Bimetallism Coming.

MONEY COMMISSION APPOINTED BY MCKINLEY TO PROMOTE BIMETALLISM.

A Washington dispatch of Wednesday says: It is well known that President McKinley feels that it is necessary to do something for the cause of bimetallism on an international basis and it is reported today that he has already acted by the appointment of a committee consisting of Senator Edward O. Wolcott of Colorado, ex-Vice-President Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, and General James J. Paine of New York, as a commission to proceed to Europe and attempt to make some arrangement with the nations for an international bimetallism. Along just what lines this commission will proceed or just what powers it possesses is not made known but it is thought that it is given the fullest powers that can be bestowed upon such a body. This act on the part of the President is a general surprise for no one expected him to act so early, if indeed he acted at all. It was the general belief that after the tariff bill became a law that nothing would be done on the monetary question, either in Congress or out, and that it would die a neglected death.

On the Verge of War.
A dispatch from Athens, Greece, says: The frontier situation is developing slowly for two reasons. In the first place, bad weather—snows, rains, and bitterly cold winds—have made campaigning in the mountainous districts anything but a picnic, and have retarded all movements. In the second place, intentional or otherwise, all dispatches are being considerably delayed, a not unusual occurrence since the beginning of the present crisis.

But if the development is slow it is none the less menacing, and an open outbreak of hostilities or a lockdown on the part of one or the other, or both of the countries most interested cannot be much longer delayed, as the strain of maintaining armies of about 100,000 men each in the field is being felt with a steadily growing severity by both Turkey and Greece, so that a declaration of war would be welcomed by either side with a feeling of relief.

The powers are still trying to avert war, with little prospect of success. It is stated that the French Ambassador at Constantinople, M. Cambon, has been instructed to draft an autonomous constitution for the island of Crete, allowing the Cretans to choose their own Governor and providing for a similar franchise for the island. It is feared this effort will turn out to have been made too late.

A False and Fatal Theory.
In a Republican newspaper we find the statement that "as the expenditures of the government had for several years past exceeded its income the latter must be increased." This is a queer logic. It would justify any extent of extravagance and any degree of taxation to meet it. There could not be a falser or more dangerous theory of government than that which we have quoted from our misguided contemporary. If government expenditures exceed government receipts why must the income of the government be increased? Why should not the remedy be applied at the other end and expenses cut down? The increase in our government expenditures has been out of proportion to our growth in population, to our growth in wealth and the legitimate needs of the government.

We frequently hear the boast that we are the richest and most powerful nation on earth and those who make it are among the first to clamor for "protection" against some foreign country, for the lack of which they tell us that great interests in this grand and invincible republic will suffer, if in deed its entire fabric does not totter. It is in the name of these bonty-begars that the city is raised for more revenue because expenditures exceed that which is now coming in.—Atlas Journal.

STOLEN WHEN A BOY.

A Man Who is Now Trying to Identify Himself in Indiana.

There resides in this city a man who does not know his real name or his parents, and whose one aim, ever since he came to the years of understanding, has been to try and know himself. He has gone by the name of James Wilson, but it is certain that is not his name. For fifteen years he has sought his relatives to identify himself, and has striven to delve into the innermost recesses of his once childish memory to try and find some clue to aid him in his search. He has figured prominently in the Charlie Ross case, having once been taken for the lost boy. As near as Wilson, who is now thirty years old, can ascertain, he was stolen from his parents when four years old. He believes himself to be well-connected, and it vaguely lingers in his mind that his home was near a large river.

He remembers his home as filled with kind faces. Besides his father and mother, there were two sisters in the family. But from the day he was stolen he has not since heard of them. Wilson remembers the circumstances of his abduction distinctly. A stranger and well-dressed man one day invited him to take a ride in a buggy. It climbed in with the man, eager for the "treat." He was driven to a neighboring town, where a train was boarded. After a ride of a few hours the man took the child from the train, and gave him to an old woman to keep. This woman seemed to have strict instructions about allowing young Wilson to play with other boys, or go from the premises. He remembers that the old woman lived near a larger river. During the four years or more that Wilson was in the custody of the old woman, he was kept locked in a darkened room most of the time. One day he saw two men enter the yard, and although he was locked securely in his room, he heard a great quarrel between the men and the old woman. From the conversation which he heard, he gained the belief that these two men were his friends or relatives. Shortly after this occurrence, the strange man, who had stolen him, put in his appearance, and the boy was taken to a country place.

