NORTH CAROLINA NEWS.

The Accepted Time.

"The appointed time for man to live is threescore years and ten"—from the cradle to the grave. Take out the twenty-one years of juvenility, and about the same number of years at the end of the pilgrimage, and the physical life of the average man is only about thirty years. These particular years, between say 21 and 50 or 55 years, are to be devoted particularly to the life-work of the individual—the real battle days with self, sin and Satan. The juvenile years are to prepare the soul for the years of conflict, the latter years to retrospect the past, and either to glory or grieve for the manner in which the athletic years were spent, or prepare to give an account to Him who assigned us life's duties as shepherds of His flock. Many of us have arrived at that period of time in our pilgrimage when the physical man is unable to bear the heat and burden of the day; when we can retrospect the past and see the wrecks of others' hopes as far as our duties to them were concerned; we can see where our unwilling hearts and hands failed to comprehend, or willfully neglected, the great truths revealed to us in the obligations voluntarily taken at initiation or advancement in the mysteries of the Order. At that time there were mysticisms in the work of the Order, but the light of truth has penetrated the dark passages, and shown to us through the revealed works that we are alike the offspring of the same Father, and that every man is my brother. Then the command comes: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them." The words are the same, yet we see them possibly in a different light now than we did thirty or forty years ago. It is true that we are bodily the same person, perhaps maturer in thought, but the great difficulty in mature life is, that while you have the will and desire, the physical ability has been expended, perhaps, in a very different manner from what you would like. Because of the contemplation of many known mistakes along life's pathway, many drop in to premature graves because of "the night have been." A lesson for every Old Fellow along this road, for soon the time will come when your fraternal desires will be unable to control the actions of the physical man, and your day of grace will be over. Now is the time to fulfill your obligations.

Fraternity does not mean that we must love all that each one does. A man's course in life may be evil, and we should condemn the evil and assist in punishing the wrong doer. But all condemnation and punishment should have for its object, as well as the good of the guilty as the good of society. We should seek, if possible, to elevate and reform fallen humanity of every class. Every man is your brother and it is your bounden duty to assist and aid him in following the right path, however degraded he may have become.

We are commanded to love all men, but the bond is stronger when men join themselves in a solemn covenant. It takes the practice as well as the teaching of fraternity to make men fraternal. In our secret Orders, precept and practice are daily afforded and opportunities given to elevate and improve the character of men.

The Washington Times sums up the political situation thus: "The Republican party has carefully arranged the preliminaries for its own defeat. The policy of President Cleveland and an infinitesimal faction of the Democrats has been induced to the satisfaction of none and the supreme delight of those who believe that an increased use of silver is necessary to the restoration of happiness and prosperity among the masses. The trend of public sentiment regarding the next national election has shifted from one extreme to the other. Instead of a practical concession that a yellow dog could be nominated by the Republicans and win, the reaction of the opinion is that neither salt-petre nor the intervention of Providence can save the ticket and platform selected at St. Louis from disastrous overthrow. Such are the views of the major portion of politicians and public men in this city."

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. St. James Hotel, Ft. Merritt, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs. Henshaw, 222 E. 25th St., Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of Croup, because it instantly relieves. Free trial bottles at Taylor & Bunker's Drug Store.

Elizabeth City and community witnessed the severest storm Thursday evening that has visited this section in years. Lightning struck the steeple of the Baptist church, doing considerable damage, also killed a negro near town, and another near Woodville seriously injured.

On Sunday, 21st, a crowd of men at Beaver Creek, Ashe county, forcibly prevented Bishop Chesire from holding services in an academy which the Episcopal Church has rented and in which it conducts a school. A number of Ashe county citizens write the Raleigh News and Observer protesting against the outrage.

An extra freight, going east, ran over a switch at Haver River, and wrecked ten box cars, and killed one colored fireman, who was going from Burlington to Raleigh to relieve one of the yard firemen there, and seriously hurt another man, a colored brakeman. The track and switch are torn up for some distance.

Miss Cornelius, of North Carolina, who has been in the city for the last six months, has made quite a reputation as an artist of rare talent. She has made a number of portraits and gives a remarkably good likeness. Some of her time is spent in landscape work and in that direction she has done some good work.—Washington City Times.

It is rumored that President Winston, of the University, has been offered the presidency of the University of Texas and that he may accept. We earnestly hope that such is not the case, and that Dr. Winston will remain at the head of the North Carolina University. Since above was put in type, it is learned that Mr. Winston will go to Texas.

