in one city with those of other cities. The fact that for only 14 cities of 100, 000 population and over in the United States can information be obtained on which delinquency rates can be computed over a period of years indicates the woeful inadequacy of statistical material regarding the work of an institution as important as the Juvenile court.

Figures for Fourteen Cities.

"The figures for these 14 widely separated cities—Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis, New Orlsans, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Richmond, Rochester, St. Louis. Seattle, Washington—covering in most instances the 10-year period from 1915 to 1924, doubtless indicate the trend in juvenile delinquency. That 9 of the 14 show a decrease in the delinquency rate (i. e., the number of

of the 14 show a decrease in the delinquency rate (i. e., the number of cases of delinquency per 1,000 children of the delinquency age fixed by the Juvenile court law) furnishes a strong presumption that sensational statements regarding increase of juvenile crime do not have a basis in fact.

"Moreover, much more reliable figures as to commitments to institutions, based on census reports covering the entire country, indicate a decline in the number of delinquent children committed to institutions, if growth in population be taken into consideration, and reveal no significant in rease in the numbers committed for the more serious offenses—homicide, robbery and burgiary. According to the census reports, the age of commitment to penal institutions has not decreased, as has frequently been asserted.

"The plan for reporting of Juvenile court statistics of delinquency and neglect on which the children's bureau has been at work for some years was published during the year as a bulle-tin entitled Juvenile Court Statistics. This bulletin contains an introductory statement of the purpose of Juvenile court statistics and the methods by which they may be obtained and a description of the plan proposed by the children's bureau, with outlines of the statistical cards to be used and the tables to be compiled.

statistical cards to be used and the tables to be compiled.

"In the preparation of the plan the bureau had the co-operation of the committee on records and statistics of the Nation d Probation association and of others who are familiar with statistical groblems of the courts."

"A representative of the bureau is now visiting courts and state departments having supervisory authority or power to require reports from Juvenlle courts, and is working out with these courts and departments the methods by which the plan may be made to fit in with present systems of recording, filing and summarizing the data called for. The co-operation of a number of courts and state de partments has already been assured.

A QUESTION

After reading a few of Machievelli's essays on chicanery, one wonders how long he would last as a modern used car dealer. It would give him a great laugh, we know, to see how conscientiously we recondition our Used Cars before offering them for sale. But the proof of a principle is in its success - and the laugh would be on him, after all.