From this time on the abductor never again made his appearance. Wilson's memory does not furnish him the location of his new home, but it was but a few years after the family removed to Indianapolis. Sickness and poverty soon compelled his foster parents to place him in the Catholic orphanage system, at Vincennes, Ind. He was now at an age when he began to realize his peculiar situation. He was entered in the asylum simply as "James Wilson, no parents," and, by this change, the poor fellow lost track of the only persons who might give him a clue to his origin. He has spent his life toiling as a farm hand, as a miner, and anything at which he could make a living. Every cent he saved, that possibly could be, for the purpose of prosecuting the search for his relatives. This one desire consumes him, but now, at the age of thirty years, his hope has begun to wane, and he walks the streets of this city with the appearance of being a heart-broken man. He possesses remarkable natural intelligence, and leads a life that wins the admiration of those who know him. He has never married.

The father of the lost Charlie Ross, of Philadelphia, recently paid Mr. Wilson a visit, and, although the circumstances of the two abductions were similar, it was well established that Wilson was not Charlie Ross. Being a man of some sentiment and natural refinement, Wilson realizes the sadness of his fate. His outcast state has weighed heavily upon him, and those who would measure his misery can do so by imagining themselves in his place.—Evansville, Ind., Correspondence of The Cincinnati Enquirer.

What Next?
The New York World says a wealthy lady of Texas, having, by some means, lost a finger wishes to replace it and advertised for some lady who would part with hers for a liberal sum. This met the eye of an orphan lady, Miss Grace Dinmore, of Birmingham, Ohio, who is very independent but ambitious to gain certain lucrative accomplishments and accepts $1,000 for one of hers to obtain the means to realize her ambition. A fresh amputation is to be made on the rich lady's finger when Miss Dinmore's finger is to be amputated and set immediately on to grow. It should prove a success it will open up a new way of restoring maimed parts and shrunken fortunes.

The Old North State.

STATE ITEMS OF IMPORTANCE GATHERED FROM OUR MANY WIDE-AWAKE EXCHANGES.

Col. Bennahan Cameron has resigned as president of the State Agricultural Society and is succeeded by R. H. Battle, of Raleigh.

A correspondent of the Charlotte Observer says which bugs literally cover the face of the earth in No. 9 township, Cabarrus county, and farmers in that section have about decided to plant no corn, as the bugs would destroy the crop.

Artesian wells in the upper Cape Fear section are proving a great success, as State Geologist Holmes indicated last year they would. At depths of 200 to 250 feet excellent water is found, and in some cases it rises to a height of ten feet above the ground.

The Wadesboro Messenger says Carpenter and McRae, two young colored men, were examining a pistol when it was discharged in the hands of Carpenter, the ball striking McRae and inflicting a wound from which he died a few hours later. Carpenter was held for court in a bond of $200.

The Salisbury Sun says that the bursting of a powder can in the store of G. S. and P. A. Surratt, on Chestnut Hill, Wednesday night, started a fire that burned that building, the Episcopal chapel and the dwelling house of E. P. Myrick. The total loss was nearly $60,000, with insurance of $58,650.

Joseph C. Clark, a farmer living at Riceville, 8 miles from Asheville, while working about in his field Monday morning about 10 o'clock, suddenly fell to the ground and died in a few minutes. His son, who was in the field and saw him fall, ran to him, but he was unable to articulate only a few words before he expired.