Monday night some parties invaded the town and stole all the clothing they could get hold of easily and as it was the first of the week they struck a good time to find the articles in question. Four strange negroes were seen aboard the freight Tuesday morning, also a large bundle was said to have been seen. Look out, they may come again.—North Wilkesboro News.

The iron foundry and machine shops of P. H. Thompson, in Salisbury, were burned Tuesday afternoon at 6 o'clock. The fire began in the engine room. Mr. Thompson's loss is about $8,000, and he had no insurance. A large brick building adjoining, in which was stored a lot of machinery and tools belonging to Mr. R. J. Holmes, was also burned. Mr. Holmes' loss is $6,000; insurance only $1,500. There was $2,500 insurance on the building.

We are told that a white man and a negro had a row in the yard of the former, over in Polk county the other day, and the white man struck the negro twice in the head with a rock. The negro threatened to prosecute and the white man offered to pay him $5.00 to compromise, but the negro wanted $50.00, which was refused, and he then swore out a warrant and hauled the white man up before a magistrate. After hearing the evidence, the magistrate fined the negro $5.00 and costs, upon the ground that a man's house and yard were his castles. The white man then went the negro's security to keep him out of jail. Great is Law as he is interpreted in these amazing days!

What McKinley's Nomination Means.

The Rocky Mountain News, Denver's leading Republican newspaper of recent date, says:

The nomination of William McKinley, of Ohio, as the Republican candidate for the presidency is not a matter of surprise. It has been evident for weeks that he had a majority of the delegates, and that his friends, as they have done, would sweep down all opposition before them on the first ballot. The candidacy of Reed and Morton and Allison was only maintained in the hope that some concession might be obtained in the way of patronage or appointments at the hands of the successful nominee.

As to the personal character of ex-Governor McKinley, his qualifications for the high position for which he has been named by his party, or his past public career, it is not necessary in this connection to speak. It is what his nomination means, what influences have brought it about, what policy will control his administration—should he be unfortunately be elected—what principles of finance will rule his conduct of public affairs, that now concern the people and demands the most serious consideration at the hands of American voters.

Fortunately none of these things are matters of doubt or uncertainty. Mr. McKinley's nomination has been brought about by the most perfect piece of machine work ever done in the political history of the country. At the head of this organization was a man noted for his wealth, his executive skill and his undying opposition to organized labor. Himself an autocrat and a monopolist, he drew about him these interests, compelled them to contribute the funds needed and thus secured the success of the candidate they had determined upon.

The great trusts and monopolies and protected corporations know that in McKinley they had a willing servant, and hence their desire to make him the president of the United States.

But there was another class which was not quite satisfied—or at least pretended not to be—with McKinley's loyalty and that was the money holders, the bond buyers and bond holders and brokers who deal in securities and who are determined to fasten the single gold standard on the country in order that money may be made scarce and their own holdings correspondingly more valuable. The representatives of the gold power dictated the financial plank of the platform on which McKinley has been placed, and thus secured a pledge for their interests as well as for the trusts and monopolies.

The nomination of McKinley and the platform on which he stands has been brought about by the representatives of protected wealth and the money power. His election would mean that he would be subservient to these interests. Standing upon a gold platform, opposed to the restoration of silver to the coinage, Mr. McKinley comes fairly before the country as the representative of sordid wealth, as the opponent of the rights and interests of the great producing classes, and as the exponent of a policy that has already driven hundreds of people from their homes and turned them into the highways as tramps.

We do not believe that a man whose nomination has been forced by these interests, and who, if elected, would be controlled by such policies, can be chosen president of the United States. His triumph in the convention has been achieved by the disruption of the party. His election would be equivalent to a national disaster. It needs only wisdom and discretion and unity on the part of the opponents of the principles and interests for which McKinley stands to secure his defeat.

THE CONFEDERATE REUNION.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME—EVERY STATE REPRESENTED—THIRTY THOUSAND IN RICHMOND, VA.

News from Richmond of the first days' work is full of interest. The following will give the readers an idea of the Veterans' Reunion June 30th:

The sixth annual convention of the Confederate Veterans met this morning in the vast and gaily decorated auditorium erected for the purpose at the exposition grounds in this city. Intermingled with the Confederate colors and battle flags are national flags, and just above the presiding officer's seat are two largest-angled banners. Around the galleries are the coats-of-arms of all the late Confederate States. Just above, on another tier, are banners on which are inscribed the names of all the famous battles of the war, and intermixed with these are large star-shaped designs bearing the names of all the famous Confederate Generals.

