Cameron was in failing health many months, complications caused his death. Friends here were unaware that his condition was critical, and the report of his death reaching the city during the forenoon brought something of a shock to the community. He was formerly a man of exceptional physique and strength. He was a native of Greene county. His ancestors lived in Moore county. He was a member of the Methodist church at Sharon and active in support of it and neighborhood civic affairs.

The "Sage of Sharon" was regarded by his neighbors as well-to-do. He might have been wealthy. It latter years his increasing interest in Mas-onic affairs caused him to abandon his political career and neglect op-portunities to accumulate money. His plantation on which he resided, and which he personally managed with the assistance of a number of strapping sons, was one of the best kept in the
