condition most horrible. This is no overdrawn picture, for the world to-day is full of these hobbling mercurial wrecks.

Contagious Blood Poison is the most horrible of all diseases, and has been appropriately called the curse of mankind. Until the discovery of S. S. S., it was incurable. It has always baffled the doctors, and it is in this dis-ease that the evils of mercury and potash are most common, because these drugs are given in such large doses in an effort to counteract the poison. While they succeed in bottling ip the poison in the system, it always breaks forth again, attacking some delicate organ, frequently the mouth of threat filling them with eating threat S. S. S. is the only known cure true remedy in Electric Bitters. This delicate organ, frequently the mouth and throat, filling them with eating for this terrible disease.

It is the same in other diseases of the blood. Scrofula, Eczema, Cancer, Rheumatism, all are given the same treatment by the physicians-mercury and potash, and the result as above set forth is always the same.

We offer a remedy purely vegetable, powerful in its effect, yet harmless in every way. For fifty years S. S. S. has been curing blood discases, from the most violent to the mildest case, after all other treatment failed. It is guaranteed purely vegetable, and one thousand dollars reward is offered for proof to the contrary. It is a real blood remedy for real blood troubles, and never falls to cure Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Eczema, Rheumatism, Cancer, or any other disease of the blood. If you have a blood disease, take a remedy which will not injure you. Beware of mercury; don't mee to your system. Don't get bottled up!

An Archbishop's Robes, 1205.

In our time, when, from antiquarian curiosity or some other reason, ancient tombs have been opened. we have come face to face with longburied specimens of olden needlework. An instance occurred sot long since in Canterbury cathedral, when the tomb of Hubert Walter was poned This ecclesiastic was archbishop of Canterbury when he died, in 1205. Only his bones remained when the investigation in question took place, but these lay in the vestments in which the body was interred nearly seven hundred years ago, and on these robes are various embroideries in sitk and gold. Whon you are near. The linen was found to be considerably decayed, but the amber colored silk on which the embroidery is worked is in fair preservation. This work consists of angels, the evangelists and other sacred figures arranged chiefly in roundlets. In the same cathedral may also be seen another specimen of even greater interest; this is the velvet jupon (a surcoat worn over armor) of the Black Prince, which is suspended over his tomb. It is embroidered with his arms in gold. The robes of the Saxon bishop, St. Cuthbert, in Universed by any fortune, any fatethe library of Durham cathedral, are also enriched with needlework .-

An "Urgent Case,"

Few things yex a doctor more than to be sent for in great haste at an unseasonable hour, only to find upon arrival that little or nothing is the matter with the patient. An emineut surgeon was called to an "urgent case" of this sort and found that the patient, who was a man of great wealth, but small courage, had received a very slight wound from a fall.

The surgeon's face did not betray his irritation, but he gave his servant orders to go home with all possible haste and return with a certain plaster. The patient, turning very pale, said anxiously: "I trust, sir, there is no great and

Mr. Ruskin, in one of his latest published works, has a word to say about the rights of men and women: Quite one of the most important and necessary ones of man, he considers, is the right to have a good dinner well cooked, when he comes from his work, and "quite one of the pleasantest rights of women to have a pretty dress to put on wher she has done hers. The first of the sciences, therefore," Mr. Ruskin concludes, "is that of cookery, and the first of arts that of dress,"

CURIOUS ARMS.

Ancient Implements of War Which Are Now Quite Obsolete. Among the arms now obsolete which formed a large part of the infantry equipment in the days when the army was started was the pike, which was in the form of a spear, with a flat and pointed head, mounted on a staff from thirteen to eighteen feet long. The firearm in general use at the time was the matchlock. What would a sergeant major of

MAKING PINS.

How the Little Useful Articles Are Made by Machinery.

The Operation is Quite Different from What It Was to the Sixteenth Century - Compileated Machines That Turn

When plus were first invented, some time during the third decade of the stateenth century, it took one late in the present century as 1838 twelve persons before it was finished paper of the regulation green. Today, however, everythlog is different in the pin factory, a single machine turning out a stream of the little, neatly-polished, sharp pointed implements at the rate of two hundred per minute, day and night. This wonderful little pin-making automaton is not larger than a sewing machine, but it has more invisible knives, springs, sharpeners and pinchers about it than a steam pins are made is coiled around a of iron pegs across the platform of the machine. A queer little pair of pinchers - "catchers" - seizes the wire and thrusts it through a hole, where it is held while a small hammer beats a head on the forward end of the wire. Here it is held until a knife descends and cuts the wire in proper drop into a groove through which the heads cannot pass, and while being held in that position is exposed to the action of a set of small files, which almost instantly give it 7% actual a smooth, sharp point. The pin is now finished and ready for the polishing tub, which is simply a revoling barrel in which the pins are friction. After going through the polishing tub they are boiled in a solution of acid and tin. This latter appearance.