The auditorium, which can seat over ten thousand people, was completely filled and presented a handsome appearance when at 11 o'clock the arrival of Gen. John B. Gordon, Commander-in-Chief of the Confederate Veterans, was greeted by cheer, and the band played "Dixie." He was then presented with a gavel, which Gen. Gordon announced was made from a tree cut on the battlefield of Cheatmounts. He opened the convention by introducing Chaplain J. W. Jones, of the Confederate Veterans, who made an eloquent, impressive prayer, which was followed by the band playing "Nearer My God to Thee."

On the stand were seated all the dignitaries, among them Gov. O'Ferrall, Mrs. Gen. George E. Pickett, now of Washington; Mayor Taylor, of Richmond; Gen. Peyton Wise, Gen. Stephen D. Lee, Mrs. Gen. Gordon and daughter, ex-Minister to Spain J. L. M. Curry, Gen. French and numerous others.

At the conclusion of the prayer, Gen. Gordon proceeded to introduce Gov. O'Ferrall, who was on the programme to welcome the veterans to Richmond, but that gentleman had barely begun to speak when a cheer broke forth from the far end of the auditorium and the venerable form of that gallant old soldier, Gen. Wade Hampton, was seen limping up towards the stand. His progress towards the audience was greeted by the wildest cheers, and when at last he reached the stand, Gen. Gordon announced him as the "brave commander-in-chief of the Confederate cavalry," which called forth another round of cheers and "rebel yells." Order being restored, Governor O'Ferrall was reintroduced and he welcomed the veterans to Virginia.

The Governor said: "Veterans and comrades—You were enlisted in those bands who wrote their names in glory's skies and carved them deep in the Temple of Fame; who made the cause of the South so imperishable and the renown of her armies so fadeless. You endured hardships which no human imagination could picture and no mortal tongue could describe. Your exploits equalled those of the heroes in Grecian legends, and your devotion was not surpassed by Leonidas and his three hundred at Thermopylae. In the path of duty no danger daunted you, no sufferings subdued you, no force appalled you, and no defeats disheartened you. True as the dial to the sun, firm as the rock on the mountain crest, resolute as the lion aroused in his lair, with unblinking cheeks and steady nerve, you obeyed every command, however raised the odds of death. The greater the peril, the stiffer were your sinews; the fiercer the battle, the hotter was your blood. No Grecian phalanx, no Roman legion, were ever adorned with badges more honorable than those you wear upon your manly breasts. It was neither conquest nor power for which you fought; it was in defence of home and country. The rights for which the founders of this Republic struck were no more sacred to them than the rights for which you struck were dear to you.

The city is crowded as never before since the close of the war with veterans, representatives of every State North, South, East and West, and the streets are almost impassable. Banners and badges from every Southern State are visible everywhere, and the scene in the auditorium exceeded in brilliancy and enthusiasm the recent National Republican Convention at St. Louis.

The Grand Camp of Sons of Confederate Veterans was organized to-night at a meeting held at the auditorium of representatives of the camps in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. J. E. B. Stuart, son of the well known Virginia cavalry leader, presided. A constitution and by-laws approved by the United Confederate Veterans, will be adopted to-morrow.

Richmond, Va., July 1—When the sixth annual Confederate reunion convention met at 10:30 o'clock this morning the auditorium was only thinly filled. Gen. Gordon, the commander, called the body to order. The sergeant-at-arms had numerous assistants, and as the arriving delegates came thronging in they were seated without much trouble. There were over 2,000 delegates present, and the hall continued to fill rapidly.

The committee on credentials reported that 550 camps were represented by delegates from the States and Territories as follows: Louisiana 164, Maryland 18, Virginia 116, North Carolina 85, South Carolina 194, Georgia 127, West Virginia 2, Florida 46, Alabama 29, Mississippi 99, Texas 419, Oklahoma 2, Missouri 188, Tennessee 96, Arkansas 55, Kentucky 84, Indian Territory 14, Montana 2, California 6, District of Columbia 12; total 2,045.

The introduction of Mrs. Jefferson Davis by Gen. Peyton Wise and Hon. Taylor Ellison was a pleasant event. The band played "Dixie" and Mrs. Davis, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Hayes, and her son, who was decorated with National and Confederate badges, came to the front of the stand. The convention cheered, the ladies bowed to the right and left and the whole body arose and waved hats, flags and banners and yelled until they were hoarse. Gen. Gordon made a feeling speech, and wound up by presenting Mr. Jefferson Davis Hayes, the 11-year-old grandson of the President of the Confederacy, to the convention. [Cheers.] A delegate in the audience then proposed that the young boy be made a member of this body. The motion was put and unanimously carried and the boy was duly installed as an honorary member of the United Confederate Veterans. He was then taken in the arms of a general, carried down on the floor, and cheered like a conquering hero. After this Mrs. Hayes and the boy (Mrs. Davis who was indisposed having retired) held an informal reception at the stand.

