CHEMICAL ANALYSIS

Reveals That "Pe-ru-na is Calculated to Tone up the System, Restore the Functions and Procure Health."

SO SAYS PROF. L. J. MILLER, CHEMIST.

PROF. L. J. MILLER.

Prof. L. J. Miller, late Professor of Chemistry and Botany of the High School of Ypsilanti, Mich., writes from 2627 N. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill., as follows: "As several of my friends have spoken to me of the favorable results obtained through the use of Peruna, especially in cases of catarrh, I examined it most thoroughly to learn its contents. I found it composed of extracts of herbs and barks of most valuable medicinal qualities combined with other ingredients, delicately balanced, calculated to tone up the system, restore the functions and procure health. I consider Peruna one of the most skillfully and scientifically prepared medicines, which the public can use with safety and success."

"Builds up the System."

Hon. Joseph H. Ridgeway, Secretary of the American Anti-Trafficking Society, writes the following letter from the Grand Central Hotel, St. Paul, Minn.: "It is with great pleasure that I endorse Peruna as an honest medicine, competent to do all it claims. I have used it several times and know of nothing that cures so completely, and at the same time builds up the system. I have recommended it to a number of my friends and always feel that I do them a service for I know how satisfactory the results invariably are. I only wish every family had a bottle—it would save much sickness and doctor bills."

Joseph H. Ridgeway.

"Feel Better Than for Five Years." Mr. James B. Taylor, Roberts, Ind., writes: "I am at the present time entirely well. I can eat anything I ever could. I took five bottles of Peruna, and feel better now than I have for five years. I have doctor with other doctors off and on for fifteen years, so I can recommend your medicine very highly for stomach troubles. I take great pleasure in thanking you for your free advice and Peruna." James B. Taylor.

"I Enjoy My Meals as I Used to." Mr. J. W. Pritchard, Wolf Lake, Ind., writes: "I was pleased to say that I have been cured of catarrh of the stomach by Peruna. I could hardly eat anything that agreed with me. Before I would get half through my meal my stomach would fill with gas causing me much distress and unpleasant feelings for an hour or two after each meal. But, thanks to your Peruna, I am now completely cured, and can eat anything I want to without any of the distressing symptoms. I can now enjoy my meals as I used to do, and it is all due to Dr. Hartman and his wonderful medicine, Peruna."

"It has been one year since I was cured, and I am all O. K. yet, so I know I am cured." J. W. Pritchard. Dyspepsia is a very common phase of summer catarrh. A remedy that will cure catarrh of one location will cure it anywhere. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. That it is a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh of the stomach the above letters testify.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will so please to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

DUNGEONS UNCOVERED.

Workmen, while excavating last week in the cellar of the Old Hall of Records, New York, found a portion of a ball and chain supposed to have been used as a manacle for revolutionary prisoners during British occupation of the city. The relic consists of two or three rusty links of chain attached to a metal ball weighing twenty pounds. The contractors in charge of the work have been bothered by so many curiosity seekers, attracted by the stories of discovered dungeons that they had to post pickets about the work to prevent the laborers from being annoyed.

The workmen later uncovered six gloomy vaults, which had not seen a ray of light in nearly a century. With pick, ax and crow bars the laborers tore out a huge slab of marble in what was the floor of the old building giving access to the dungeons, used in revolutionary times for confining American patriots, until New York ceased to be a British town. The doorways, connecting the half dozen gloomy cells, had disappeared, but the huge oak lintels on which they swung remain firmly imbedded in the massive partition walls. The old dungeons were built about 147 years ago by the British as part of a prison on what was then the northernmost limits of the city. The stone was hauled from Haddam, Conn. Beneath the marble floors of the prison structure proper were the dungeons, separated by walls three feet thick. Four of these cells had openings far above the prisoners' heads, but two were without openings except the oaken doors.

It is known that Ethan Allen, the hero of Ticonderoga, was an occupant of one of the cells, and it is believed that Nathan Hale was here confined from the time of his capture until his execution in 1780 and since has been used for municipal offices.

KILLED ON RAILROAD.

Charles Bowles, telegraph operator of the Southern railway at Braswell, a station between Atlanta and Chattanooga, was killed at that place Monday night while preparing to board a south-bound passenger train for this city.

It seems that after the train reached Braswell, Bowles started to cross the track, in front of the engine, but before he could clear the track, was struck by the engine and killed. It is stated that he intended to board the train and come to Atlanta. The body was placed aboard the train and brought to this city, reaching here yesterday morning at 2 o'clock. The body was taken to the undertaking parlors of H. M. Patterson, where it was prepared for burial, and it was taken yesterday afternoon at 4:40 o'clock to Warm Springs. The people of the deceased reside in Chipley and the body will be interred at that place, being taken there through the country. Bowles was about twenty-five years of age and unmarried. He had large numbers of friends who sympathize with the bereaved relatives.—Atlanta Constitution.

FATAL WRECK ON SOUTHERN.

