Can Get Lynchers Governor Thinks.

News and Observer, 30th.

"I have not yet offered any reward for the Charlotte lynchers," Governor Craig said yesterday, "but they are going to be found and I expect to see it done while I am in office."

Governor Craig has returned from Asheville and had not heard anything from the progress of the investigation. He declared that he does not expect to stop until the names of the men have been learned and their cases are tried before a Meeklenburg jury.

Governor Craig does not believe that the people of Meeklenburg will stand for the acquittal of a set of men who committed one of the worst outrages yet recorded in the State. He has his own ideas about how it occurred and Judge Shaw likewise does.

That some of the names have been learned is pretty certain now and the Governor believes that all of the guilty ones will be eventually found out. He has his own reasons for not offering a reward now. Charlotte's mayor has done that and the money consideration is not a small one. It is desired to keep the idea of bribery as far from the officers as possible.

The Governor declared again: "If Charlotte and Meeklenburg had been protected by such officers as Spartanburg, the State would have been saved this disgrace." And Spartanburg's Sheriff stood back a real mob by simply telling that he would kill the first man who came across the dead line. The mob was after a black man who had killed a white man.

Shot Through Head.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 3.—Will Potts, colored, yesterday morning attended to a little matter that would probably not have been put off by anyone else but as he was not suffering to amount to anything, he spent the night at home with two bullet holes in his skull, and yesterday morning called upon Dr. W. E. Wishart to have the injuries fixed. The physician says that no ill results are apt to follow.

Potts was at Lakewood Park Monday night, drinking a little he told Doctir Wishart and got into a racket with some men whom he did not know. One of them took a pot shot at Potts' head and managed to hit him twice out of an equal number of times at bat. Both were base hits, as they skinned just below the base of the brain, going entirely through with plenty of room for a probe to be inserted. The belief is that only one ball passed through the head, from side to side and that he does not at present have lead on the brain.

The negro, who works for the Yarbrough & Bellinger Company, is said to be a good, industrious laborer. He was advised by friends to see a physician Monday night but decided to wait until yesterday, which he did. He stated that he rested well and in fact slept all night long, without any trouble.

Fighting Opium.

Battle Creek Enquirer.

Thirty-five Nations have joined in approving the general convention designed to prevent traffic in habit-forming drugs, according to the report of Dr. Hamilton Wright, who, with Lloyd Bryce, American Minister at The Hague, represented the United States at the recent international opium conference held at The Hague. It is for Congress to say, says The Flint Journal, whether or not the action of our representatives making this country one of the thirty-five signatories of the agreement shall be ratified.

How great has been the spread of the opium habit was only surmised up to the time of the recent conference. It developed there that while the vic had almost enslaved the whole people of China, its tentacles have been fastened upon a very large portion of the movement, such as has been proposed, would practically abate the evil, and undoubtedly Congress will consent to this country participating in such a movement. Not to do so would be retrogressive. The action taken by the thirty-five Nations is a new evidence of the uplifting tendency of modern civilization and a recognition of the fact that Nations as well as men realize their duties to humanity.

Ignorant of U. S. Geography.

"While I am an Eastern man and a graduate of Harvard, I must confess that my education was far from being completed when I received my diploma, and this education was more lacking in respect to the geography of the United States than in anything else," was the emphatic statement made by Charles H. Morris, a New York man, who is in Washington on business, says The Post.

"I am an officer in a big mining company which operates in Miami, Okla., and during the past four years I have traveled from one end of the United States to the other, and for this reason I believe that I am in authority to speak on the geography of our country," continued Mr. Morris. "One reason for my explosion is a remark made by my brother, a professor in Brown University, who, when I told him that I had interests in Oklahoma, laconically stated that it would be easy for me to drop into San Francisco and other points on the Pacific coast. When I casually informed him that his own college was nearer to Miami than was San Francisco, he stuck up his nose, and so sure was he of his position he refused to consult the geography that he was explaining to his students.

"It will surprise most people when I say that the geographical center of the United States is but a short distance from Miami, Okla., and that it takes much longer to go from Miami to San Francisco than it does from Miami to Boston. Just to keep the college boys from disputing my statement, let me say that while Miami, Okla., and El Paso, Tex., are in adjoining States, it is farther from Miami to Philadelphia. If you have a boy who is going to school in the East, just ask him how far it is from Oklahoma to California, and if I am not mistaken he will answer, 'Oh, about a night's ride.' When you tell him that New York City is hundreds of miles nearer to Oklahoma than it is to San Francisco he will certainly be surprised."

Voted for Twenty Presidents

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 3.—Very few men in the United States today have the distinction of having voted for twenty Presidents of the United States. One of the few—if not the only man alive today—who holds this honor, is Thomas Wardell, who today celebrated his 98th birthday. Wardell was born during the presidency of James Madison and cast his first vote for William Henry Harrison in 1836. Since that time Wardell has voted in every Presidential election. He has always taken the liveliest interest in national and local politics. Attending the birthday celebration were ten members of the Borrowed Time Club whose ages aggregate 804 years.