To-morrow will be the culmination of this great Southern occasion, and the attendance and turnout will be something extraordinary.

Increase of Crime.

In regard to the report of Mr. C. B. Denon, Secretary of the State Board of Charities and corrections, which stated that crime had increased five per cent in this State, the Biblical Recorder says:

We have discussed this matter with men in position to know somewhat of criminal affairs, men who have to deal with criminals as they are brought before the Law, and have been informed that very little, if any, increase is shown on the dockets of the Superior Courts; and on the other hand, that the increase is of cases tried before Justices of the Peace, especially in towns and cities and particularly in Raleigh. In this city there are Justices of the Peace who make good livings out of the mere business of trying cases, most of which never come before the courts, being dismissed or suspended "upon payment of costs," out of which the Justice gets his fee. We have been authoritatively informed that criminals actually flee to these Justices for trial, understanding that with the aid of a certain lawyer, they may be dismissed upon payment of costs; that these Justices actually have representatives on the look-out to bring cases before them; and that time and again cases before the Mayor have been changed to the court of the Justice of the Peace with the purpose of escaping the penalty of the law upon payment of costs. These courts have been made courts of indulgence, where upon payment of costs to satisfy the Justice of the Peace, the law-breaker goes free. Furthermore, these Justices contrive to have brought before them hundreds of petty cases, such as buy-tights and trespass, out of which at any rate the fees may be gotten.

The remedy may be briefly stated. The fee-system should be abolished in criminal cases; or the Justice of the Peace system should be abolished, and a few salaried Justices elected by the people, instead of the present appointment of a miscellaneous lot of Justices upon the recommendation of local politicians. Seventeen Justices of the Peace in Raleigh township could be replaced with five, and one (or not more than two) would be sufficient for each of the remaining townships.

A home paper is in no sense a child of charity; it earns twice over every dollar it receives, and is second to no enterprise in contributing to the upbuilding of a town or community says a western weekly. Its patrons reap far more benefit from its columns than do the publishers, and in calling for the support of the people of the community in which it is published, it asks no more than in all fairness begets to it though it generally receives less.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Typhoid Fever in Milk.
The Maryland Medical Chirurgical committee on general sanitation, of Baltimore, is arranging to hold an important meeting in that city in a day or so for the purpose of encouraging popular sentiment in favor of pure milk. It is contended by all medical men, who have investigated the question, that the germs of disease are readily communicated through the use of impure milk, and the belief prevails in Baltimore that a more stringent law for its inspections should be framed than the one now in force.

The American says that not more than 2 per cent. of the milk sold in Baltimore is inspected, and that even the inspect which it had does not reach the most common sources of danger.

"The water which is used to dilute the milk is often impure, the water which the cows drink is filled with infection, and the hands which milk the cows are often unclean. There were in the Johns Hopkins hospital recently seven cases of typhoid fever from a single family, all of which were traced to milk, and the germ which caused the disease probably came from unclean hands in the milking, rather than from adulteration of the milk."

The American says further, "that the germs of scarlet fever, diphtheria, consumption and other diseases are communicated in the same way. The wells and water supply in the vicinity of a dairy are of vital importance. If foul, which only a direct examination can determine, they may communicate disease along with the milk, in spite of the most scrupulous cleanliness on the part of the dairymen."

Little Show for Independent Candidates.
The difficulties of running as an independent candidate in these days, since the passage of the election law by the last legislature, are brought to mind in connection with the candidacy of Geo. W. Justice for Congress on a silver platform.

It is a matter apparently not yet much noticed throughout the State, but still a fact, that the present law makes it extremely difficult for any one to run as an independent candidate. In other words the rights of the independent were not considered.

Section 18 of the new election law says: "The governor, lieutenant-governor, superintendent of public instruction, attorney-general, members of Congress in their respective districts, the members of Congress for the state at large, if there be such, the justices of the Supreme court, judges of the Superior court, solicitor and presidential electors, shall be voted for on one separate ballot."

Now, each of the parties in the political contest must have a ballot prepared according to the provisions of section 18. A detached Congressional ballot is illegal and will not be counted, so that Candidate Justice must get his name on the Democratic, Republican and Populist tickets, if there should be one of the latter; he must prepare something less than 100,000 ballots for the district, or he must call on the voters to scratch the regular tickets.

Verily, the road of independent Congressional candidacy appears to be a hard one to travel under the North Carolina law.—Asheville Citizen.