Another one of those terrible wrecks so frequent of late occurred on the Southern at Danville this morning at 4:25. Like many things of the same kind there seems so far to be no explanation for it. No. 39, the southbound train passing here at 5:03 a. m., was standing at the station in Danville, the engine taking water. No. 32, the fine Florida train going north, due to pass here at 2:30 a. m., but running perhaps half an hour late, thundered right into No. 39, the engines becoming locked in an embrace so tight that it was almost impossible to separate them after the crash. Both engines are badly demolished while the express car on 39 was shattered to pieces, but strange to say neither the engineers nor the firemen of the engines were hurt. A man whose name could not be learned, holding a ticket from Richmond to Gaffney, S. C., was instantly killed, his body being mangled and badly mangled. He was in the act of going from one car to another when the crash occurred. A car inspector, a white man, was examining the wheels of a coach on 39 and was also instantly killed. John B. Coleman, another car inspector, of Danville, had his arm badly crushed. A negro train hand had the bones of his foot crushed, while a man in charge of a coach on No. 39 killed with his hands his chin and face badly cut and several passengers of both trains were shaken up, but the extent of the injuries of these could not be learned here. All these fatalities occurred on or around No. 39. Three coaches of this train were badly damaged that the passengers had to be transferred to other cars. Every physician in Danville was hastily summoned and attended to the wounded.—Greensboro Record.

Grip Remedies in Great Demand. When colds and grip are prevalent the quickest and surest remedies are in great demand. Mr. Joseph P. Williams, of McDuff, Va., says that he was cured of a very deep and lasting attack of the grippe by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy after trying several other preparations with no effect. For sale by C. E. Galaway and J. W. McPherson & Co.

PEN PICTURE OF MORGAN.

Sitting within ten feet of J. Pierpont Morgan at the Ohio Club banquet at the Waldorf Astoria, I could not help thinking of the power represented in that one fist when he struck the table with his hand in approving applause. His short-cropped gray hair, sparkling dark eyes, shaggy brows and his bulldog mouth gently shadowed by a dark mustache—there was a man of international renown and power, and perhaps, one of the greatest financiers the world has ever known. Mr. Morgan has a way of gripping the big black Mexican cigar which he smokes (no banquet brand for him), rolling it around in his mouth—blowing out the smoke with the force of a locomotive, grasping it between first and second fingers—even in the repose of the banquet hall. These are some of the minute mannerisms which mark the man who plays for any stake short of the universe. His keen eyes followed the speaker's, and his smile in a nod of recognition to a friend was fascinating. On each of his small fingers he wore a seal ring. His necktie was a simple white one, over the stand-up white-winged collar. In his buttonhole was a chrysanthemum. After all, a primitive man in his tastes and manners, but dynamic in every move and gesture.—National Magazine.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME.

A writer in an exchange says: "A love of home and home life should be early planted in every girl and boy, and there is no way so sure of giving this lesson as the making of home pleasant and attractive. But how should we do this?"

"The mother says she is overburdened with the manifold cares and duties which devolve upon her—she can't do more. "No, and she ought not to. It is not her duty to do all the rough work and let the daughter do the dainty tasks. Division of labor is profitable in the factory, and why should it not be in the home?"

"Divide up the cares, experiences and labors of the home among the people. "Teach them the details and give them a personal interest. It is slow work to build the structure of a noble character; therefore the foundations should be laid early."

"It may be easier to do the work yourself, but the mother is looking for the best way, not the easiest. It is the inalienable right of the child to help make home attractive, that in future years, as he turns backward the leaves of memory's pages, his heart may glow while his lips express the sentiment, 'He is ever so humble, there's no place like home.'"

Death of Editor Hackney.

Mr. E. C. Hackney, editor of the Durham Recorder, died on the 10th inst., after an illness of only a few days. On account of his death Mrs. Hackney, who has been an invalid for years, is now prostrated and is attended by two physicians. Editor Hackney was 47 years old and was highly esteemed by the people of Durham. He helped to make Durham what it is to-day.

Danger of Colds and Grip.

The greatest danger from colds and grip is their resulting in pneumonia. It is reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. It will cure a cold or an attack of the grip in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by C. E. Galaway and J. W. McPherson & Co.

A Bad Breath

A bad breath means a bad stomach, a bad digestion, a bad liver. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache.

WONDERFUL FREAK DEAD.

News reaches here that George Randall, this county's wonderful freak, is dead. The boy was one of the most wonderful freaks of nature in the South or perhaps in the world. He carried on his shoulders one of the largest and heaviest heads of any person known. He was six years old when he died, and weighed only 65 pounds. His head measured 46 inches in circumference and weighed fifty pounds. His body, arms and legs weighed only 15 pounds. For five years his head had been growing rapidly and it could not be seen at the time of his death that his body had grown a particle in that period. He ate almost skin and bones. He ate nothing but meat and bread and occasionally drank a cup of coffee. While he had been in perfect health all his life with the exception of one illness three years ago, his parents and family physician did not believe that he would live long. At times he could hold up his head, but most of the time preferred lying in bed, because his head was so heavy.