Mrs. Geo. L. Litaker committed suicide at her home four miles south of Concord Friday morning by shooting herself with a pistol. She had been suffering from melancholia for several years and the act was due to temporary insanity. She was sitting in the room with her three children when she went to the bureau drawer, from which she took a revolver, placed the barrel in her mouth and fired. She died instantly.

A remarkable accident occurred at Fayetteville Monday. A negro woman was burned to death in a graveyard. On the other hand, there was a wonderful escape of a child from death in the railway accident at Harrisburg Sunday. The child, aged 4, was at an open window of the car. In the shock of the actual collision the child was thrown out of the window and against the side of a deep cut, yet escaped without any injury.

Hon. D. F. Caldwell recently sold, through the agency of Wharton & McAlister, valuable coal lands near Cammock to Messrs. J. L. Mitchell, of Tyrone, Pa., and George H. Lacey, of Wilmington. The purchase price was $25,000, of which $10,000 was cash. This is not the Egypt mine, but a neighboring piece of undeveloped property which the Langdon Henszey Company bought a few years ago and failed to pay for. Mines will be opened thereon at once.—Greensboro Patriot.

The Hustler learns that a crowd of men went to the home of John Chambers, in Antioch township, Wilkes county, Friday night and fired several shots through the front and rear doors, after which the doors were burst open with rocks. Mrs. Chambers was hit in several places and painfully hurt. One rock struck the back of her head while resting on her baby's head, thus saving the little one's life. It is supposed that this was the work of moonshiners, who claim that Chambers has been reporting them.

Thursday night the gin house of Mr. J. T. Goodman, at Amity, Chambersburg township, was struck by lightning and burned with its contents. We have no definite information, but it is reported that in addition to the building there were burned 30 or 40 bales of cotton, a lot of corn, a wheat drill, plows and perhaps other farming implements. The loss, we understand, is estimated at $2,500, with no insurance. The loss is quite a heavy one and Mr. Goodman has the sympathy of his friends in his misfortune.—Statesville Landmark.

A WIFE'S MISSION.

Strange Devotion of a Deserted South Carolina Wife.

City Warden and License Inspector George Saxe listened to a pitiful tale of poverty and misplaced love told by a faithful wife in destitute circumstances yesterday. The woman applied to him for a free ticket to her home in South Carolina, from which she had made her way to Atlanta to plead for her imprisoned husband, who is serving a term in the penitentiary for bigamy.

The woman in question is Mrs. Jones, who lives in a small South Carolina town near Augusta. She brought with her a bright faced little baby, poorly clad. Her husband deserted her and took up his abode with a Georgia woman, whom he afterwards married, although his first wife lived just across the state line in the state mentioned.

The double husband endeavored to conceal from his first wife and child the knowledge that he had married again, but the news reached the deserted little woman. Jones was arrested and convicted in the Georgia courts for bigamy and sentenced to a term in the penitentiary, where he is now languishing, leaving his two wives and child to mourn and miss him.

Mrs. Jones, No. 1, recently learned of her husband's condition, and despite the fact that she has been cruelly deserted and mistreated, and despite the fact that she was poor and almost unable to support herself, she could not forget her love for the faithless man she still called her husband, and the result was that she walked and made her way to Atlanta to see Gov. Atkinson in person and to plead for a pardon for Jones, and yesterday she went to the capitol to see the governor, but found that he was out of the city. It was with a sigh that she turned away, but her determination to plead for the convict was not shaken and she declared that although without money or friends here she would wait until Governor Atkinson returns and then beg him to free her husband.

During the day she called on Mr. Saxe and begged him to help her get back to her home in South Carolina, repeating the sad story of her love and the unworthy actions of her husband. She spoke kindly of the man who had deserted her and said she would do her duty by asking for his freedom, although she had been left in destitute circumstances and cruelly wronged by Jones. It was plain that she still loves the man and her devotion is simple and sincere.

Inspector Saxe secured the ticket for the little woman and when she secured an audience with the Governor she will return to her home with the satisfaction that she has performed a duty.

