Manufactures Essential to Diversified Agri culture in the State.

A correspondent of the News and Courier, writing from one of the interior towns of that State, referring to the inability of farmers to seil their butter, says:

"The town is full of butter, so also is the country, and the supply cleared $350 an acre on much of his has grown so great that merchants tobacco crop this year. have been torced to quit buying, for the simple reason that they can't is much interested in the developdispose of it at any price." This illustrates the whole teach-in its persis ent efforts to show that industrial development of the South is absolutely essential to the prosperity of farmers. Any section which lacks manufacturers must necessarily lack consumers of agricultural products. Where there are no towns and cities-and thecome almost wholly through the growth of manufactures - there can be no demand for diversified farm products. In such cases the farmers must confine themselves almost wholly to a few staple crops, and has lese the opportunity of profit farmers of the South are more in terested in the building up of mannfactures than any other class. Upon the growth of a great con suming p pulation, furnishing a demand for all their butter and fruit and vegetables, depends their presperity.