"I have listened to many tales of sorrow and poverty, but this is one of the most remarkable cases of which I have heard," said Mr. Saxe in speaking of the story of the woman.—Atlanta Constitution.

Anxious for Peace With the Cubans.
The mayor of Sancti Spiritus, Marcos Garcia, and the well known Senator Spelterne, had arranged to visit the camp of General Maximo Gomez with a view to settling terms of peace. It is understood that Gomez has said he will not receive them unless they bring letters from the Cuban junta.

It is reported from San Antonio de las Vegas, that the insurgents under Antonio Hernandez, made an attack upon the town but without serious results. A company of twenty peasants who had left the town with ox carts to gather corn were carried off to the Castillas camp, where they were forbidden to continue the traffic. Their clothing was seized and they were compelled to return to town naked in a cart.

During the recent attack on Vereda Uvera, a major and his child were wounded. The insurgents remained nine hours in the town and had supper and a dance.

The Workingmen's Hotel, which the Salvation Army has opened in Boston, charges 5, 10 and 15 cents for lodging, 3 cents for supper, 5 for breakfast, and 8 for dinner. A bath is free, but not obligatory. The house will contain 100 beds.

Postmaster Dayton, of New York City, has forwarded his resignation to President McKinley. It is understood his successor will be Cornelius Vanocott, who was postmaster during the Harrison administration.

A Never-die.
The "life-time" of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will never draw to a close. When a mother once sees it, she continues its use right along; because, she found, for curing cough, cold, croup and whooping-cough Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup unequalled by any other similar medicine. "I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for ten or fifteen years in the family, for coughs and throat troubles caused by colds, and have found no superior article." Mrs. D. T. Clarke, 163 Congress St., Cleveland, O. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup can be had everywhere for 25 cents. Dealers will say they have something else "just as good or better," because they want to make more profit. Don't be "taken in." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best.

Something to Depend On.
Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowles, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was at bed with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Penna could do no thing for her. It seemed to develop into heavy consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in a bottle, and seeing how it had been used, she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at Taylor & Banner's Drug Store.

$1,404,000 Fraud!

CARNEGIE'S TRUST DEMANDS ITS OWN PRICE FOR ARMOR PLATE. OPENLY DEFIES CONGRESS.

The Armor Plate Trust, made reckless by years of favoritism in high places, has attempted to hold up the Government in a fashion which in time of war would be held to constitute a more serious offense. Three warships wait only for their sheathing of steel to add to the dignity and strength of the American fleet but the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies refuse to furnish it except at practically their own figures.

Congress had fixed the maximum price at $300 a ton, still allowing the trust a big profit. But the trust has the plants, the Government must have the armor from them, and highwaymen tactics are resorted to. In this case—and it would establish a new precedent—the hold-up is for something more than $2,000,000.

Secretary of the Navy Long, having before him the facts that Government contracts have more than paid for the extensive plants of these corporations; that they have received profits of more than 100 per cent on every armor plate made; that they have supplied foreign powers with the same armor for $150 less a ton; that Congress has discovered that armor can be made at a profit for less than $300 a ton, calmly recommends that the maximum price to be paid shall be raised to $400 a ton.

In no department controlling the navy of any foreign power could such a scene have been witnessed as that in Secretary Long's office a few days ago. Bids for the armor for three battleships were to be opened by the Secretary. Representatives of Carnegie and Bethlehem companies gathered at the department, as they had heretofore, to witness the opening of the bids. Threats were made last March that if Congress assumed to limit the cost of armor the trust would refuse to bid and attempt to put the Government in a position that would compel it to accept the trust's terms. Not one bid was received from either company, and the only offer made was by the Illinois Steel Company, whose bid obviously was framed to suit the wishes of Carnegie. The trust companies simply put in letters saying that $300 was too low a price. Profit of $50 a ton would be too small!

Representatives of the trust smiled at the remarkable outcome and filed out of the Secretary's office with broad grins on their faces. Former Secretary Herbert, who had investigated carefully the many scandals in connection with armor plate and had recommended to Congress that the prices charged by the trust were excessive, was also there, but it was evident that he had scarcely expected a point-blank refusal from the Armor Trust to make any bids.

Secretary Long has been in office just a few days more than a month. He has had little or no opportunity to go thoroughly into the question of armor plate cost or the frauds upon the Government which have been practiced by the Armor Trust. His recommendation for a concession to Carnegie will doubtless stir up much hostile criticism in Congress, which has had several investigations of armor making.

In 1894 the Carnegie Company, which now assumes to dictate to the Government a price it shall pay for its armor plate, was detected in frauds involving $1,404,000 worth of plate, some of which, defective as it is, is now on our warships, supposedly on the Monterey, Terror, New York and Cincinnati.

The Southern Express Company has been paying tax on only $62,000 of property in this State. This year there are some pretty strong provisions in the Revenue Act concerning this, and the tax on express companies, telegraph and telephone companies will be considerably increased. The Board of Equalization, which begins work on May 1st, will also take the matter up and make a proper estimate of the property of these companies in North Carolina.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction says that a fraud is being perpetrated on the public schools by persons who are selling charts worth about $3.50 for $16. He says in one county fully $2,600 was thus used.

A Fine Meeting.

The revival services which had been in progress at the Main-street Methodist church for two weeks closed last Sunday night, on which occasion the congregation was one of the largest ever known there, many persons being unable to procure seats. The subject of Mr. Holcomb's discourse on that occasion was "Heaven," and it was listened to with intense interest and spiritual profit. At the conclusion of the sermon a large number of penitents went forward for prayers, and twelve or fifteen were converted.

A very large congregation was present at the morning service, at which time the doors of the church were opened and seventeen members were received.

Rev. W. R. Holcomb, who conducted this series of meetings, is a very young man, not yet twenty years old. He is a native of North Carolina, his home being at Mt. Airy, but he has been in Virginia for about eighteen months, having his headquarters at Ashland, in order to take the theological course at Randolph Macon College. Mr. Holcomb has been preaching only a little over a year, but he is a workman who needeth not to be ashamed. He is a young man of deep piety and great earnestness, and thoroughly understands how to conduct revival services, his methods being highly commended by men and owned by the Spirit of God in the conversion of souls. The above meeting resulted in more than one hundred persons, while the members of the church were greatly revived. Mr. Holcomb carries with him the prayers and best wishes of many of our people, who wish him continued success in his noble work.—Suffolk Herald, April 5th.

Education in the Home.
The place above all others where an educated Christian woman is needed is in the home, especially in the home of those in moderate circumstances where the mother, with little outside help does her own work and superintends her family. It may look to others as if her time and money had been wasted, and education were useless, but she herself feels the advantage. It is probable that she did not have a special training for these duties, but her interest in the advancement of the race, and their desire to do whatever she does with an enlightened conscience, led her to adopt the best methods in her housekeeping. When we think that perhaps nineteen-twentieths of the happiness we shall ever know we get at home, the influence of an educated Christian woman in the home can hardly be estimated.—The Gospel Messenger.

This is to certify that I have used Royal Germetuer in my family for the last five years for various complaints, viz: Indigestion, bowel troubles and general debility, and find it all that it claims to be. In fact, I would not be without it in my house."

If you would know the value of this great remedy in the family, send to the Atlanta Chemical Co., Atlanta, Ga., for 45 large bottles, free. New package, large bottle, 108 doses, $1. For sale by Taylor & Banner.

Speaking of the President's appointment of commissioners to visit foreign countries in the interest of an international monetary conference, Wm. J. Bryan said he thought the personnel of the commission was excellent, so far as Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Wolcott were concerned. Mr. Paine, he did not know.

When a good man, particularly a minister, falls or goes wrong, every body tells and every paper publishes it. At least most of them do. But when a bad man rises into newness of life from his fall into sin, but few seem to pay any attention to or have but little to say about it.

The Rocket says a colt born in Rockingham county a few days ago had no forelegs. It was perfect in all other respects. It lived only two days.
